Trace Gun Used in Drake Murder

Says Policeman Received Weapon Here in 1933.

This is my second report on the murder in the Drake hotel!

In it I will tell you how The Chicago Tribune has traced the antiquated revolver used by the mysterious "woman in black" who killed Mrs. Adele Born Williams, wife of a state department attache, in room 836 of the Drake the night of Jan. 19 last.

We have traced the revolver from the hands of its owner in 1926 to the hands of a convict serving a life term for murder in Stateville penitentiary. The lifer says that this gun, identified as the one used in the slaying of Mrs. Williams, was given by him to Policeman Adolph A. Valanis of the Warren Avenue station. Valanis denies this.

Brother of Key Clerk.

Policeman Valanis, 34, is the father of two small daughters, and at one time was a gun collector.

He is a brother of Mrs. Ellen Valanis Bennett Larksworthy Welch, alias Balanas, alias Peg Ryan, alias Hix, alias Murphy. She was a key clerk in the Drake hotel at the time Mrs. Williams was murdered. She has been married three times, divorced twice. Her second husband, Vere Larksworthy, was shot to death in Milwaukee in April, 1942, and his murder has never been solved. In 1939 Mrs. Bennett—as she was known—attempted to hold up a dress shop in Park Ridge, but was caught, and later placed on probation. The gun she used in this holdup attempt was lent to her by Policeman Valanis "for target practice"; he, in turn, had received the gun from the Stateville lifer, who now says he also gave Valanis the gun identified as used in the Drake slaying.

Policeman Valanis also is the brother of Mrs. Anna Valanis Minck, admitted prostitute. In 1922 she was held by juvenile authorities as an alleged thief. In 1924 she, a brother, Anthony; Lucille Marshall, and William Lydon, all in their teens, were charged with the strangle murder of bawdy house madam, but acquitted.

In Hotel Prowlings.

Later she worked in Hawaii as a prostitute. In July, 1943, Anna was placed on probation for one year in lieu of a one to three year sentence as a hotel prowler by a Milwaukee court. In the same month she was seized as a suspected prowler at the Knickerbocker hotel, but the case was dropped in court after she made restitution of $100 found hidden on her person.

The convict who says he gave the gun identified as the Drake murder weapon to Policeman Valanis is Walter Brown, formerly of Bloomington, Ill. He was reared as a boy with Valanis at the Soldiers' home and or-

Two Stories Told to Officials in Quiz at Prison.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

For four hours last night in a room in the Stateville penitentiary two men, one a lifer serving time as a murderer and one a Chicago policeman, faced each other and argued over the possession of a .38 caliber Iver-Johnson revolver used to slay Mrs. Adele Born Williams in the Drake hotel.

The lifer and the policeman had been reared together in an orphanage. They had been friends for 25 years. The lifer said that he had placed the gun which killed Mrs. Williams in a table drawer in the policeman's Chicago home. The policeman denied he had ever had or seen the gun.

Officials Head Two Stories.

Listening to the two men, cross-examining them, probing their stories, were Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, Walter Storms, chief of detectives, Phil Breitzke, chief of the homicide squad, T. P. Sullivan, state director of public safety, and Joseph Ragen, warden of the penitentiary. When the long and dramatic inquiry was over the lifer had convinced the assistant state's attorney and the officials that he had surely identified the gun which killed Mrs. Williams as the gun he had received from a stick-up pal. He had not convinced them that he ever put the gun into the hand of the Chicago policeman, his boyhood friend. The policeman denied vehemently that he had ever seen the fatal gun.

Early this morning the lifer, Walter Brown, was taken aside by Crowley: "Are you hedging for the policeman?" Crowley asked. The convict answered: "I am telling you the truth. I left that gun in Adolph Valanis' home. I am not going to testify against him. I know and he knows he had the gun."

Crowley said: "Why doesn't he tell us that?"

Offers to Take Lie Test.

Then the lifer asked Crowley for permission to talk privately for three minutes with Valanis. Valanis at first demurred, saying: "There is nothing that we can say that I don't want you fellows to hear." Crowley was insistent and the two men talked alone. When the policeman came back he said to Crowley: "I am willing to take any kind of a lie test you want. I did not have that gun."

The convict looked at Valanis silently for a minute, shook his head, and the long night's inquiry broke up.

At the prison Brown was first questioned minutely by Walter Storms, and then by Crowley. In effect, this is the story he told them:

Convict Identifies Gun.

He identified the gun used to slay Mrs. Williams; said it was positively the gun he had in his possession all the latter part of January, 1933.

"I am sure that is the gun; there is no doubt in my mind that is the gun I got from Ollie Andrews, a holdup man, a friend of mine. I had that gun with me in Chicago in the Dearborn hotel late in January, 1933. I had first seen the gun in Bloomington, where I had a speakeasy.

"Ollie Andrews came to me one

RESURRECTION

Out of the living earth of France,
The Dead, who never truly die,
Rise in a morning's radiance,
And turn their faces to the sky.
Down from the northern Norman skies,
A strange, miraculous manna comes,
A rain of armies, arms, allies,
And France is marching. Hark, the drums!
When Underground joins Overhead,

Wilson Quits in New Feud; Blasts Nelson

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—A bitter personal feud between WPB Chairman Nelson and Charles E. Wilson, his executive vice chairman, flared into the open tonight after the latter resigned in protest against "unfair attacks and criticism" from Nelson's personal staff.

Charles Wilson.

In an hour long press conference Wilson, former president of General Electric company, tossed aside strained efforts of the White House, the WPB, and the senate war investigating committee to make it appear all was harmonious between himself and Nelson.

Broken Promises Charged.

Wilson charged Nelson had failed to keep his promises to vindicate his chief aid of charges of opposing reconversion and blasted his chief for assertedly having delayed reconversion thru a policy of putting matters over until tomorrow.

Wilson said he and his staff have been "constantly pilloried" by charges that they were holding up reconversion to favor big business over small business.

"Nelson constantly promised me he would hold a press conference and correct these statements," Wilson said with no effort to conceal his anger. "These promises never were carried out."

Asked whether there were any explanation for the failure to carry out the promises, Wilson snapped: "Manana"—Spanish for "tomorrow."

Tells of Offering Plan.

Wilson declared some eight or nine months ago he had submitted the only reconversion plan the WPB has, and that some 20 weeks elapsed before he could get Nelson's approval on it. Asked whether he had any explanation for the delay Wilson pounded his desk and shouted: "Manana, again."

Wilson was reminded he and Nelson had participated in a WPB staff meeting after the White House had announced his resignation earlier today. At this meeting both denied any serious differences.

"That was just the meeting we were going to hold many months ago to tell the boys the stuff you people have been writing is pure bunk," Wilson said with a smile.

Meeting Is "Window Dressing."

Wilson's friends added the meeting was window dressing to hide the cleavage in the WPB high command. Also part of the window dressing, they said, was a typewritten statement of the senate war investigation committee saying the committee was satisfied rumors of a disagreement between Nelson and Wilson were unfounded. The statement was issued after Wilson had appeared today before a closed session of the committee after his resignation.

The White House announced the resignation and made public an exchange of letters between Wilson and President Roosevelt soon after Nelson called to bid the chief executive farewell before leaving for China with Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley, secretary of war in the Hoover administration, on a mission to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Wilson said the immediate cause of his resignation was the outburst that followed the White House announcement of the mission, which stated Wilson would head the WPB during Nelson's absence. Associates of Nelson charged that Nelson was being eased out of the administration, recalling that Vice President Wallace was sent to China while the President plotted his political death with bosses Kelly, Hague, and Flynn.

F. D. R. Aware of Dissension.

Mr. Roosevelt took cognizance of the reports in a statement Monday in which he stressed the importance of the mission and denounced the inference Nelson was "kicked in the teeth" by the assignment.

In a "Dear Charlie" letter accepting Wilson's resignation, the President said he was aware of the dissension within the WPB but had hoped it would disappear. He praised Wilson's "outstanding service" to the country.

Wilson, in his letter, referred to the renewal, since the announcement of the Nelson-Hurley mission, of stories in the press and on the radio to the effect Wilson had opposed conversion because of his former position as head of General Electric company.

In the evening the White House announced that Lt. Comdr. J. A. Krug, a former WPB vice chairman in charge of programs and now serving in the navy, will be acting WPB chairman during Nelson's absence.

A Lady Turtle Changes Mind to Win Derby

BY THOMAS MORROW.

A tall tortoise with a disillusioned look popping out of her black eyes tottered to victory last night in the fifth turtle derby in the Porter, Ind., baseball park.

The turtle, Beulah, broke fast, but with a two lengths lead sat down to think a little. Then she decided to go on and win with a rolling hip action in 1 minute and 7-10 second as against the record of 24.3 seconds for the 24 feet from the starting circle to the finish line. The track was slow.

His Comment: "Hello, Mom."

Then came the fruits of victory. Jerry Bucksbarg, 3 year old owner of the derby winner, was borne triumphantly to the field microphone. He pondered a minute, then said, "Hello, Mom." His only other comment came in answer to the question whether his turtle was named Tom Dewey. [F. D. R. was the winner of the consolation race.]

"No," he said.

His mother said that Jerry acquired the turtle at his front gate three weeks ago. He had given it only minor workouts.

Two thousand persons, 900 more than Porter's Chamber of Commerce secretary ever has claimed for the town, watched 263 turtles vie for fame and the $5 cash prize. The management refused the services of a bookie who wanted to establish a pari-mutuel on the outcome.

Henry Wallace Disappoints.

A great disappointment was the favorite, Henry Wallace, owned by Norman Crowell. Henry flashed across the finish line in one minute 14 seconds to win the first heat. In the semi-final, however, Henry paused in the starting circle to think something out and was still in the circle when the race was over.

Sam Newton, grand tortoise of the turtle trotting association and a member of the Lions club, who thought up the derby, was elated with its success. So was Chet Stemp, grand scribe. Between the two, they were working up a plan to let the turtles sit in the bleachers next year and have the members of the Lions club run the derby.

RUSSIANS SET PRICE OF ARMISTICE TO ROMANIA: MUST FIGHT GERMANS

Report Allied Tanks Nine Miles from French Capital.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OUTSIDE PARIS, France, Aug. 24.—Columns of Gen. Jacques Le Clerc's French armor late today were closing on beleaguered Paris from the south and southwest. Unconfirmed reports placed French patrols within the city limits.

It was known definitely that French armored troops were thrusting toward the German strongpoint of St. Cyr, near Versailles.

[An Associated Press dispatch from near Paris said one column of Gen. Le Clerc's French armor had driven a wedge into German held territory from the west and another from the south had advanced to within nine miles of Paris. The Paris radio, now in the hands of the F. F. I., said Le Clerc troops, "passing thru Pont de Sevres, have entered Paris." A Free French broadcast early today said German guns were violently bombarding sections of the city. One area being shelled, the radio said, was the 15th district, opposite suburban Clamart. An officer near Paris was quoted as saying he was leaving to bring Gen. Charles de Gaulle to the city.]

Blast Nazi Strong Points.

While the American infantry—the entire French and American force is part of Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' United States 1st army—is protecting the southern flank along the Seine, the main effort is driving at Paris with the power of the heavy French armored division. Their American made tanks and tank destroyers plowed thru or around strong points after the attack was launched this morning.

The greatest resistance from the Germans holding a defense screen arpund the city came from artillery southwest of Paris. To support the French, Gen. Hodges sent forward many batteries of 155 howitzers, which late today were rolling into position. They were not intended for use in shelling the French capital but for destroying German batteries harassing the French advance on this side of the city.

The German defense did not appear to be in depth. The enemy's system of strongpoints has already been pierced in several points by French armor. Adding to the Germans' troubles was the fighting being carried on thruout their rear by armed French citizens in Paris and its western and southern suburbs.

Nazis Repudiate Armistice.

An armistice between the Germans and the French Forces of the Interior in Paris, which led to a premature announcement that Paris had been liberated, was repudiated by the Germans.

The allies today were still receiving reports here of severe fighting

In a pocket little more than 10 miles deep and 35 miles wide the allied forces moved in for the kill against whatever the German 7th army has left between the Touques and the Seine, 25 miles farther east.

Canadians Gain 11 Miles.

Elbeuf, a Seine river ferrying point 25 miles from its mouth, where the Germans shipped the bulk of their men and armor across, fell to a swift 25 mile American advance, and the enemy's main port of Rouen, 10 miles north, was believed under American fire.

Canadians streaming across the Touques pushed as much as 11 miles toward the mouth of the Seine for a junction with the Americans to completely seal up the trap.

[An American radio correspondent reported from France last night that British and American forces have joined west of the Seine and boxed in remnants of 10 Nazi divisions.]

The swift American and Canadian advances reduced by half the area of the Seine loop held by the Germans only yesterday.

Blast Ships at Le Havre.

The great port of Le Havre across the Seine estuary was in an untenable position. As a big fleet of light enemy warships and other vessels put to sea, allied warplanes pounced upon it, sinking many ships in an eight hour attack.

Reports from the British front indicated the bulk of the men and armor of the 7th army, with reinforcements from the 15th, had escaped across the river.

All night long the crossings were under attack by planes and undetermined numbers of boats and barges were destroyed.

Gain South of Sens.

American forces hammered out two more bridgeheads across the Seine at Fontainebleau, 35 miles southeast of Paris, and pushed toward the German border—some 150 miles away—along a 25 mile front.

Far to the south the Americans plugged the last hole in the Orleans gap south of Paris with the capture of Montargis, by-passed in the attack on Sens. Montargis lies about halfway between Orleans and Sens and controls most roads running thru the gap.

The American armored drive 15 miles south of Sens, 65 miles southeast of Paris, was nearing the road center of Troyes, which controls many routes to southern France.

[The German radio said these forces were preparing to sweep north on Paris "in an outflanking movement on a great scale."]

Rearguard Fight Broken.

Collapse of the enemy's Touques river line by the Canadians broke the back of the sternest rearguard resistance summoned by the Germans to protect their withdrawals across the Seine.

Blangy, a town three miles east of the river and 14 miles inland from the sea, was overrun and another force neared Cricqueboeuf, almost at the mouth of the Seine.

While the Germans refused to budge from high ground east of Lisieux, Canadian forces on the south captured Thiberville, 10 miles east of Lisieux, and St. Aubin-de-Scallon, two miles north.

Ten miles north of Lisieux the allies retook Pont L'Eveque after a counter-attack had driven them out. North of here they seized Bonneville, two miles in from the coast.

Further tightening the grip on the enemy, other formations reached Le Neubourgh, 14 miles north of Conches and some 20 miles east of Thiberville.

WATER SPOUTS 1,500 FEET HIGH SIGHTED ALONG NORTH SHORE

Water spouts estimated to be more than 1,500 feet high were seen in Lake Michigan yesterday between Milwaukee, Wis., and Chicago. Described by meteorologists as "tornadoes at sea," they were visible to Rogers Park residents.

Lee Bennett, W-G-N announcer, who was doing the "Get Acquainted, Neighbor" show from the lake front in Rogers Park, said he saw "eight or nine" spouts within a half hour. "Each seemed to start with a perpendicular black line, which dropped out of a cloud. Then the water would rise out of the lake to meet it," he said. Each spout disappeared gradually, and another would take its place in another part of the lake, he added.

Thomas L. Long, meteorologist at Gen. Billy Mitchell field, Milwaukee, said the normal height of water spouts is between 250 and 300 feet. A continental polar air mass, considerably colder than water and surface temperatures, probably was responsible for the spouts, Long said. The rising of warmer air and down draft from colder air above create a whirling mass of air with a low pressure area in the center which fills with moisture torn up from the lake at the base and from the clouds.

Moscow Disclaims Any Desire for More Land.

LONDON, Aug. 25 [Friday]—(AP).—Russia called upon Romania today to send her armies against the Germans and fixed this as the price of an armistice with the allies.

Vyacheslav Molotov.

In the first official reply from an allied government to Romania's announced decision to accept allied peace terms, the soviet government said that if the Romanian troops stopped fighting the Russians and turned on the Germans, "or against the Hungarians for the liberation of Transylvania," the Red army would help them.

Russia disavowed any desire to acquire Romanian territory.

Text of Moscow Statement.

The statement, issued by the peoples' commissariat for foreign affairs and broadcast by the Moscow radio, follows:

"In connection with events in Romania, the soviet government considers it not out of place to confirm the declaration given in April of this year [by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov] that the soviet union has no intention of acquiring any part of Romanian territory, or to change the existing social order in Romania, or to limit in any respect the independence of Romania.

"The soviet government considers it essential to restore, together with the Romanians, the independence of Romania by the means of liberating Romania from the German fascist yoke.

Terms for Aid Fixed.

"The soviet supreme command considers that if the Romanian troops discontinue military operations against the Red army, and if they will undertake the obligation to conduct a war of liberation against the Germans hand in hand with the Red army for the independence of Romania, or against the Hungarians for the liberation of Transylvania, then the Red army will not disarm them, will keep completely intact for them their entire equipment, and will by all means help them fulfill this honorable duty.

"However, the Red army can discontinue military operations on the territory of Romania only after liquidation of German troops in Romania which are the conductors of oppression and enslavement of the Romanian people.

"The assistance of the Romanian troops to the Red army troops in the task of liquidating the German troops is the only means of speedy discontinuation of military operations on Romanian territory and of the conclusion of an armistice between Romania and the coalition of the allies."

See War as Still On.

The closing paragraph was understood here to mean that despite a proclamation of King Michael of Romania accepting armistice terms, a state of war continues to exist between Romania and Russia, Great Britain, and the United States.

No statement has been made by the British and American governments and in London diplomatic sources disclosed that Romania's capitulation came as a bolt from the blue to Britain. Since there had been no recent consultation, it was believed Romania was moving now to accept what Prime Minister Churchill has described as the "generous terms" offered six months ago.

A later Moscow broadcast reported fierce armed clashes were taking place in northern Transylvania between the Romanian populace and Hungarian troops. Moscow said Hungarians were arresting the insurgents.

Pro-Nazi Regime Set Up.

The Germans, trying to salvage what they can in Romania, announced yesterday the formation of a vague puppet regime opposing King Michael's new pro-allied government, appealed for Romanians to remain in the war on the axis side, and said that rioting had broken out in the Balkan nation.

[A state of siege has been proclaimed in Bucharest, according to an article in the Swiss newspaper La Suisse reported to the office of war information.]

Report Nazis Curbed.

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 24.—The military government of Romania under Gen. Konstantin Senatescu, has consolidated its position thruout most of the country, according to a broadcast tonight.

With the exception of two garrisons believed to total about five divisions, one at Zuzau, 99 miles northeast of Bucharest, and the other at Ploesti, large scale German resistance was believed under control.

Premier Senatescu has been given authority by the new cabinet to rule by decree for the defense of the nation until parliament can be convened. The premier's first decree dismissed Marshal Ion Antonescu. There is no confirmation that Antonescu has fled to Germany and named in his place Gen. Georghe Mihail. Mihail was reported thought to be in consultation at Russian headquarters near Iasi.

[A Reuters dispatch from London said the Bucharest radio reported Communists had joined the new Romanian government.]

MOST OF PACIFIC OURS, ASSERTS ADM. NIMITZ

San Francisco, Aug. 24 (AP).—The major part of the Pacific ocean now is under allied control, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said tonight in a broadcast from Pearl Harbor. Navy patrol search planes daily make it necessary for the Japanese to enter the portion left to him "at his peril," Nimitz said.

The commander in chief of the Pacific fleet and Pacific ocean areas spoke on the March of Time program in observance of the 31st anniversary of the creation of the naval air force.

He said the Pacific offensive is attaining the essential objective of winning control of the sea approaches to the Japanese empire in order to sever ocean routes over which the enemy must move men and supplies. When the goal is completely achieved, the "co-prosperity sphere will then become a non-prosperity sphere," the admiral said.

'IKE' PINS D. S. M. ON ADM. WILKES; HAILED BY NAVY

ADVANCE COMMAND POST OF A. E. F. IN NORMANDY, Aug. 24 [Reuter].—The United States army honored the navy today when Gen. Eisenhower decorated Rear Adm. John Wilkes of the United States navy with the distinguished service medal.

Adm. Wilkes was cited for his meritorious services in the training of United States army and navy personnel for the amphibious operations which made the United States' part in the invasion of France so successful. Not a ship was lost due to improper loading or to errors by insufficiently trained personnel.

Gen. Eisenhower said he was especially pleased to pay honor to the navy today because he had just received from Adm. Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, the congratulations of American sea forces to the army on the magnificent jobs it was doing.

NAZIS FIRE 7,250 ONE TON ROBOTS 'AGAINST BRITAIN

LONDON, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Germans have sent about 7,250 flying bombs, each carrying a ton of explosive, against London and southern England, the government disclosed tonight as the robot barrage resumed after a lull of several daylight hours.

A joint report from the ministries of air and home security estimated the Germans fired 5,250 robots from the beginning of the attacks in mid-June until the end of July, and another 2,000 during the first three weeks of August.

The British information service said flying bomb salvos had reached such a pitch that 17,000 homes were being destroyed or damaged by them every 24 hours.

LINEN AND $112 STOLEN.

Twenty pairs of pillowcases, three dozen dishtowels, a watch, a ring, and $112 in currency were stolen by burglars who broke into her apartment yesterday, Mrs. Pearl Dieterich, 1200 Wellington av., told police.

SOVIETS SMASH 28 MILES THRU FOE IN ROMANIA

Chisinau and Barlad Fall in Drive.

LONDON, Aug. 25 [Friday]—(AP). Sweeping thru hundreds of towns and capturing thousands of Germans and Romanians in a 28 mile advance, two powerful Russian armies yesterday plunged to within 58 miles of the Galati gap, last enemy defense line barring the way to the heart of capitulated Romania.

Soviet front reports said the axis was collapsing after the desertion of Romanian troops.

Five major strongholds, Chisinau [Kishinev], Moldavian capital; Roman, Bacau, Husi, and Barlad, fell in swift succession to the Russians—and with the seizure of Barlad the Red army was less than 60 miles from the Danube river and 135 miles from Bucharest, the capital.

47,000 Taken Prisoner.

Yesterday alone the Russian armies took 25,000 prisoners, Moscow's broadcast bulletin said, for a combined total of 47,000, in a whirlwind five day offensive.

Malinovsky's troops captured 10,000 prisoners yesterday, and Tolbukhin's men took 15,000, among them Maj. Gen. Werner Klepp, commander of the German 9th infantry division. He was the 29th Nazi general seized since the summer offensive began.

The Germans and Romanians already have lost more than 25,000 killed in the first three days of the southern offensive, bringing to 853,886, the number of axis troops slain or captured since Russia began the summer offensive June 23.

Dispatches via Switzerland said the German 8th army between the Prut and Seret rivers was in imminent danger of being engulfed by the defection of Romania, and that the Nazi 6th army in southern Romania also was threatened with entrapment by the Russian detachments pouring down along the eastern side of the Carpathian mountains.

Stalin Announces Victories.

Two orders of the day by Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced the quick Russian victories by Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army and Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine army.

Malinovsky's right wing, driving down the Czernowitz-Bucharest trunk railway which skirts the Carpathian mountain wall, captured the rail city of Roman, and plunged on 26 miles to take Bacau, 37 miles northwest of conquered Barlad. Husi, a stronghold 36 miles northeast of Barlad, also was swept up.

Malinovsky's forces are descending swiftly toward Focsani in order to break thru the "Galati gap" and race on into the Balkans, sealing off wavering Bulgaria and aiming westward toward Hungary and Austria.

Barlad and Bacau are about 115 miles northeast of the Ploesti oil wells. These wells, so long a prop for the Nazi war machine, have been knocked out by American and British bombers.

Action on Other Fronts.

On other sectors of the 1,300 mile front from the Black sea up to the Baltic the Red army's progress was steady.

Driving a wedge between Warsaw and German East Prussia, Gen. G. F. Zakharov's 2d White Russian army seized 27 localities between the German strongholds of Lomza and Ostrow-Mazowiecka. His troops captured the rail city town of Sniadowo, eight miles south of Lomza, and Prosnica, six miles northeast of Ostrow-Mazowiecka.

ALLIED FORCES SCORE GAINS ON ITALIAN FRONTS

ROME, Aug. 24 (AP).—Taking advantage of lessening enemy resistance in the upper Arno valley southeast of Florence, British and Indian troops have advanced and captured several important points, including Mount Foresto, it was announced today.

Polish and Italian troops in the Adriatic sector established firm positions on the south bank of the Metauro river 12 miles inland from the Adriatic coast. German losses were reported high in that sector, where 800 prisoners had been taken by the Poles in 10 days.

Nazi patrols were active in the area immediately north of Florence.

[Germany's broadcast war report yesterday said: "In Italy, there was no major fighting action apart from lively scouting on both sides. In the Adriatic, speedboats torpedoed an enemy torpedo boat in the Ancona roadstead. In the Aegean sea, our submarine chasers have sunk two enemy submarines."]

NAZIS, FASCISTS STILL FIGHTING IN MARSEILLE

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MARSEILLE, France, Aug. 24.—Street fighting still raged today in Marseille as allied troops and armor continued to sweep in and Germans and French Fascists resisted from their last posts on the water front. Mopping up was an arduous and dangerous job as the enemy fighters, afraid of summary execution if captured, were choosing to die in battle.

Shells and sniper fire poured down the famed Canebiere, Marseille's main street, in both directions as the enemy held the forts on the south near the old port and French soldiers and loyal citizens struck from positions on the thorofare, adjoining streets and houses along the way. One hectic battle occurred around the Lycee of Sciences where some French Forces of the Interior accompanied by myself and other American correspondents were concentrated. From neighboring buildings Doriot's Fascist followers poured small arms fire into the Lycee and the Maquis and loyal citizens shot back.

Fascists Face Execution.

Windows were smashed and walls were pitted with bullet holes before the struggle ended and the gendarmerie moved in to seize the Fascists. Most of the latter face execution.

Yesterday I came in with American tanks that clattered down the Canebiere in the evening dusk.

Nearly every upper story above the cafes and shops which line the north-south direction of the Canebiere was a nest of Maquis and Marseille citizenry sending small arms fire toward the German positions. The liberated Frenchmen are particularly incensed because the Germans are being assisted by Doriot's Vichy followers. The Vichyites know that most of them probably face death if captured and are operating sniper posts against their own countrymen.

Shell Misses Writer.

Sherman tanks, manned by Frenchmen, came down the Canebiere yesterday firing at the old gray battlements of the Fort Nicolas stronghold. German fire—88s and smaller shells—came streaming down the wide lanes. One of those tracer shells winged a few feet above my helmet as I skulked by the side of a battered building.

One exuberant and quick fingered Maquis gave a bad moment to myself and three other American correspondents — Herbert Matthews of the New York Times, Reynolds Packard of United Press, and Pvt. George Dorsey of the army's Stars and Stripes. We were wearing American helmets which resemble the German headgear much more than do the French helmets and this Maquis cocked his rifle and was ready to let go when our shouts of "Americans" made him change his mind.

"O, well," this wild eyed Frenchman said to us, "I killed a German three hours ago." We wondered if that victim might have been a luckless American.

Americans Cheered.

French advance units burst into Marseille at 8:30 yesterday morning, coming from the east. I came in with a party later, dodging thru long lines of tanks. Those first to come in found themselves cheered madly by the populace of Marseille and contingents of Maquis and there was singing and cries of "Vive la France." As small detachments of American observers moved in, they received an even more enthusiastic greeting and "Vive les Americains" were the shouts at their recognition. American flags materialized everywhere, taking a place of honor beside the tricolor.

As I came in with more Americans the acclaim had been resumed. We rode down the Boulevard Madeline receiving and giving the V for victory sign. Adults and children hung onto our car. They offered us wine and brandy and beer. The beer wasn't very good.

REPORT BRITAIN AND U. S. STUDY BULGAR TERMS

Hear Balkan Nation Bids for Peace.

LONDON, Aug. 25 [Friday]—(AP).—Peace terms for Bulgaria are under official consideration in London and Washington, D. C., it was reported in authoritative circles here today.

A representative of the Bulgarian government submitted his country's proposals thru Hughe M. Knatchbull-Hugessen, the British ambassador to Turkey, these reports said.

Russia, not at war with Bulgaria, is being kept informed and it is believed no official statement will be made until a decision is reached.

"Negotiation Out of Question."

While official comment was lacking, it was regarded as certain that negotiation with Bulgaria is out of the question and that unconditional surrender will be required. Other allied demands probably will include withdrawal of all Bulgarian troops from invaded and seized territories, removal of Fascists from office, and liberalization of the government.

The Russians have been bringing peace pressure on Bulgaria, whose frontiers were laid wide open by the Red army advance into Romania.

Ban Hungary Parties.

LONDON, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Nazi controled puppet regime of Hungary today ordered the dissolution of all political parties, apparently fearing intrigue to take Hungary out of the war.

The cabinet order was published in the official gazette and as reported by DNB, German official news agency, decreed that every political party "irrespective of its political outlook," must dissolve at once.

Property belonging to former party organizations was frozen pending further disposition. Severe penalties were provided for violations.

Report Disorders in Greece.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 25 [Friday].—Reports received here today said 1,500 Greeks had been arrested in Athens, with the puppet government appealing for order and the Nazis threatening to arrest 15,000. No further details were available.

Finn Minister Goes Home.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Finnish minister to Sweden, G. A. Gripenberg, suddenly departed by air today for Helsinki in a journey obviously connected with efforts to get Finland out of the war. Reliable quarters said, however, that "as far as we know, the Finnish government has made no attempt directly to contact Moscow up to this morning." It was Gripenberg's second trip to Helsinki in two weeks.

Opinion here was that Romania's exit from the war might hasten action by Baron Mannerheim, president and marshal of Finland. Finnish sources said he had been "clearing the decks for an armistice."

1,900 HEAVY U. S. BOMBERS POUND 21 ENEMY BASES

LONDON, Aug. 24 (AP).—More than 1,900 heavy bombers—the greatest number ever dispatched by the United States strategic air forces in Europe—struck at Nazi oil production centers in Germany and Czechoslovakia today.

More than 1,300 Flying Fortresses and Liberators from British bases and approximately 600 heavies from Italy delivered the coördinated attacks of the 8th and 15th air forces.

An estimated 8,000 tons of bombs were poured on at least 21 objectives stretching from the great Baltic port of Kiel on thru Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, and French and Dutch ports.

Twenty-five bombers and five fighters of the British-based 8th air force failed to return, but two of the bombers landed in Sweden.

Most of the 25 British-based bombers were lost to heavy flak, altho some fighter opposition was encountered. Escort fighters, numbering 750, shot down 10 German planes and bomber gunners bagged two. The fighters also destroyed 14 grounded Nazi planes. One enemy craft was shot down by Lt. Gerald Tyler of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Raiders from British bases battered industrial targets at Kiel and synthetic oil plants, one refinery, bomber-fighter assembly and plane engine plants, two German air force stations, and a radio equipment factory across Germany and into Czechoslovakia.

The Italian based 15th air force attacked Czech oil refineries at Kolin, 40 miles east of Prague, and Parbudice, 55 miles east of Prague. They also hit Hungary and northern Italy.

TANK MEN FROM CHICAGO HELP BEAT NAZI BEST

3d Division Feat Wins Name 'Spearhead.'

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THIRD ARMORED DIVISION HDQ., France, Aug. 22 [Delayed].—In the bright sunlight at 11 a. m. on Aug. 18 Sgt. Don J. Ekdahl, Spencer, Ia., clambered down from his Sherman tank on the road between Fromentel and Putanges. His white teeth cut a grinning patch across his grimy face as he shook hands with a British lieutenant.

Minutes later, back at division headquarters, another sergeant put down his radio headset and said, "Our forces have linked up with the British north of Fromentel. Both outfits shot up some German tanks before they had a chance to shake hands." Thus, inside of the bloody Argentan-Falaise pocket where the cream of Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge's German forces was being skimmed by the allies, the 3d armored division ended one of the hardest fights any American tank division had been called on to make. It culminated a fighting march of 156 miles that won it the name of the "Spearhead division."

Many Are Chicagoans.

It might also be called the "Midwest division," for most of its men come from the midwest. Hundreds call Chicago home.

Since their first action on June 29, five days after coming over the beaches, the 3d armored has had numerous tough engagements. But there was never such savage fighting as they encountered at Ranes and Fromentel, in the opinion of the division commander. He should know. It was this command of his which cut open the pocket when Lt. Gen Omar N. Bradley broke the German line west of St. Lo, an action which won him his present command.

When the division commander spoke of meeting the stiffest possible resistance he meant this: tanks and genadiers from Hitler's best, the 1st SS [elite] Adolf Hitler panzer division, the 2d panzer division and the 9th SS and 12 SS Hitler Jungend division. Their combined strength in this battle more than equaled the full strength of a panzer division.

Nazis Toss In More.

The Germans were trying to hold open the southern end of the Argentan-Falaise pocket long enough to let their colleagues escape the allied crusher. In addition to these outfits in the later days of fighting the 3d armored tangled with the 2d SS Das Reich division, the 10th SS Frundsberg division, the 17th SS Goetz von Berlichen division and the panzer Lehr division, once the best equipped of all German divisions.

To these enemy troops add elements or whole parts of 14 other German divisions which the 3d has fought since helping open the St. Lo breakthru on July 26.

From this potpourri of Germans the 3d has taken 5,113 prisoners, an unusual feat for an armored force, which usually has no time for this, and has killed about 2,500.

Many of these Germans died in trying to hold Ranes and Fromentel. Twice the 3d captured Ranes in two days and nights of close range tank battles. Once it was driven out.

There was a similar fight at Fromentel, which was not secured until Aug. 15. The town had been captured twice but the 3d was driven out after the first capture, not by the Germans but by friendly planes bombing the town in the belief that the Germans still held it.

A Fight to Finish.

Severe fighting as a descriptive term is, of course, relative. In this case it was described by the colonel commanding a task force:

"When you attack a strongpoint defended by 35 Germans and you kill off five or six, you usually find the rest of them surrendering to your superiority. But these babies of the 1st SS and other panzer units were not surrendering. We had to go in and kill them. And that meant that instead of four we had to kill 35 Germans. The men in our tanks killed so many Germans at close range that our boys became ill from taking part in the carnage.

Fighting like this meant, too, that the 3d division took heavy losses. Sometimes they lost lieutenant colonels, majors, captains, and other key personnel, but it kept on with the job.

"I cannot visualize a position in which I would order a retreat," said a general. "Any time the high command gives us an order to seize an objective, that objective must be important to the big picture. So we go out and take it. If we get shoved off, we go out again. And we will keep on attacking with every trick we have learned until the objective is taken."

Two last incidents will serve to illustrate this division's recent record. One was taken from the journal of an anti-aircraft outfit used to defend the division headquarters, normally considered to be in the rear.

"From 0030 to 0105 hours [12:30 a. m. to 1:05 a. m.] the area around the C. P. [command post] was heavily attacked by enemy aircraft. Flares were dropped directly over C. P. and bombs were dropped thruout the area. There were no damage or casualties. During the night a battery of company B with four or five enlisted men destroyed a Mark IV. tank, several half tracks, volswagens [jeeps], numerous ammunition and gasoline trucks, killed two and captured nine. One enemy was killed with a hatchet while climbing out of a tank."

Victory at 25 Yards.

One could write reams about tank crews, about engineers who built bridges under fire and cleared mine fields, about reconnaissance vehicles out in front of heavier armor, about platoon leaders drawing straws to see who should have the honor of leading a column down hazardous hedgerows, about tanks fighting at ranges of 75 to 100 yards.

But this incident happened to a tank destroyer. It engaged two German tanks at 25 yards away and scored a double victory.

Two shots from the T. D. broke the frontal armor of a German Panther. But when the sergeant tank commander dismounted to help 10 German wounded he was killed by ammunition exploding in the German tank.

Just Before German Snipers Opened Fire

Seconds after this picture was made in France, the house in the background erupted flame as Nazi snipers opened fire. The soldiers in road fell under a hail of bullets as the photographer dived into a ditch. [Acme Telephoto: From U. S. Navy.]

BERLIN CLAIMS ALLIES HALTED AT LISIEUX, ALONG SEINE FRONT

Of France, yesterday's broadcast German war bulletin said:

"In Normandy, our troops in the Touques sector repulsed all enemy attacks against the Lisieux area and south thereof. An enemy fighting group which pushed forward to west of Evreux in a northern direction was attacked by our tank formations and brought to a standstill. Squadrons of battle planes supported this fighting and attacked with good effect enemy traffic across the river as well as columns of tanks and vehicles.

"Two [allied] Seine bridges were destroyed by bomb hits. In air engagements 12 enemy planes were brought down.

"Northwest of Mantes, our troops have thrown back the North Americans near La Roche Guyon across the Seine with severe losses and mopped up the river bend south of this place.

"Northeast of Fontainebleau, enemy forces which had crossed the Seine were repulsed to the river bank in a counter-attack. In the night, formations of bombers carried out an effective attack on Evreux. Big fires and explosions were observed."

FINDS FRENCH INTERIOR CALM UNDER PATRIOTS

BY CHARLES S. FOLTZ.

I have just visited a region where the tricolor floats and the only army is the F. F. I.

Thousands of towns and cities such as Hendaye are defended by citizens and soldiers of the new France.

I arrived in Hendaye at sundown. Altho the curfew still keeps citizens indoors from 8 p. m. to 8 a. m., I was able to borrow a bicycle and visit a number of friends and acquaintances in both Hendaye and the outskirts of St. Jean de Luz.

Pour Out Their Hearts.

They said I was the only out of town friend they had seen in years. They poured out their hearts to me. All knew of the reports of the fall of Paris, but they neither rushed out to kill collaborationists nor spent the night carousing in cafes.

In Hendaye and St. Jean de Luz the F. F. I. is by no means a Coxey's army of ne'er-do-wells nor is it composed only of those Frenchmen who obtained on already had arms. It is a carefully chosen army tried and found capable thru four years of the toughest kind of fighting—underground warfare against the occupying army.

It has no uniform other than the F. F. I. armband, but even without that all Hendaye recognizes the men who fought for freedom.

French Leader Talks.

I talked to Paul Picq, a member of the F. F. I. committee of Hendaye. He told me that until now there has been no troop landing at St. Jean de Luz, altho this morning an allied warship and freighter entered the harbor.

[The German radio said yesterday that allied troops had carried out a small landing operation "south of Biarritz," which is 10 miles north of St. Jean de Luz.]

Picq said the allied landing in the Bordeaux area until this morning was limited to a landing at Verdon, on the mouth of the Gironde northwest of Bordeaux, and at Arcachon, southwest of Bordeaux.

[In London it was said that the capture of Bordeaux was reported by the French radio at Algiers yesterday as allied armies, aided by the F. F. I., spread over southern France from border to border.]

Nazi-Spain Links Cut.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—All German communications with Spain except by radio have been cut as a result of Free French control of the French-Spanish border, it was learned today from official sources.

The German Lufthansa has stopped all flights to Madrid and Lisbon, and German officials in both Spain and Portugal can contact Berlin only by radio.

BRITAIN SETS UP BOARD TO SPUR RUSSIA STUDIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24.—To insure adequate facilities in Britain for the study of Russian literature and institutions, an official committee has been set up under sponsorship of the British foreign office.

The provision of library and research facilities and the organization of Russian studies in universities and other high educational institutions and the possibility of exchanging students and teachers with Russia after the war will be considered.

GREATER ALLIED, SLAV ATTACKS NEAR, TITO SAYS

Hails Arrival of Yanks' Military Mission.

BY JOSEPH MORTON.

[Representing the combined U. S. Press.]

MARSHAL TITO'S HDQ. IN YUGOSLAVIA, Aug. 22 [Delayed]—(AP).—Plans for much closer coördination of military operations by allied forces in Italy and the national army of liberation in Yugoslavia were worked out at the recent conferences of Prime Minister Churchill, Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson and himself, Marshal Tito told this correspondent today.

Joint operations by British and American ground troops and the Partisan army may be expected on a growing scale in the near future, he said.

Noting that detachments from the three forces already had carried out several actions together on the Dalmatian Islands, he said the necessity for secrecy forbade a more detailed discussion of plans.

10 Days of Parleys.

Secluded in his new headquarters, and garrisoned by hand picked British ground troops and Commandos as well as his own men, the marshal was elbow deep in work at the time of the interview.

Ten days of almost continuous discussion and negotiation with allied military and diplomatic leaders and members of the royal government had tired him noticeably. Matters discussed at his conferences with Churchill were principally military. He said among other things an agreement was reached on increased shipments of armaments to the national liberation army and on increased evacuation of wounded from the country.

Marshall Tito said he conferred also with Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commanding general of the Mediterranean allied air forces and R. A. F. Vice Marshal William Elliott, commander of the newly formed Balkan air force. He also visited Gen. Harold Alexander at his headquarters and spent a day on the Island of Capri as the guest of Brig. Gen. William J. Donovan, director of the United States office of strategic services which has just sent a military mission to Yugoslavia.

Mission Long Needed.

This mission had been needed a long time and was very important, Marshal Tito said, tho it took a very long time in America for the truth about the real situation in Yugoslavia to be known. While in Italy, the marshal reported, he and Dr. Ivan Subasic, prime minister of the Yugoslav government in Cairo, reached complete accord on the use of remaining units of the royal Yugoslav navy.

He and Dr. Subasic also agreed that the 2,000 men of the royal Yugoslav army in the mideast would fight as a unit under the supreme allied command in the Mediterranean and that the royal Yugoslav air force squadron likewise stationed in the mideast would be permitted to fight intact.

A special commission comprised of three representatives of the national liberation committee and three of the royal government will handle matters pertaining to Yugoslavian gold deposits frozen abroad, Tito said, using them as security for loans to finance the common war effort.

He and Dr. Subasic likewise agreed on plans for obtaining assistance from the allies' relief rehabilitation administration.

The marshal stressed that the basic foundation agreement of June 16 under which all the negotiations have been carried out remains unchanged.

231 AMERICAN SHIPS IN RIVIERA ATTACK, FORRESTAL REVEALS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—Navy Secretary Forrestal back from a tour of the European fighting fronts, reported today that 231 American ships, including 60 warcraft, participated in landings on the southern coast of France.

The battleships Texas, Arkansas, and Nevada topped the list of American craft under command of Vice Adm. H. K. Hewitt. Others included the cruisers Quincy, Augusta, and Tuscaloosa; the light cruisers Brooklyn, Marblehead, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, and Omaha; the escort aircraft carriers Tulagi and Kasaan Bay and 47 destroyers. He did not identify the destroyers except to say that one was the Plunkett which he reported "had her stern blown off by a German bomb at Anzio last spring, but it now back in the ring."

In addition, he said American craft in the big invasion operation included 12 assault transports and 159 other ships. He said that French, Canadian, and British forces also participated in the action which took approximately 1,000 ships across the Mediterranean and in magnitude was "second only to" the invasion of Normandy.

CHURCHILL MET BY ITALY CHIEFS AND UMBERTO

ROME, Aug. 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill met Crown Prince Umberto, ruler of Italy as lieutenant general of the realm, at a luncheon Wednesday with Noel Charles, the British minister, it was officially announced today.

Later Churchill received the entire Italian government, representing all parties, for an informal conversation at the British embassy.

The announcement said a conversation between Churchill and Premier Ivanoe Bonomi at the British embassy Tuesday was "long and cordial." The announcement made no mention of Churchill and Marshal Pietro Badoglio conferring privately, but an Italian bulletin published in Roman newspapers today reported they did so.

ELMWOOD PARK HERO HELPS KILL 5 NAZIS IN ITALY

The army yesterday told of the gallantry of Staff Sgt. Eric F. Leitner of Elmwood Park, who in two actions March 26 in Italy helped kill five Germans, captured one, and enabled five wounded Yanks to be successfully evacuated. He was awarded the silver star for the first action and the oak leaf cluster for the second, which took place three hours later.

At 2 a. m., Leitner led a four man patrol toward a house used as an enemy observation post. Leaving the others behind, he advanced alone within 35 yards of the house and surprised an enemy machine gun nest. He killed one gunner with his rifle, captured another, and helped kill three others who fled and were fired on by his patrol. A short time later he shouted false orders in German and caused a large number of Germans to retreat from the house. The house was captured.

Three hours later, Sgt. Leitner covered the evacuation of five wounded members of an infantry outpost. In a duel at close range, he killed a German using a machine pistol and wounded an enemy machine gunner. Leitner's sister, Mrs. Freida Jorden, lives at 2313 77th av., Elmwood Park.

POILUS OF 1918 CELEBRATE NEW PARIS VICTORIES

Songs of Paris and France echoed thru the Chez Emile restaurant, 180 E. Delaware pl., last night as 20 members of the Camarades de Combat de Chicago, French veterans of World War I., gathered to celebrate allied victories around Paris. More than 100 of their French friends gathered with them for the occasion.

The main toast to the freeing of Paris from Nazi domination was given by Henri de Lageneste, French consul in Chicago.

The Camarades formerly had 70 members in Chicago, but this number has been reduced to about 30 because many returned to Europe to fight for France's freedom.

U. S. TASK FORCE WHEELS NORTH FROM GRENOBLE

French Patriots Clear Area of Nazis.

ROME, Aug. 24 (AP).—A highly mobile American task force of tanks, motorized infantry and artillery sped northward beyond Grenoble today, along highways already largely cleared of the enemy by French patriots—racing to join forces with Gen. Eisenhower's allied armies in northern France.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, said American troops had driven into St. Julien on the Swiss border 70 miles north of Grenoble and little more than 120 miles from the Rhine border of Germany. The report, not confirmed by allied sources, placed the lightning column some 210 miles inland from the beaches of southern France and only 185 miles from a junction with American armor southeast of Paris.]

Patriots were reported in full control of the area from Grenoble north to the Swiss border, having cut off whatever German troops remain in southern and central France from communication with Nazi forces in northern Italy.

Fight On at Toulon.

Except in and near the naval base of Toulon, where a trapped German garrison fought from well prepared positions, the only enemy opposition to the swift movement of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's 7th army columns was coming from small assortments of Nazi troops scraped together in some localities

Thrown piecemeal into the hopeless task of trying to hold back the powerful American and French forces, these small units were being destroyed as fast as they appeared. Allied prison pens were filling so rapidly that an accurate count of captives was impossible. More than 17,000 had been tabulated.

Allied engineers rushed into the great port of Marseille close on the heels of conquering troops and began assessing the damage done to harbor installations by bombs and demolitions. Work began immediately to whip France's biggest port back into shape to handle a tremendous flow of allied reënforcements and supplies.

Sweet Revenge for French.

Reëntry into Marseille was a sweet triumph for the French troops, among whom were many who sailed from the same port to refuge in North Africa when the Nazi panzer hordes crashed across their homeland more than four years ago.

There were unconfirmed reports that the Germans had sunk some vessels in the approaches to Marseille harbor, but it appeared certain that possession of the port would relieve the allied supply services of the necessity of unloading thousands of tons of supplies on beaches from shallow draft landing craft.

Pockets Hold Out.

Allied headquarters reported tonight that small pockets of Nazis were holding out in the harbor zone, but these were expected to be ered shortly.

The nightly allied announcement said American forces striking westward across the Rhone delta toward Arles gained nearly 10 miles during the day. The Yank column speeding north from Grenoble made "further advances."

A field dispatch from Joseph Dynan, Associated Press war correspondent, reported that the German garrison of Toulon still held eight or 10 of the 21 forts guarding the approaches to the besieged port and that the Americans were sending up artillery to help knock out these troublesome batteries.

Some 200 Germans were taken prisoner when the little island of Porquerolles outside Toulon harbor surrendered after being subjected to a bombardment by an American heavy cruiser.

PLATES DUSTED OFF, 9 SEABEES SLIDE FOR HOME

Camp Parks, Shoemaker, Cal., Aug. 24 (AP).—One of the nine happy Seabee chief petty officers related today how they promoted the use of a strange truck, visited a native house in the Southwest Pacific, enjoyed a beautiful sunset and a fine chicken dinner.

It was dark when they headed back for camp and the driver was a bit puzzled by the arrangement of the brake and gear handles. As he inched the truck cautiously down the steep grade, the Seabees slid along the smooth steel bottom and out into the dusty highway.

First there were nine in the truck, then eight, then seven, six, five, four. The driver drove on until the remaining three chiefs screamed like madmen for him to stop. Unaware he was operating a dump truck, the driver stuck his head out of the cab window and asked innocently: "Does some one want off?"

Nazis Defend Paris as Allies Close in on City

ALLIED TANKS DRIVE TO AID OF PARIS PATRIOTS

Big Guns Move Up to Battle Nazis.

in the city between the patriots and the Nazis. The reports indicated that a battle was raging around a French prefecture in which F. F. I. forces and French mobile guards, who went over to the F. F. I. on Saturday, were believed to be holding out.

The situation of the French fighters added impetus to Gen. Le Clerc's move on Paris. There were reports that the French within Paris, while being short of food, desperately needed help from the French armor.

Villagers Cheer Wildly.

Today, as yesterday, all along their line of march the armored vehicles were cheered wildly as they rolled thru villages. Often there had been a brisk fight on the outskirts of the town. And almost before the shelling ceased the happy French rushed into the streets to deck the tanks with flowers and hug and kiss any soldier whose vehicle stopped.

Except for the seriousness of the battle, the French advance on Paris resembled more a gala holiday.

Even as the allies fought toward the city reports were broadcast by the British Broadcasting company that Paris had been liberated from within and that Le Clerc had patrols within the city. The men handling his tanks and guns rushing to the aid of the patriots made many caustic remarks on the subject.

Paris an Army Headache.

In moving today to free the French capital, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley was by no means being diverted from his primary objective, the destruction of the German 7th army.

Paris, for the army group commander, always has been a side issue which to a military leader could never be more than a headache. It involves, among other things, the responsibility for feeding and supplying this city of 3,000,000. As soon as Bradley's men capture the city, our trucks will begin rolling in with Paris' immediate needs: Thousands of tons of coal to provide fuel to run the city's utilities and thousands of tons of rations for the populace, which is reported to be hard pressed for food.

The utilities, altho curtailed during the German occupation, are reported to be in good condition. There is no indication that the water supply has been impaired or that the Germans had a chance to destroy the electric light plants. Transportation is expected to be a major problem for the populace.

[Explaining its premature report of Paris' liberation on Wednesday, the Columbia Broadcasting System yesterday said: "The story [by Charles Collingwood] reached London in typewritten form. With it was a film recording made by Collingwood. It was the first time in the experience of our London office that such a record had been accompanied by a script and it was assumed, it now appears erroneously, that the script had passed army field censorship. The radio censor in London passed the script upon the statement of Columbia men there that they had assumed such prior censorship had taken place." Tho Collingwood's original dispatch did not carry a Paris dateline, the story distributed to the press did. Supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary force described as a "pure but serious" error the manner in which the Collingwood dispatch reached the air without having been passed by or submitted to the supreme command censorship.]

1,221 YANKS KILLED OR MISSING IN 5 DAYS OF S. FRANCE BATTLE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—Secretary of War Stimson today reported the first five days of the invasion of southern France cost the army 2,973 casualties. The five days began with the landings early Aug. 15. The killed and missing number 1,221 and the hospitalized 1,754.

The latest over-all battle casualty figure for he services on the basis of reports to next of kin, is 317,846. For the army, Stimson put the total at 261,589 up to Aug. 6. The navy said its most recent casualty summation was 56,257.

In the Mediterranean area, Stimson said, ground and air forces casualties of the American army from he first landing on the Italian mainland thru Aug. 7 were 17,035 killed, 54,327 wounded, and 20,411 missing.

The army aggregate of 261,589 included 48,880 killed, 125,931 wounded, 42,956 missing and 43,822 officially reported prisoners.

This compares with 244,775 announced a week ago as of July 29, broken down as follows: 45,491 killed; 113,977 wounded; 42,102 missing, and 43,205 prisoners.

The navy's casualty total of 56,257 was divided as follows: 23,135 killed; 19,063 wounded; 9,593 missing, and 4,466 prisoners. Comparative figures announced Aug. 17 were 54,699; 22,665; 17,819; 9,746, and 4,469.

PUT EUROPEAN FARM RELIEF ON PRIORITY BASIS

Britain to Give Seed Under Allied Plan.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24.—There will be three phases in the agricultural reconstruction of Europe's liberated countries under a system of priorities, John Russell, chairman of the agricultural subcommittee of the allied nations rehabilitation and relief administration, said today.

Preliminary plans, which already are far advanced, Russell said, have to do with farm production under allied military occupation resumption of pre-war productivity, and long term reconstruction, the last under the supervision of individual nations concerned.

Emphasis will be given to vegetable production, that is grain foods as distinguished from animal or meat production, Russell said, because vegetable foods always are more speedily produced and give a greater yield of nutritive value for a given amount of labor.

Vegetable production will be closely integrated with cattle breeding, however, Russell said, inasmuch as cattle will supply needed fertilizer and vegetable production will provide feed for cattle.

The contribution of the United Kingdom likely will be seed potatoes and seed corn, Russell explaining that it would be difficult for Britain to supply farm machinery to liberated countries because of the necessity of maintaining its own production.

In making preliminary arrangements it has been necessary for the allies to survey the pre-war production of individual countries, Russell said, to estimate their present capacities, and to compute what increases are possible for each with the proper equipment. On the basis of these studies, farm supplies and equipment will be distributed according to a schedule of priorities.

CHINESE ATTACK IN PLAN TO BALK JAP OFFENSIVE

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Chinese have redoubled their diversionary blows along 370 miles of the Yangtze river between Hankow and Ichang in an attempt to distract the Japanese from their drive to cut China in half, the high command said tonight.

The high command said the situation had improved in Hunan province, farthest point of enemy advance southward along the railway to Canton, with attacks against the enemy flanks apparently making progress. The Chinese also fought into the Japanese stronghold of Kingshan, 75 miles northwest of Hankow, where street fighting was still raging, the high command reported.

A report from the Salween front, where forces in southwest China are trying to join hands with allied forces in Burma, said the Chinese had liberated more than 150 populated places and more than 10,000 square miles in the world's highest and toughest battleground since May 11.

GERMAN FLIGHT BACK TO BORDER OF REICH HINTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24. — A Nazi spokesman tonight admitted the Germans are pulling their forces in France back "to the shortest possible line in front of the Reich frontier." Max Krull, military commentator of the official news agency, DNB, said:

"The German command is faced with the problem of developing new walls of resistance which will be proof against all assault. Concentration on a shortened line will mean an injection of added strength into the German western army and this is preferable to a state of affairs in which our formations are scattered over a wide area."

Expect "Surprises" by "Ike."

This Nazi admission was taken to indicate that the Germans intend to pull back to the Siegfried line and lent emphasis to a belief that, after an expected 72 hour "blackout" of definite news on events in France, Gen. Eisenhower may spring some surprises.

Heavy allied air attacks have enormously increased the difficulties of withdrawing the German troops to the Seine, another German commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, admitted. He said the Nazis now have only a limited number of roads at their disposal, while allied ground forces are trying to split the retreating Germans into new pockets.

Claims Yanks Pushed Back.

According to Sertorius, American troops who crossed the Seine at Melun and Corbeil, southeast of Paris, have been pushed back, tho other United States forces have crossed the Yonne river farther south.

In the Paris area, the Americans have probed forward with armored reconnaissance units only, said Alex Schmalfuss, German news agency war correspondent, over the Berlin radio.

"West and southwest of the French capital," he continued, "heavy fighting is going on against the terrorists. [French patriots]. South of Paris German rear guards have disengaged to the line of Corbeil-Fontainebleau. Heavy fighting is going on at Sens. The situation at Romilly and Troyes still is obscure."

Schmalfuss admitted the German formations behind Lisieux, Orbec, Conches, Evereux, Pacy and Vernon are "being hotly pursued by the enemy."

The Americans, he said, have penetrated with a massed tank wedge in a northerly direction beyond Bonneville up to the area southeast of Neubourg, south of Rouen.

TITO SENDING PISTOL TO LA GUARDIA AS TOKEN OF ESTEEM

MARSHAL TITO'S HDQ. IN YUGOSLAVIA, Aug. 24 (AP).—Marshal Tito is sending his pistol—which he carried thru three years of warfare in Yugoslavia's hills and mountains—to Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York as a token of esteem.

Dr. Sava Kosanovic, minister of the interior in the new cabinet of the royal government who recently visited Tito at his headquarters, is carrying the gift.

In New York when he was appointed to his present post, Kosanovic was asked by La Guardia to deliver a message expressing the mayor's admiration of the Partisans' struggle.

TRACE OLD GUN USED IN KILLING MRS. WILLIAMS

Convict Says He Gave It to Policeman.

In 1933 Brown eloped with the daughter of Edward J. Maloney of Normal. Valanis acted as best man. The elopers spent their honeymoon in Valanis' home. However, when Brown and his bride returned to Normal, they were met by her father and a deputy sheriff, Charles E. Adams. Maloney objected to the elopement and tried to have Brown arrested on a robbery charge. A gun fight ensued. Brown, Maloney, and Adams were wounded, Adams fatally. Brown was tried for Adams' murder. Valanis appeared as a character witness in his behalf. Brown was convicted.

Policeman Valanis was questioned along with his sisters at the beginning of the Williams murder investigation. He has admitted knowing Brown, and also has admitted receiving from "three to six" guns from Brown as gifts. He also has admitted that one of these guns he "lent to Ellen for target practice." This was the weapon she used in the attempted dress shop robbery.

Denies Having Drake Gun.

Policeman Valanis strongly denies, however, that he has received from Brown, or any one else, the Drake murder gun.

Last night he was taken by First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley, Detective Chief Walter Storms, and Lt. Phil Breitzke to Stateville prison to confront his old friend and present accuser.

THE TRIBUNE turned its attention to the gun used in the Williams murder because it seemed to be the chief clew to the crime's solution. That Policeman Valanis, Ellen Valanis Bennett, and Anna Valanis also might be involved was a normal possibility for investigation by police made immediately after the slaying.

Last night THE TRIBUNE turned over to Crowley, Storms, and Breitzke full details of the investigation which led to the discovery that the gun used by the slayer of Mrs. Williams was a stolen revolver.

Lifer Repeats Story.

Brown, the lifer, in a sworn statement made to Crowley and Storms last night, repeated the story he had previously given to THE TRIBUNE, to T. P. Sullivan, state director of public safety, and Joseph Ragen, warden of Stateville penitentiary. Brown swore that he gave the .38 caliber Iver-Johnson hammerless revolver, stolen from a druggist in Bloomington, Ill., in January, 1933, to his friend, Valanis, then a rookie policeman. He said the gun was one of six which he gave to Valanis during the last week in January or the first week in February, 1933. Brown gave the guns to Valanis, he said, while he and two burglar companions were visiting with Valanis in Chicago. This visit was made several months before Brown shot and killed a deputy sheriff after taking part in another holdup with one of the burglars.

Brown's story that the Iver-Johnson revolver had been stolen from a drug store in Bloomington was verified to THE TRIBUNE and to Tom Piper, attached to Chief Sullivan's staff, Wednesday night. It was verified yesterday afternoon when the druggist identified the gun used in the Williams murder as the one stolen from his store. It was shown to him by Charles Wilson, director of the crime laboratory of the Chicago police department.

Every Clew Followed.

Working with THE TRIBUNE'S police reporters, I have investigated every aspect of the murder of Mrs. Williams. I have followed every clew, real or potential, insofar as was humanly and scientifically possible.

The story of our investigation divides easily into two chapters. Chapter I was related in the series of 10 articles I wrote for THE TRIBUNE recently summarizing my investigations and analyzing the murder.

The basic facts of the murder are well known. That around 6:30 p. m. of Jan. 19 in room 836 of the Drake hotel an unidentified woman wearing a black Persian lamb coat with something red in her hair or hat emerged from behind the bathroom door. She fired one shot at Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, younger daughter of the wealthy Mrs. Frank Starr Williams. She then fired three more shots. One of the three struck Mrs. Williams in the head. Mrs. Williams died 25 hours later.

Runs Out Crying for Help.

Mrs. Goodbody, who had been in the bathroom when fired upon, rushed out, saw her mother lying on the floor, and ran into the corridor calling for help.

There she found two men, one the guest of his employer who was staying in the hotel, the other a hotel waiter.

Three persons — Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Goodbody, and Stanley Cook, the guest — said they saw the woman. Mrs. Williams' words were incoherent and garbled.

The descriptions given by the three were vague and confusing. The woman's age was given variously as 35, 45, 50. Her hair was described as red, brown, gray. Her height was given as around 5 feet 2 inches or 3. She seemed to be stockily built. On only one matter were the three in agreement. The woman had on a black Persian lamb coat.

An immediate search was made for the gun. The service staircase was searched and yielded nothing. Ten hours later, at 4:25 o'clock the next morning, the gun, an Iver-Johnson .38 caliber five-shot hammerless break-open revolver with a blue steel finish was found on the service staircase near the fourth floor by Drake house detectives. It was broken as tho it had been hurled there. It bore no finger prints.

It was an old gun, manufactured in 1910. The four cartridges fired from it, all recovered, were found to be from 20 to 25 years old.

Who threw the gun there? The woman as she fled? An accomplice? Or had there ever been a fleeing woman at all?

I went to work. Those of you who read my analysis of the case know that I started at the beginning. I rented room 836 at the Drake. I lived there for weeks. I measured every inch of the bedroom and adjoining bathroom.

We reenacted the murder. I put together the statements of all the witnesses, found discrepancies, and tried to analyze them. I proved as true that which many had doubted; that an adult could have stood behind the bathroom door. I proved that such a person could have been undetected, until she chose to show herself, by some one seated on the toilet seat, as was Mrs. Goodbody.

Police Questioning Fails.

I showed how slender was every trail left by the murderess. A motive? There were countless motives, credible and fantastic. Money? Revenge? International intrigue? [Mrs. Williams' husband formerly had been attache at the American embassy in Japan.] Jealousy?

I told of all this in my findings. I told of the mysterious telephone call made from room 836 around 4:45 p. m. to The Prow, a near north side restaurant. Who made it? Mrs. Goodbody said her mother was not in the room at the time.

THE TRIBUNE told me to go ahead —to keep working. Here Chapter 2 begins.

I decided to start with the gun. I told THE TRIBUNE that in my mind it was the most important clew.

One of the suspects in the case was Ellen Bennett, the key clerk at the Drake. At the time of the murder the police held her and her sister, Anna Minck, informally for two days. They were held on the theory that the murder was committed by a prowler—and both had police records.

Other Holdup Recalled.

Anna Minck had a record as a prowler. And Mrs. Bennett, the clerk, had at one time been in a holdup. She had used a gun. She was the only suspect who had used a gun.

Now, Ellen Bennett's attempted holdup occurred back in 1939. She used a 25 caliber automatic. She said her brother, Adolph A. Valanis, gave her the gun. Valanis, in turn, said Walter Brown, a convict serving a life term at Joliet for murder, had given it to him some years ago.

The theory developing in my mind seemed worth a try: Valanis was a gun collector. He had given his sister one gun to use in a holdup. Why couldn't he have given her two?

We first tried to trace the gun to him thru its serial number. Now, all guns have serial numbers. The serial number of the murderer's gun was D-37449.

It is a general practice to register a gun's serial number with the name of the purchaser when it is sold, so we set to work to trace this gun's registry. Unfortunately, it was an old weapon, and the 1910 records were not extant. Nor could we find any trace of a more recent sale or transfer.

Tells Nothing to Police.

Then we thought of trying Walter Brown, the convict. The police had questioned him in the spring, but got nowhere.

So Tribune police reporters went down to see him. They went to Joliet with a representative from Chief Storm's office who took with him the murderer's gun.

They tell me this is what happened. Here are one reporter's own words:

"I went in first and talked to Brown. I told him he could be very helpful in solving this thing. I said that if Valanis lost the gun or gave it to some one else, he would not be involved as a participant in the murder but that it would be a good thing for Valanis as a policeman to have it all straightened out.

"I told him that if he had given that pistol to Valanis I wanted him to tell me so.

Makes Fuss Over Pistol.

"We talked at length, and he was finally shown the pistol. He made a fuss over it. He likes pistols. He fondled it as one would fondle a cat or a baby. He has owned many in his day. After all, he is in prison because when handcuffed he pulled a gun from beneath his belt and shot a deputy sheriff.

"He told me then that pistols had been his hobby. He told me that during prohibition he had had a speakeasy, The Garden Inn, outside Bloomington, and that often fellows would come in who wanted a drink but had no money. So he would buy their pistols or give them drinks for them.

"He told me he was handy in fixing them up. He looked at this one, and said, 'Gee, that's a sweet gun. I could have sold it for eight or 10 bucks.' Then he said, slowly, 'I gave Valanis a lot of guns.'"

The Tribune man tells me he left Brown with the idea that he wanted to trace the gun back as far as possible.

Four days later the reporter got a call from Warden Ragen at Joliet. The warden said Brown wanted to see him.

Tells of Giving Valanis Gun.

"I saw him again," the reporter tells me. "Brown said, 'Yeah, that's one of the pistols I gave Valanis. I gave him several, but I gave him that gun early in 1933. I either handed it to him and said, 'Here, you can have this' or I left it in his house. At that time I had six pistols.'"

Brown then went on to tell how he got the pistols. He said he had come up to Chicago early in 1933 with the Andrews brothers, Lester and Ollie. He didn't remember the date, but he said it was right after the biggest snowstorm he could remember. He and the brothers got stalled in Joliet, so they stole a car and drove to Chicago. Each of them had two pistols.

Then Brown went on to say:

"We got a room at the Dearborn hotel, on State just south of Harrison [the hotel since has been torn down]. The boys were afraid to walk around Chicago carrying guns, so they left their four with me. Then after a day or two they went back to Bloomington and left me with the guns.

"I left two of them across the street at a hockshop, and I gave Valanis one of the other guns, a little automatic. He gave me a tear gas gun, a little fountain pen thing. Then after these fellows went back to Bloomington I lived for a day or two at the Y. M. C. A. hotel at 8th and Wabash. I registered there either under my own name or under the name of Claude Barrett or James Callan. I may have signed my own. I think the Andrews signed their own.

Stays at Home Several Days.

"Then I went to Valanis' house and stayed there for several days."

Brown says it was after this that he went back to Bloomington and opened his speakeasy in partnership with his brother-in-law. His home was at 1003 S. Main st., Normal, but his speakeasy was on state route No. 2 near the airport, just across the line in Hudson township.

Later Brown told the reporter that Brown and his wife, Helen, went to Chicago and lived for a time with Valanis, but his wife's father induced her to leave him and go home to Bloomington. He didn't go back to Bloomington until July, and when he did he got into trouble. He went there, he said, to take his mother up to Pontiac where his brother, a prisoner, was to appear before the parole board. He never took his mother there. He called on his wife, and, he claims, his father-in-law, Maloney, a grocer, had a warrant served on him. The warrant charged him with participating in a cafe robbery in Clinton, Ill., with Ollie Andrews and an Arthur Merrill.

Brown said a deputy sheriff [Adams] served the warrant and handcuffed him, and while handcuffed he slipped the gun from beneath his belt and shot the deputy in the leg. Brown said the deputy refused to undergo an amputation, and died. Brown then was convicted of murder, altho he says it should have been manslaughter. Andrews was convicted of robbery, sentenced to Pontiac, and paroled in June, 1936.

Reveals Where He Got It.

But where did Brown get the Iver-Johnson gun he gave Valanis? How were we to know he was not fabricating the whole gun incident to double-cross his old friend, Valanis?

The reporter asked him that. He said the Iver-Johnson was one of the four guns the Andrews brothers had.

"I met them late in the winter of '32," Brown said. "They didn't have any guns when I first met them, but I know they were in on two robberies. They might have taken the pistols then. One place the robbed was a drug store in Peoria Heights. The other was a drug store on W. Chestnut st. in Bloomington. I know they were in those robberies. They told me so."

State officials then went to work. In Springfield Director Sullivan assigned R. Thomas Piper, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal identification and investigation, and James Christiansen, assistant superintendent, to the case.

They first went to Peoria Heights. They found that a drug store had been robbed around that time, late in 1932, but that no pistol had been taken.

Pistols Taken in Robbery.

Then they went to Bloomington. They found a drug store at 720 W. Chestnut st. operated by Carl Haffner. They asked him if he had lost any pistols in any robberies.

Haffner said he had. He said he had been held up three times and that his drug store had been burglarized once. He had lost two pistols in one robbery. He thought it occurred in the first week of January, 1933. [Files of the Bloomington Pantagraph showed that he was robbed on Jan. 3, 1933.]

"What kind of guns were they?" Piper asked.

Haffner described them readily. He said one was an Iver Johnson break-open hammerless. He described it carefully. He said the other was a small automatic.

"That's my gun," he said. "It looks like it. I think it's my gun."

Yesterday he was shown the gun proper by Wilson of the crime detection laboratory. He said he was reasonably positive it was his gun, but that he had no serial number. "It's certainly the exact image of mine," Haffner said.

Deputy Sells Gun to Him.

Haffner was asked where he got the gun. He said he bought it in 1926 or 1927 from a deputy sheriff after he had called Sheriff Moore when he saw two suspicious characters lurking in his store. The deputy told him he needed a gun for protection and sold him the Iver-Johnson.

Haffner said he had the gun perhaps six years, and kept it always in a drawer back of his prescription counter. The holdup men, whom he remembered only as wearing handkerchief masks, bound him to a chair, rifled his cash drawer of its contents, $20, and took the Iver Johnson.

As for the Andrews brothers, Piper thinks Lester probably is dead.

day and showed me the gun and asked if I wanted to buy it. I did not. A couple of days later when we were together Ollie had this Iver-Johnson with him and one other gun. His brother Lester had two more. I had two guns. We stole a car in Joliet and drove in to Chicago. We ran into a heavy snowstorm. We had to abandon our own car. We went to the Dearborn hotel in Chicago. The Andrews brothers gave me their pistols.

Sells Two Pistols.

"I took them all to my room for a couple of days and then the Andrews brothers went back to Bloomington and afterwards I sold two of the pistols to a man who ran a hotel across the street."

"Did you ever do business with him before?"

"Yes, I sold him guns on several occasions."

"Then you sold two? Did you sell your Iver-Johnson gun?"

"No, I did not."

"Did you sell them your own gun?"

"No, I sold only two of the guns I got from the Andrews brothers. I kept my own gun and I had this little automatic and the Iver-Johnson gun. I took the four guns and went to Valanis' home. After that I went back to Bloomington.

Recalls Fixing Weapon.

"Valanis liked the little automatic and I wanted to give it to him as a present. He gave me a tear gas fountain pen in payment for it. I fixed the timer of this gun a few days after his first baby was born. [That was on Jan. 30, 1933; the baby was named Lorraine.] Brown then went into a detailed description of the Iver-Johnson gun. He described its faults.

Then Valanis was brought in. He walked into the room, looked at Brown and they started to shake hands but Lt. Breitzke put Valanis on a chair facing Brown. The convict previously said he was raised with Valanis. They were in an orphanage together; a scout troop together; ran away from home together and had been pals all their lives. Valanis said to Brown: "You are looking good." Brown said: "I hope to stay that way."

Then Crowley started to explain to the policeman: "This man says he brought four guns to your home about the time your first baby was born; that he went there and brought flowers to your wife and he gave you a .25 automatic gun."

Put 3 in Drawer, He Says.

Brown interrupated:

"I put the other three pistols in a drawer and about two days later went home to Bloomington. When I got home I did not have any of the pistols and I thought I had left them all at Valanis' home. A couple of days later I went back to him and asked if I had left the three pistols in the drawer. He said, 'no.' Then I contacted the man who drove me home from Bloomington and he said he had taken out two guns and left them in the car."

Crowley: "The two guns he had, were they your guns?"

"Yes."

"Not the Iver-Johnson gun?"

"So far as I know I never took the Iver-Johnson gun out of the drawer at Valanis' home."

Valanis at one time interrupted Brown to say: "Brown brought two guns to my house that night; one was the pearl handled revolver; that was the gun used in the Park Ridge robbery by my sister; the other gun was the gun that had a safety on it. Those were the only two guns I saw."

Fails to Answer Question.

Crowley asked: "When Brown left did you see him take the guns from the drawer?"

The policeman did not answer. The convict then told where the drawer was; what part of the house it was in, and Valanis interrupted to say he did not remember the details because he did not keep things like that in his head. On several occasions he said Brown had come to his home and he had seen guns on each occasion.

Crowley asked: "Did you know what Brown's business was?"

Valanis answered: "No, I mind my own business and don't ask other people what their business is."

Explains Recollection.

Brown spoke up: "I had to make up my mind to connect all these little incidents. Valanis apparently has never had time to give it a thought."

Valanis repeated again that he only saw two guns—one a .25 automatic and the other gun with a safety. It was again brought out that the automatic was the gun used in the stickup by his sister, the key clerk in the Drake hotel at the time Mrs. Williams was slain.

Crowley, at the end of the session, said that Valanis would not be held and that no arrests had been made.

"I think we can corroborate much of Brown's story," Crowley said, "but he does not put the murder gun into Valanis' hands."

MacARTHUR WINS CAMPAIGN WITH GUINEA PINCER

Launches Offensive That Conquers Japanese.

(Gen. MacArthur hacks out air fields in the Buna area of New Guinea and puts the Japs into a nutcracker. This is another instalment of a series of articles condensed from the forthcoming book, "MacArthur and the War Against Japan.")

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[Copyright: 1944: By Chas. Scribner's Sons.]

Suddenly a fresh and dangerous threat faced MacArthur's strategic and absolutely necessary base at Moresby. The Japanese had decided to attempt a drive over the high Owen Stanley mountains from their new base at Buna, on the east coast. On July 29, one week after they had made their initial Buna landing, a column was advancing westward up the desperate Kokoda trail.

The attackers drove before them such Aussie outposts as they encountered, and it looked as if there was no way to check them. Hundreds of native porters, shipped from New Britain, carried their food and ammunition to them. Slashing, slogging their way over the trails, they drove ahead with unparalleled bravery and determination.

Kenney Arrives; Planes Lacking.

MacArthur felt certain that in the end nature itself would defeat them; that no force could cross these precipitous jungle tracks in sufficient strength and remain fresh enough to threaten the strong garrison he had collected at Moresby. But the picture was black.

About the time this daring Jap attack was launched, MacArthur had asked Washington that Maj. Gen. George Kenney be sent him to command his air forces.

"The air force here needs revamping and tightening up, George," MacArthur explained to Kenney when he arrived. Tireless Kenney shook it up from top to bottom, and swiftly it became MacArthur's good right arm—his striking fist. This 5th air force eventually was to be the terror of the skies, spreading death, destruction, and fear. But long and discouraging months would pass before the needed planes and men would be sent to the Pacific.

Air Forces Scattered.

In late July, 1942, MacArthur had a grand total of 466 planes in his American air force. They were scattered over dozens of air fields. Not one in five was mechanically ready to fly. Of 67 Fortresses exactly six were in full commission. It is an accepted fact that it is usually impossible to maintain in combat flight at any time more than 40 per cent of any total strength. The flying efficiency of the air force Kenney took over was considerably lower than that.

The garrisoning of Milne Bay was now rapidly progressing. With unerring judgment MacArthur had anticipated a Japanese attack in force on this strategic finger tip, and had prepared as best he could. He had sent down the major part of two Australian infantry brigades, and their commander had posted them to defend the priceless fields being rushed to completion.

On the night of Aug. 25 the Japanese landed. The fighting that followed was bloody and decisive. In the end, such Japanese as were not killed were forced to their boats.

Japs Smashed at Milne Bay.

MacArthur had fooled the enemy, for instead of finding an inadequate outpost, the Nip found himself hopelessly outnumbered and outclassed. The defeat was complete.

In the meantime, a couple of hundred miles on to the northward the weird drama of the Kokoda trail was unfolding in the dank forests and on the slippery western slopes of Owen Stanley range. The Japanese had reached a point in the mountain trail less than 30 miles from Moresby. They had little farther to go—a bare 30 miles. They had courage and fanatical devotion—but they were utterly exhausted.

Yet they were only a day or two away from their prize. A single day's march and they could have dominated the air fields on the outskirts of Moresby. Once the Japanese could get these fields, they could land their fighters and bombers, drive out the defenders, clean up lower New Guinea—and start the invasion of northeastern Australia.

Aussies Whip Invaders.

MacArthur was in supreme command, but his Diggers were directly under Lt. Gen. Rowell, an able leader who had been tested in the crucible of Greece and the middle east. MacArthur instructed him to check and then roll back the Japanese columns, regardless of cost.

As MacArthur had calculated, the Japanese were now completely exhausted. Their carriers deserted them, our air force relentlessly pounded them, and tall, gaunt Aussies struck back at them night and day. They did not wait to make a last stand, but in the end turned back toward Buna, denying mile by mile the long ghostly trail over the high ridges.

For the first time MacArthur was no longer threatened. For the moment he was the master of the land and the gray skies above these deadly purple mountains. Now was the time for him to close in and slug it out, with Buna as the prize.

As it would be thruout all the Guinea campaigns, the most difficult problem was communication and supply. MacArthur had to find a way to get his troops, guns, and equipment over this high Owen Stanley range, and plant them in the plain around Buna, on the eastern side of the mountains.

U. S. Infantry Flies In.

Already he had columns of his junglewise Aussies slogging back over the Kokoda trail, driving the Japanese rear guard before them. They were now marching down the trail on the eastern slopes, which led to the plains of Buna, Sanananda, and Gona on the north. Quickly he had Kenney fly in a company of the 126th United States infantry. The rest of the regiment was sent by boat to Moresby. In the meantime the entire 128th infantry was flown in to Moresby from the mainland.

But this would only be a drop in the bucket. MacArthur must find a way to bring in large quantities of American troops and supplies from the southwest, planting them here on the Buna plains, for later use as the lower jaw of the giant nutcracker that would close in on the Japanese in the Buna, Gona, and Sanananda area.

Now if air fields could be secured near Buna, MacArthur might have Kenney fly in doughboys and supplies, and here in the rear and on the left flank of the Japanese he might build up sufficient forces to launch a real attack against the Buna area.

Air Fields Planned.

Native laborers would be needed to hack out temporary strips in the fields of waving Kunai grass. On these simple strips slow landing transport planes could come down with men, machines, and supplies. And soon a field tough and long enough for fighters could be built. Eventually even bombers could be set down.

Wanigela strip was prospected by landing a light plane in the high Kunai grass. Natives cut a strip, and Kenney flew in 1,000 Aussies.

Dobadura came next. It was a scant 10 miles below and to the west of the Japanese stronghold at Buna. Here were found narrow corridors of tall Kunai grass, stretching between parallel bands of jungle. Before the Japanese were aware of what was going on a temporary strip was hacked out of the tough grass. Then the transports landed with protecting troops. Then more came, with engineers, knocked down bulldozers, and scrapers. For the first time in history road making machines were given wings.

Springboard Is Prepared.

Soon fighters were landing and taking off. That was a great day for MacArthur. These fighters could now drive off the enemy dive bombers from up the coast, while the field was being enlarged and straightened for the heavy bombers. It would be the springboard for further advances.

Suddenly out of the misty skies lumbering old transport planes began to land—and out from their broad bellies jumped Yank doughboys, motors, equipment, ammunition, food, and even drums of gas. In a few days Kenney flew in from

Phases of Battle for New Guinea

(Story in adjoining column.)

For six deadly months Yanks and Australians fought against heavy Jap odds to capture this southern tip of New Guinea and give the Pacific offensive to Gen. MacArthur.

Allied Planes Drop 156 Tons on Halmahera; Pound Yap Isle

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 25 [Friday]—(AP).—The heaviest single raid on Halmahera Island, southern guardian of the Philippines, was reported by Gen. MacArthur's headquarters today among an unusually strong series of aerial thrusts which unloaded 315 tons of bombs on Japanese defenses.

An undisclosed number of raiders smashed 156 tons on Halmahera. Liberators bombed and set fire to bivouacs and supply dumps in the important Galela area, the northern part of Halmahera, during the record assault Wednesday. There was no Japanese interception.

Three More Bombings.

On the same day, 90 tons of bombs smashed Japanese positions on Vogelkop peninsula, northwestern Dutch New Guinea. In other widespread raids, allied aircraft left 36 tons of bombs on the Kai Islands in the Banda sea, and 33 tons on the Sarmi area of Dutch New Guinea.

An additional 1,647 more Japanese were reported killed in ground fighting in nine scattered sectors, from Sansapor—the American beachhead at New Guinea's extreme tip—to Bougainville Island in the Solomons.

Yap, Paramushiro Raided.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 24 (AP).—Yap Island on the eastern approaches to the Philippines was bombed for the fourth straight day, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported today.

Other bombers flying out of the Aleutians attacked Paramushiro Island on the northern approaches to Tokyo for the seventh time this month. A cargo vessel was sunk and direct hits scored on installations at the northern enemy naval outpost. One interceptor was shot down.

Strike from Marianas.

The Paramushiro raid was made Sunday and the attack on Yap Tuesday. The air field and bivouac areas were hit in the Yap sorties, made from recently conquered bases in the Marianas.

northern Australia the entire 128th infantry—more than 3,000 men. It was as far as from Miami to Chicago. Then he flew in a complete field hospital, operating tables, doctors, and all. In the single month of December he evacuated by air 7,200 wounded and sick men and replaced them with fresh troops.

Offensive Opened and Won.

MacArthur at last was ready to close in his great envelopment movement on the three native villages. On the north, or left flank, the rugged Australians under Lt. Gen. Herring were pushing toward the coastal towns of Sanananda and Gona. On the right flank, pointing north and east toward Buna, were the Yankees of the 32d division under Lt. Gen. Bob Eichelberger, 1st corps commander. Between the two forces lay the impassable swamp delta of a wide tropical river. This swamp split the two allied groups squarely in the middle.

Both allied forces were confronted by a series of strongly developed Japanese defensive positions, bunker type machine gun nests, and pill boxes, completely camouflaged.

Notch by notch, step by step, the pincers closed in on the doomed Japanese positions. Aussie tanks finally broke into the Buna air field, while the Yanks moved into Buna village. On Dec. 9, five days before this, the Diggers had overrun the Gona area. On Jan. 2, Buna government station was captured. And three weeks later Sanananda was overrun. The wearisome, desperate Buna campaign was over.

It was the end to the Japanese advance in New Guinea. The threat to Australia was no more. MacArthur could now take the offensive.

KEEP UP ARMY TRAINING AFTER WAR, V.F.W. ASKS

Jean A. Brunner Elected Commander in Chief.

Enactment of a universal peace time compulsory military training law requiring a minimum of one year's service was demanded of congress yesterday by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, holding its 45th annual encampment in the Morrison hotel.

In a resolution adopted unanimously by the largest voting delegation ever to attend a V.F.W. national encampment the veterans decried the nation's lack of preparedness at the declaration of World War I. and II.

Brunner Is Elected.

The veterans late yesterday elected Jean A. Brunner, of Forest Hills, N. Y., as national commander in chief for the coming year.

Other national officers elected were: Joseph M. Stack, of Pittsburgh, Pa., senior vice commander in chief; Louis A. Starr, of Portland, Ore., junior vice commander in chief; R. B. Handy, Kansas City, Mo., reëlected adjutant general; James W. Cannon, of Youngstown, O., judge advocate general; Dr. Herbert J. Eckwall, of 6832 Wildwood av., Chicago, reëlected surgeon general, and the Rev. Patrick J. Lydon, of Boston, Mass., chaplain.

Mrs. Hazel Miller of Des Moines, Ia., was elected president of the V. F. W. Ladies' auxiliary.

Labor Practice Hit.

Arbitrary and delayed decisions by overlapping government agencies and the adamant attitude of some labor leaders and employers drew denunciation of the V.F.W. because resulting work stoppages have impaired war production. The veterans demanded immediate arbitration of labor disputes.

Strong opposition to a proposal before congress which would open the United States to a flood of European refugees is expressed in a resolution demanding that all immigration from all countries be stopped now and for 10 years after the war. The V.F.W. declared that the United States cannot continue to fight, pay the bills, police and feed the world.

Women Voted Out.

They also denounced any organization which advocates overthrow of the government by force or substitution of a government dominated by a foreign power and all ideologies un-American in principle.

The veterans, after much argument, rejected a proposal that women now serving in the army, navy, marine corps, and Coast Guard be admitted to membership.

CONTINUE RESCUED WOMAN CASE.

The case of Mrs. Frances Wilson, 26, a domestic employed at 6826 Riverside av., Berwyn, who was rescued after she jumped into the lake at Walton st., was continued until next Thursday by Judge Irwin B. Clorfene yesterday.

LT. VRACIU, ACE OF NAVY, TAKES INDIANA BRIDE

Lt. Alexander Vraciu Jr., 25, the navy's top ranking ace credited with 19 Jap planes, and Miss Kathryn Horn were married yesterday by the Rev. James F. Connelly in the rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic church in East Chicago, Ind. Only members of the immediate families were present at the ceremony and at the wedding dinner.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. John C. Horn of 1604 142d st., East Chicago, wore a street length blue frock, burgundy hat, and orchid corsage. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Horn. Lt. Vraciu's best man was Ernst Schiable. The flyer's father, an East Chicago policeman, and his mother, Marie, live at 3553 Pennsylvania av., East Chicago.

Lt. Vraciu's admirers gathered outside the rectory to shower congratulations and rice on the couple. Lt. and Mrs. Vraciu will leave for New York today for a honeymoon before he reports at Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 4 for reassignment. The flyer was graduated from DePauw university. His wife is a junior at Indiana university.

LAUNDRY DRIVER ROBBED OF $55.

Ben Neimark, 3401 Hirsch st., a driver for the Progress Laundry company, 4677 Elston av., was robbed of $55 while delivering at 3546 Wilson av. yesterday, he told police. One of the robbery pair had a revolver.

LT. L. A. GORDON FLIES NEW ARMY PLANE IN FRANCE

Lt. L. A. Gordon.

Lt. Lewis Albert Gordon, 23, of Flossmoor, is one of the specially trained army pilots flying the new P-61 Black Widow night fighter planes, it has been learned here. He is stationed in France at a night fighter base whose Black Widows already have destroyed four nocturnal German raiders.

The new plane, which is named after one of the deadliest of insects, the black widow spider, is powered with twin engines and is said to have a speedier rate of climb than any other similarly powered fighter. This and the 20 mm. cannon it mounts help make it one of the most formidable of allied weapons.

Lt. Gordon, formerly a student at Northwestern university, trained on the west coast before going overseas last February.

FANATICAL JAPS DON'T QUIT, SAYS GEN. VANDEGRIFT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—Lt. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the marines, said today that the Japanese do not know the meaning of "quit." Speaking at a news conference, he told of visiting Saipan, Tinian, and Guam.

"I want to stress that the people in those engagements thoroly realize they are fighting an enemy that does not know the meaning of quitting," he said.

As an example of the fanatical Japanese opposition to surrender, he told of one instance where a father on Guam "took his child by the feet, bashed in its head and threw it over a cliff, cut his wife's throat and threw her over the cliff, then jumped over himself."

FOLKS SAY I'VE GOT THE RIGHT WORD FOR OUR ICE CREAM... DELICIOUS-ER

Bud Bowman

CHICAGO'S LEADING DAIRY (which Bowman sure is) oughta turn out extra fine ice cream. No one else has a chance to be quite so choosey on the quality of cream and milk and other dairy ingredients . . .

AND BOWMAN PEOPLE are extra careful about cleanliness . . . I think you'll agree that's important. You should see how neat they are about themselves and the places where they make ice cream.

BESIDES, THERE'S A REPUTATION already established by Bowman for things of Superior Flavor. Our ice cream has got to live up to that.

IT'S EXTRA RICH-TASTING, extra smooth, extra fine. "Delicious-er" is my word for it. Being so good, of course it sells out fast. But I hope you can get some in a soda or sundae, or a pint carton to take home.

BIGGEST EXHIBIT OF AXIS AERIAL POWER COMING

The largest exhibit of captured enemy aerial equipment ever shown, comprising 10,000 different items, will go on display here for five days, beginning Sept. 1, it was announced yesterday by Col. Nelson S. Talbott, commanding officer, army air force materiel command in Chicago. The exhibit will be sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Robot bombs, a ready to fly Messerschmitt 109, Germany's best fighter plane, and Jap planes will feature the display of the AAF.

Offers Comparison Basis.

Called "Shot from the Sky," the exhibit is designed to show Americans the high quality of axis fighting equipment and to enable them to compare our production with that of the enemy.

The exhibit will cover four acres and will be held at the Congress st. plaza in Grant park. The show has appeared in four towns thus far and officials expect more than two million Chicagoans to attend the free exhibit.

Stimulus for Production.

The purpose of the exhibit is to encourage industrial workers to remain on their jobs, boost war bond sales, and promote WAC recruiting in this area, Col. Talbott declared.

"Chicago is a vital war producing area and reports of good progress in France may cause many workers to believe the end is near and transfer to peace time employment," he said. "This must not happen, as much of the material made in the Chicago area also is of vital importance to the war with Japan."

Since Hubert joined the navy, he says it makes him feel more at home!

GABRESKI, NO. 1 AMERICAN ACE, HELD IN GERMANY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—Lt. Col. Francis Gabreski, 25, missing since he flew out on volunteer extra duty July 20 to protect his standing as America's all-time top air ace, is a prisoner of war. The war department today made the bare announcement that the Oil City, Pa., flyer is held in Germany.

The fact that the Thunderbolt pilot was missing was announced in England, July 29, and the news that he is alive, tho a prisoner, brought joy to his family, and to Kay Cochran of Prairie Du Chien, Wis., his 20 year old fiancee. "O, I knew my prayers would be answered!" she exclaimed. She and the flyer had planned to marry this month.

When Gabreski was reported missing, his record stood at 28 enemy planes shot down and three destroyed on the ground. His air kill total was one more than that of Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Lawton, Okla., in Europe, and Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., leading Pacific ace. His record may have been increased on his last flight.

Calcium can make such a difference!

MOTHERS, the amount of calcium children get day by day when they are growing, can make an important difference to their future sturdiness and good looks!

WITHOUT sufficient calcium, children can't expect to develop strong, straight bones and sound teeth. And to be on the safe side, they should get EXTRA calcium, more than just the governmental daily minimum amount. Are you sure your child is getting all he needs? Here's an easy, pleasant way to make sure he gets that EXTRA calcium.

GIVE him Cocomalt with his meals every day. Cocomalt* is so rich in calcium it makes 3 glasses of milk equal a whole quart in calcium value...gives him that important "extra"! (Remember, too, it also gives him extra iron, phosphorus, and Vitamin B_1 and his day's need of Vitamin D!)

TAFT DECLARES FOREIGN POLICY IS STILL AN ISSUE

Dulles Continues Talks with Secretary Hull.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Concluding a conference with John Foster Dulles, Gov. Dewey's emissary to foreign policy conversations with Secretary of State Hull, Sen. Taft [R., O.] this afternoon asserted that the Republican party is not being inveigled into an agreement with the Dew Deal foreign policy which might remove this issue from the campaign.

"We may agree to the setup of a vehicle for international coöperation," Taft told a reporter, "but the Republican party is not going to condone New Deal dissipation of American resources thru loans, peacetime lend-lease and similar proposals from the White House.

"The present secret four power negotiations at Dumbarton Oaks here are at a preliminary stage. Final decisions will include peace treaties that must have senate approval for American participation."

Dulles Sees Hull Again.

Following his conversations with Taft and other Republican senators and representatives, Dulles again met with Secretary Hull to continue the talks begun yesterday. They conferred for two hours in the secretary's office but Dulles today was less communicative on the trend of the conversations than he was yesterday, even attempting to evade reporters when he left Hull's office.

"Mr. Hull and I are trying to do something novel in American political life," Dulles said. "We're breaking new ground and we're moving slowly and carefully.

"We have to have a meeting of minds and a clear program. We're resuming our talks tomorrow morning."

There were two conjectures, both with some substantiation, for the secretive attitude of the appointed representative of Gov. Dewey, who is pledged to give full information to the public on America's participation in foreign affairs. They were:

1. Hull had reproved Dulles for telling the press yesterday afternoon that "we have made progress in exploring the possibilities of bi-party coöperation."

2. Dulles, before making any statement, wanted to consult with Dewey.

Protest Parley Secrecy.

Reporters were pointedly annoyed with Dulles' secretiveness, which reminded them of their protest earlier in the day on the lack of information coming out of the Dumbarton Oaks world security conference. The protest was formally presented to Undersecretary of State Stettinius who, however, promised no relief for their complaints.

Criticism of the reported outlines of the security talks was heard today from diplomats of two smaller nations.

Aurelio Concheso, ambassador from Cuba, lauded Gov. Dewey's warning of last week against "Big 4" power politics when he said "Thank God for Dewey."

"The outline of the new organization is almost identical to the old league of nations," said Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera of Mexico. "The only difference in the new plan are its disadvantages."

GOURMETS REVEL IN PERISHABLES FLOWN TO TABLE

Air Borne Food Wins Over Fast Freight.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—Willing guinea pigs in an experiment in gastronomic excellence, 250 persons sat down to luncheon in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel today to test the comparative qualities of air borne and rail borne fruits, vegetables, and sea foods produced on the west coast.

On one plate was a delicacy brought here by rail, and on another, a product rushed by overnight plane. Officials of Wayne university, Detroit, Mich., who conducted the test, did not disclose which was which until the diners had written in their preferences, and when the scoring was complete the air borne varieties had won by a wide margin.

It was a delightful epicurean test intended to guide officials of United Air Lines, Chicago, and a large grocery chain, in formulating their plans for the development of post-war transportation of perishables by air.

5,700 Pounds Flown In.

The air line and food company officers expressed confidence that post-war economies in air transportation and food distribution would result in equal commercial success.

Capt. G. W. Gronquist, 6341 S. Richmond st., Chicago, dropped his United cargoliner down here soon after midnight, flying in 5,700 pounds of foodstuffs picked up as far away as Seattle, Wash. In Chicago, the plane took on a shipment of choice chickens fully prepared for the attention of the hotel chef.

The cargo included such New York rarities as white sapota, cherimoya, and passion fruit produced on the west coast—delicacies seldom shipped so far because of their perishable nature and the time consumed in rail transportation. Instead of being picked green for surface transportation, they were picked tree ripe and hustled to the plane.

Menu Is Varied.

The menu included fresh crabmeat from Seattle, mountain trout from Denver, Colo., and a "stratoliner" salad assembled from southern California and other western points. The normal 17 hour cargo flight from the west coast was extended somewhat on this trip because of extra stops, but air line officers forecast even faster schedules after the war.

The studies conducted by Wayne university are considered the most ambitious of their kind. Begun in the spring with financial assistance from the air line and food chain, they include all phases of food production, transportation and marketing.

Engaged

MISS ANNE DAVIS.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—The engagement of Miss Anne Davis, daughter of Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, and Lt. Morris Kaplan of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was announced today by Mr. and Mrs. Davis. No date has been set for the wedding.

Lt. Morris Kaplan.

ICELAND'S FIRST PRESIDENT PAYS VISIT TO CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 [Special].—Sveinn Bjornsson, the first president of the new republic of Iceland—youngest republic in the world—was received with state ceremonies at the White House today by President Roosevelt.

Bjornsson, who was regent of Iceland when it was a part of Denmark until June 16, drove to the White House after an air trip from his native land and was greeted by a guard of honor drawn up on the White House lawn. Detachments of soldiers, sailors, and marines stood at present arms while a band played the Icelandic and American national anthems.

Bjornsson and his foreign minister, Vilhjalmur Thor, were escorted to the White House by state department officials headed by Undersecretary Stettinius, and were received in the diplomatic reception room by Mr. Roosevelt and his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger.

Mr. Roosevelt entertained his guest at a stag dinner tonight.

A. P.'S TELETYPE WIRE RESTORED BY ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 24 (AP).—Argentine authorities today restored to the Associated Press its direct leased wire facilities between its Buenos Aires and Montevideo offices. These facilities were suspended last March when post office officials took repressive steps against United States and British news organizations.

A few days after the repressive measures part of the Associated Press facilities were restored when investigation disclosed there had been no infraction of communcations regulations. But the teletype machine was removed from the Associated Press office to the wire company premises on the pretext of enforcing a stricter censorship. The machine now is permitted to operate from Associated Press headquarters as before.

Reuter news agency, and the United Press, which lost their machines at the same time as the Associated Press, also have made application to have them returned.

[ADVERTISMENT]

"STOPPED TAKING DAILY LAXATIVES"

"After 15 years' dosing now eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN"

Constipated? Given up hope of finding lasting, gentle relief? Then read this unsolicited letter:

"I am a rural letter carrier. For more than 15 years I used a laxative every night. About a year and a half ago a good friend suggested that I try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. I did so—with the result that I have not taken a pill since. I eat ALL-BRAN generously every day. I find it a great help." John H. Martin, Westminster, Maryland.

How can such helpful results come about? Scientists say one common cause of constipation is lack of sufficient "cellulosic" elements in the diet—and KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these important elements. They help the friendly flora to fluff up and prepare the colonic contents for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative, but a natural, gentle-acting, "regulating" FOOD.

If your constipation is this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, as a cereal or in several muffins. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't get help, too. Insist on the genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

LIBERTY SHIP LOST BY MINE BLAST OFF ITALY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—The loss of the Liberty ship James Guthrie off Naples a few weeks ago was reported today by the war shipping administration.

The James Guthrie and another Liberty ship, the Alexander Graham Bell, had discharged military cargoes off Naples and were starting home when they struck mines. Altho extensively damaged, the Alexander Graham Bell has reached a home port. There were no casualties.

The James Guthrie, commanded by Capt. Grady L. Robertson of Brooklyn, N. Y., had survived a bombing raid on the way to Naples. Two mine explosions forced abandonment of the ship, which was then beached by a British corvette.

CALLS FOSTER PARENTS INTO SUIT FOR BABY

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday ordered Mr. and Mrs. Paul Waldron of Detroit, Mich., the foster parents, to appear in court Tuesday when hearing is resumed on a petition by Miss Angeline Kolodziej, 20, of 1453 Huron st., to regain custody of her child, born on June 15 in the Peoples hospital at 255 W. Cermak rd. Judge Jarecki interrupted testimony yesterday to request the couple's presence. He also requested the appearance of Dr. Andrew B. Rotche of 1703 Madison st. and of Dr. S. G. Seinfeld of 561 Diversey pkwy. Miss Kolodziej said the physicians arranged the adoption without her full knowledge or consent.

ROBBERS GET $900.

Martin Polakov, manager of the Union Cold Storage company, 704 Fulton st., reported to police yesterday that two men who entered his office at 6 p. m. robbed him of his wallet containing $900 and valuable papers.

SPEED WASTES PRECIOUS TIRE MILEAGE

When you're tempted to "step on it a bit" this Summer, remember that speed—especially on hot pavements—is a deadly enemy of long tire wear. That is why the national speed limit of 35 m.p.h. was put into effect.

Conserving tires is still a vital responsibility of every car and truck owner, for the shortage of tires is almost as serious as it ever was. Both new and used replacements are still strictly rationed. And even with the necessary certificate from the ration board, you may still have considerable trouble because the demand for all tires is much greater than the supply.

Driving under 35 is only one of many ways to conserve your tires, and a member of Associated Tire Specialists will be glad to point out others to you. How faulty wear and injuries should be corrected before they become serious. How to take care of your tires so they'll give maximum mileage. And how recapping—with new, long-wearing synthetic rubber recently released for this work—adds thousands of dependable miles.

All members of Associated Tire Specialists have had long and thorough experience in all tire matters. They are independent merchants, a permanent part of your community. Consult one of these merchants soon—and have him inspect your tires every six months to make sure they're wearing properly.

GRAFT SCANDALS HURT DEMOCRAT MICHIGAN TICKET

G.O.P. Expected to Win by Wide Margin.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 24.—Republican leaders in Michigan are giving intensive study to what they term some of the "imponderables" in the fall campaign. They hold that present indications point to a clean sweep for the national and state G. O. P. tickets, but that several factors will affect the size of Republican majorities.

Democrats are reported to be putting their trust largely in Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee.

The recent legislative scandals brought to light here are expected to hurt the Democrat chances. A fortnight ago a Circuit court jury at Mason, Mich., convicted 20 of 22 finance company officials, state legislators, and ex-legislators charged with bribe conspiracy in the 1939 legislature to influence action on bills relative to finance company loans.

Nearly All Democrats.

Included among the convicted men were three senators, eight representatives, four former senators, and two former representatives. All of the 17 convicted lawmakers are Democrats except one Republican.

The convictions are expected to have repercussions against the Democrats, at least on state and local tickets.

Two of the convicted Detroit Democratic legislators who had been renominated agreed to get off the ticket only if relatives were chosen in their place. At a meeting of the Wayne county [Detroit] Democratic committee, State Sen. Leo Wilkowski insisted that his place be filled by his brother, Anthony Wilkowski, who some years ago served time for vote frauds. State Rep. Francis J. Nowak suggested his wife be given his place. The county committee was acquiescent to both requests.

Detroit papers denounced the deal. The Detroit CIO-PAC did likewise, saying, "Such duplicity . . . would smear the entire party."

Separate Presidential Ballot.

This year, for the first time, Presidential tickets will be voted on a separate ballot. This change was made to stop coattail riding.

Republicans surmise that Gov. Kelly, a great vote getter, probably may get the high vote. Some already figure that he may win by more than 150,000 majority.

Gov. Dewey is to come to his native state for a speech. The native son angle and Dewey's popularity are expected to have much vote getting power. Dewey today is figured to run far stronger than Wendell Willkie did in 1940 when he carried the state by 6,926.

Some observers estimate that as of today the Dewey-Bricker ticket has a minimum lead of 50,000 over the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.

In the upper peninsula, officials who have made tours report that the G. O. P. is in good shape. Four years ago Roosevelt carried nine counties in this region of iron ranges.

Democrats Lack Patronage.

The Republican organization points to the lack of Democratic state patronage this year. Republicans hold the powerful state highway setup.

The G. O. P. trend in some areas is so pronounced that Democrats are making no contest for 28 of the 100 seats in the house at Lansing. Nine senate districts have no Democratic candidates. Meanwhile, in the 83 counties, Republicans have 68 sheriffs, 67 county clerks, and 72 treasurers, indicating a county organization backbone of great strength.

Clark Gable, former air force major, now a civilian, and Pvt. Mickey Rooney, now a soldier, both arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Santa Fe Super Chief. Rooney was accompanied by Eddie Sherman, his agent, and Sam Steifel, new production manager of Mickey Rooney productions. Rooney expects to visit in New York before reporting to camp at Birmingham, Ala.

147 CLERGYMEN BACK DEMPSEY; AID TO GET LIST

A list of 147 Protestant clergymen supporting John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for state's attorney, will be presented today to Arnold R. Baar, chairman of Dempsey's Citizens' committee. The list of the ministers and their churches will be made public.

The delegation calling on Baar will be composed of the Rev. Torrey Johnson, pastor of the Midwest Bible church, known for his radio sermons; the Rev. John P. Miller, pastor of the Forest Glen Methodist church, and the Rev. Arthur A. Jameson, pastor of the Austin Church of the Nazarene.

Activity in the Cook county campaign thus far has been generally limited to candidates making the rounds of political picnics. Raymond J. Peacock, Republican nominee for recorder of deeds, yesterday appointed Alexander Keehn as his campaign manager, with the special duty of supervising Peacock's anti-vote fraud drive. Louis N. Blumenthal, one of four G. O. P. nominees for sanitary district trusteeships, is making financial studies to buttress his charges of inefficiency and waste in the Democratic regime.

EXPECT TROOPS TO CAST 9 PCT. OF NOVEMBER VOTE

Result Could Be in Doubt for Month.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—If the admittedly conservative estimates of most state election officials are correct, approximately 9 per cent of the votes in the November election will be cast by men and women in military service.

An Associated Press survey determined that some 2 million applications for absentee ballots have been received from battlefronts, ships, and training camps, with thousands of others engulfing officials of nearly all the 48 states.

Eleven states will not count their service votes on election day, Nov. 7, and it is possible the outcome of the Presidential election will remain in doubt for several weeks after polls close.

Nebraska Might Be Factor.

Should the election be unusually close, the winner might not be known until as late as Dec. 7, when the canvass of Nebraska's absentee vote could determine whether the state's seven electoral votes would be cast for President Roosevelt or for Gov. Dewey.

Estimates of the number of GI votes to be cast in each state indicated a nation-wide total of at least 4 million.

Only nine states have up-to-date registration figures. These, with recent primary election returns and estimates based on the last Presidential election, point to a total of 43 million persons qualified to vote in November, compared with the 49,548,221 who voted four years ago.

Illinois' secretary of state, Richard Yates Rowe, estimates service men and women from that state will cast up to 12 per cent of the total vote—"enough to swing any election," he says. Charles K. O'Connell, who holds the same office in Kentucky, predicts the election "will depend on the way the absentee voting goes."

New York has received more than 335,000 ballot applications and they continue to come in at the rate of 8,000 daily. Pennsylvania is sending ballots to well over 500,000 in military service, New Jersey to 330,000.

Other estimates of the number of service voters include Michigan, 150,000; Minnesota, 125,000; California, 175,000 to 200,000; Indiana, 75,000, and Maine, 70,000.

By contrast, South Carolina leaves the sending of absentee ballots to party workers and Gov. Johnston says he expects less than one-half of one per cent of the state's service personnel to vote.

TINY KIT WILL BRING COMFORT TO YANKS IN WAR

A 3 by 7 inch accessory kit of comfort items, weighing less than two ounces and capable of being packed in the interstices of a case of C rations now is being procured for issue to soldiers in operational theaters, Brig. Gen. Barzynski, commanding general of the Chicago quartermaster depot, announced yesterday. The packet contains three cellophane wrapped packages of three cigarets each, a folder of 10 matches bearing printed instructions for avoiding mosquito bites, two pieces of gum, one package of toilet tissue, and a small metal capped vial of 12 chemical tablets for water purification.

PREDICTS G. O. P. WILL SHOW GAIN IN LABOR VOTES

New York, Aug. 24 [Special].—Back from Washington conferences with members of congress, Herbert Brownell Jr., Republican national chairman, today predicted the Republican national ticket would get a larger percentage of the union labor vote than it had received in many years.

Speaking at a press conference at Republican national headquarters, Brownell asserted there was a definite trend of the labor vote toward Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker. He attributed this swing to two reasons: First, antagonism to the CIO political action committee headed by Sidney Hillman and supported by the Communist element, and, second, the growing belief that the election of the Dewey-Bricker ticket would mean more post-war jobs in private industry instead of doles.

Brownell predicted the Republicans would win control of the house of representatives, quoting Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. and Rep. Charles A. Halleck, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, as authorities for the prediction. He said the party had a fair chance of regaining control of the senate, for which the election of 11 additional Republican senators will be necessary.

CONTINUE RING THEFT CHARGE.

The case of Sam Coran, 20, of 3236 Division st., was continued until Sept. 5 when he was arraigned yesterday in Boys' court before Judge N. J. Bonelli on a charge of theft of a $100 wedding ring from a jewelry store at 2746 Division st.

JOLIET POLICE DEFY ORDER TO DESERT UNION

Members of the new Joliet policemen's union, who were ordered by Mayor Arthur O. Janke to submit a pledge by 5 p. m. yesterday that they would cease union activities, let the deadline pass without obeying the order. The mayor announced he would recommend that the city police and fire board discharge the union policemen, and would set a time limit for action by the board. He notified Corporation Counsel William A. Murphy to draft a statement to be issued tomorrow.

Spokesmen for the union, a local of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes [AFL], have announced they will ask an injunction against discharge moves.

Chief of Police E. E. Overbey predicted that most of the policemen would withdraw from the union.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847

12 ★★ FRIDAY, AUG. 25, 1944.

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER MAY 14, 1903, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to The Tribune are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

THEY ARE AFRAID OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

The brummagem Machiavellis at Dumbarton Oaks are conducting their deliberations with the utmost secrecy. The press and members of congress have both protested, but Secretary Hull accepts the responsibility and refuses to heed the protests.

What is going on inside the doors of the conference may be suspected, however, from what is going on outside. One of the propaganda sheets financed by expatriate dollars for the benefit of the British empire and the Communists asserts that the conferees are seeking to find a way in which the President of the United States can use our army and navy against an aggressor nation, so declared by some world union, without the consent of congress.

Wendell Willkie is playing the same tune. The New York Times says that he has been urging Republican congressmen to support a measure that would give the President this authority.

It cannot be regarded as accidental that at this particular moment there should arrive in the office of THE TRIBUNE, and presumably those of other newspapers thruout the country, a bulletin from George Washington university, dedicated to Secretary Hull, on the subject of executive agreements as an alternative to treaties. The author, Prof. J. A. Tillema of the George Washington faculty, parades a considerable amount of largely pointless erudition before pointing up his argument in the following terms:

"It requires a majority vote of congress to declare war, but the President alone may take action which means war. We were at war with Japan when Pearl Harbor was attacked and our troops resisted as best they could under the circumstances. . . . Why should we continue the two-thirds hurdle against making peace or against the adoption of an effective organization for the prevention of a general war for the future?"

Prof. Tillema is referring, of course, to the Constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds vote of the senate to ratify a treaty. His argument is easily answered. Treaties purposely were made difficult to ratify because they are agreements from which it is difficult or impossible for this country to withdraw by its unilateral action. Our own courts frequently will refuse to allow them to be superseded by acts of congress and even should we take such action we might do so at the risk of being branded in world opinion as having broken our word. When we undertake such a binding obligation we ought to do so carefully and after due investigation and consideration. The requirement of a two-thirds vote for ratification is a vital and necessary safeguard to the treaty making process.

The tactics of the Washington Machiavellians, with their pretty little schemes for power politics and Holy Alliances, betray their distrust of the American people.

They are afraid that next time it may not be possible to arrange another Pearl Harbor disaster to cut short the national debate on war.

They are afraid that in the future a more resolute congress may curb the egotism of some self-nominated savior of the world.

They are afraid, above all, of the fundamental good sense of the American people and afraid to give it a chance to operate for the protection of American interests.

They are afraid to subject their schemes for world union to the scrutiny and debate to which the senate would subject them before ratifying any treaty in a Constitutional manner.

If their schemes were intended to benefit America as greatly as they contend, would they exhibit these fears and plan these evasions? The answer is self-evident.

The Dumbarton Oaks conference is planning a betrayal of American interests and Mr. Willkie, as usual, is in the front rank of the would-be betrayers.

COMMUNIST CANT.

The Voice of the People has printed recently a vigorous exchange on the congressional contest in the 10th Illinois district; first an attack on the New Deal candidate, Curtis D. MacDougall, by George W. Robnett; then a counter-attack on Robnett and Rep. Ralph W. Church, MacDougall's opponent, by the latter's campaign manager, Stanford Clinton. Clinton repudiated any suggestion that his man is tied up with the Communists or the Communist dominated CIO.

A woman correspondent, whose letter appeared Wednesday, then subjected Clinton's letter to an astute analysis and came up with a resounding "O, yeah?" She said Clinton gave himself and his candidate away by his own phrases. She taxed Clinton with the "use of cliches which have become part of the esoteric language of the Communist inner circle"—such phrases as "anti-Democratic," "under the guise of combating fascism," and "the war against fascism." Her test is sound, and its application should not be confined to the 10th district.

The American voters are getting wise to the Communists and their traitorous, vicious purposes. That is why Earl Browder disbanded the party and ordered his members to go underground and work thru transmission belts and fellow travelers.

It is still easy to spot the Commies, however, if you pay close attention to their language. Watch for the typical epithets of communism, the Communist cant. Their favorite of favorites is "fascist." There are Fascists in this country, and powerful ones, too, but 99 44-100 per cent of them are down in Washington, manipulating the controls that the Communists hope to make permanent by putting over the fourth term.

To a Communist, of course, any one who exposes his activities is a "Fascist." Any time you hear some one tossing that term around the conclusion is safe that he is either a Communist or a Communist tool, knowingly or stupidly.

COL. MORRISON RETIRES.

Pacifism and its attendant belief in the evil of military preparedness was a stronger force in 1935 than many of us, in retrospect, now think could have been possible. In the academic field it took form in opposition to the reserve officers' training corps. The R. O. T. C. was under attack in a number of universities and it had vigorous opponents in the Chicago public school system.

In that year Col. William F. Morrison was assigned to Chicago as professor of military science and tactics, in charge of the high school R. O. T. C. unit. The fact that he was a scholar and teacher as well as a military officer of long experience contributed much to his success in conciliating and overcoming opposition, and virtually doubling R. O. T. C. enrollment during his nine year tenure.

More than 10,000 Chicago boys have gone to battle better prepared to serve their country and protect their own lives as a result of the lessons they learned under Col. Morrison. The letters that many of them have written back to younger brothers or friends in high school, urging the youngsters to make the most of the R. O. T. C., are the finest testimonial that that organization and Col. Morrison could have.

He is retiring and turning his task over to Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, a former regular army officer, whose long experience as a Chicago newspaper man should fit him especially well to carry on Col. Morrison's work. We hope that Col. Morrison will continue to make his residence in the community which he served so well.

ENEMIES OF MERCY.

Every couple of years the medical scientists of this city have to take time off from their efforts to lengthen human life and relieve human suffering in order to answer a group of organized nitwits who seek to cripple medical research in Chicago by making animal experimentation difficult or impossible.

The name under which this group operates is as fraudulent as its arguments. They call themselves anti-vivisectionists. By that term they seek to paint a picture of defenseless dogs, strapped on laboratory tables and tortured by the scalpels of sadistic scientists.

That doesn't happen. The anti-vivisectionists themselves know it doesn't happen, but they persist nevertheless in disregarding the facts to make a false appeal to the emotions. By the rules of every well conducted scientific laboratory, an experimental animal must be anesthetized for any experiment that would cause him more discomfort than the administration of the anesthetic itself. If the experiment performed is such as would leave him in pain, he must be painlessly put to death at its conclusion. Animals cannot be used indiscriminately for experimentation. Permission must be obtained from the laboratory director, who must be satisfied of the value of the investigation undertaken. Those are the rules in every reputable scientific laboratory in this city—and no others get dogs for experimental purposes from the city pound.

There comes a time when patience with people like this cease to be a virtue. It is no excuse to plead for them that they are sincere. So, probably, is Hitler, who is no crazier than some anti-vivisectionists.

The story of the benefits derived from animal experimentation has been told time and again and is more familiar to these enemies of science and mercy than it is to the people on whose credulity they seek to impose. There is scarcely a human ailment for the modern treatment of which medical scientists and physiologists have not had to use animals for experimental purposes, and in a large field of this research they have had to use dogs.

The list of human mercies that have come out of experiments on dogs is nearly endless. The mercy of ethylene anesthesia, knowledge of the hookworm that infests both men and dogs, many of the most delicate surgical techniques, insulin, which saves the lives of hundreds of thousands of diabetics, the treatments of Addison's disease, gastric ulcers, anemia, and rickets—all of these would have been denied the human race if scientists could not have experimented on dogs.

These sentimentalists who claim they are anxious to save dogs from suffering are actually as callous to the suffering of dogs as they are to the suffering of human beings. Most of the ailments which dogs have today are treated by methods learned from animal experimentation, and many of them by methods developed by medical science in seeking treatments and cures of human ailments.

The city council has before it an ordinance which would prevent the scientific laboratories of Chicago from getting unclaimed and unwanted stray dogs from the city pound for experimental purposes. If it passes it, it will have dealt a major blow to Chicago as a center of medical education. It will have forced the scientists of Chicago universities and hospitals to abandon many of their research projects, some of which at this moment are being carried on that the sons of Chicago who are fighting in Europe and the Pacific may have a better chance for life.

We have only one recommendation to the members of the city council. Let each of them, between now and the hearing on the anti-vivisection ordinance, consult his family physician. Let him ask his doctor what ailments he and members of his family have had in the last 10 years that could not have been cured except for what medicine has learned from animal experimentation. The answer he gets should prevent any alderman who makes such an inquiry from making a fool of himself.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. Which one of the following North American snakes is not poisonous? Coral Blue Racer Copperhead Rattlesnake
2. Which one of these North American snakes is poisonous? Cottonmouth Moccasin Blacksnake Milk Snake Garter Snake
3. In which one of these cities does it take the longest time to boil an egg? New York Los Angeles St. Louis New Orleans
4. Which one of these auto tires receives the least wear? Right Front Left Front Right Rear Left Rear
5. A bassinet should make one think of which one of these? Roller Skates Diapers Pinafores Bathing Suits
6. A man came home late from lodge meeting. Next morning his wife asked him what time he had arrived home the night before. They had a large hall clock which chimed for the hours and also struck once to mark the half hours. Her husband answered his wife by saying:

"As I opened the front door, I heard the clock strike once. Later, as I was climbing into bed, it also struck once. I couldn't sleep very well, and shortly thereafter, I heard it strike once. Then, after I had rolled and tossed for some time, I heard it strike once, for the fourth time after I had arrived home."

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Notice—The last question counts five points.]

[Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ANSWERS.

PARIS DOWNS AND UPS.

The prematurely announced freeing of Paris from German bondage started this column to thinking about her other falls and uprisings. They have been many, but the final score depends upon a ruling on civil wars. Shall we count it against Paris when the fall was of her own making? Whatever the decision on this point, the fact remains that alien enemies and internal feuds have combined to give her the trouble championship of Europe.

* * *

The story began when the legionnaires of Julius Caesar chased a small tribe of Gauls named Parisii out of their huts on the muddy banks of the present Ile de la Cité. About 500 years later, barbarian tribes from the German forests chased out the Romans, and the Franks took a fancy to the town. Skip a few hundred years and you will find Scandinavian sea warriors coming up the Seine in their galleys to besiege Paris. They were not successful.

* * *

In the 14th century, when events of the Hundred Years' war found France almost as prostrate as she has been during the Nazi occupation, the English with their Burgundian allies held Paris for some years. They were not rooted out until two years after the martyrdom of Joan of Arc. Release came when the English garrison was starved out of its last place of refuge, the Bastille.

* * *

Skip the ructions of the religious civil wars, when Paris often had hard times of her own making, and the riots of the French revolution, and come to 1871. The Prussian siege, which brought the population close to famine, damaged only the outer ring of forts. After the surrender, of course, there was a goose-stepping triumphal march along the Champs Elysées. Then came the Communist seizure of the city, and its recapture by government troops.

* * *

The French regulars took Paris in street fighting, barricade by barricade. The Communists resisted with fanaticism, and also destroyed by fire the Tuileries palace, the Hotel de Ville, and other public and private buildings; total, 240. Along the walls of Père Lachaise cemetery, which is still a wailing place for Reds, their die-hard remnants met wholesale massacre. That ghastly business in the spring of 1871 was the most destructive of the many downs and ups in Parisian history.

BAFFLED AT BROOKFIELD.

I took two nephews to the zoo
As any uncle ought to do,
Altho the sun was bright and hot
And my endurance soon was shot.
We saw the panda, camels, bears,
Returned the snakes' weird, sleepy stares;
Remarked at mandrill's sunny south,
The crocodile's fantastic mouth;
We saw orang-utan and ape
And marveled at anteater's shape;
We looked at goats on mountain top
And purchased peanuts, bottled pop;
We viewed the baboon's every antic,
Saw children lively, mothers frantic.
We wandered miles and miles too far
And presently we sought our car,
Only to hear a frightful fuss:
"We didn't see the Quizzicuss!"

Casual.

The Debut of Ol' Hoss.

When Ol' Hoss, my stray dog [Aug. 18], climbed over grandma's white fence and into my young life, we romped thru her flowers getting acquainted. After a bit the love light in his eye changed to anxiety, as if to say, "This is great but when do we eat?" Well, grandma did keep a pail of bones in the summer kitchen for her "soap boilings," but she was out there and disliked stray dogs.

The rope on the dog's neck indicated he could be tied to a leg of the center table near the open sitting room door. Thus secured, he reclined in happy expectancy on grandma's new rag carpet while I scouted the bone situation.

Then something brought grandma and her broom into the room. Seeing a muddy monster on her new carpet but not seeing the well tied rope, she swung wholeheartedly with the broom, crying, "Git—you dirty beast!"

Ol' Hoss did "git," taking the table, the family bible, the stereoscope and slides, and "Gems for the Fireside" for a giddy plunge to the door. Only the table stopped there, and I saw my dog sail over the high alley fence with a broken table leg beating his legs and ribs.

Realizing my visit with grandma was entering a painful period, I went hot-foot after my unlucky comrade, whose howls, yowls, and flailing table leg were creating a mad dog scare along Pearl street. I found Ol' Hoss wedged far back under a shed in Billie Dick's wood yard, and spent the rest of the day reëstablishing his morale and faith in mankind. Chiggers.

CONTRIB'S LAMENT.

Too many people live too long,
And that's the burden of my song.
They cultivate their memory
Of ancient quips by B. L. T.,
And talk about the way the Line
When they were youngsters used to shine.

I'm sick of such nostalgic stuff;
I've had enough of it, Macduff.
I doubt that B. L. T.'s contribs,
With all their gaglets and ad libs,
Were more than fair to medium

Commodore.

A rescue boat has been developed which may be dropped from an airplane to shipwrecked sailors and airmen. It is a 3,000 pound craft with two 5 horse power engines, sails, radio, water still, clothing, fishing tackle, and chewing gum. When it hits the water it sets off a smoke pot to mark its position and fires two rockets carrying buoy lines 450 feet to each side. What, no cocktail lounge or ballroom? Hig.

There is a touch of fall in the air—especially over Germany. CHARLES COLLINS.

[This department answers questions related to help available to relatives of service men, in the column or by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent to Sally Joy Brown.]

Mrs. J. K. writes: "My husband is in service, and I am expecting a baby. I have obtained the services of a specialist which I feel is necessary because of a physical disability. Would it be possible for me to request government assistance for hospitalization and assume responsibility for the physician's fees myself?"

No. In Illinois it is not possible for a wife to request hospitalization only and pay for the medical care out of her own funds. The only case in which a request may be made for hospital care is that in which the medical care is provided by an army or navy physician.

We have a new bulletin on the maternity care program as administered by Illinois, which we will forward to any interested reader upon receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

THE LATE SUMMER COLD.

A GOODLY number of vacationers will encounter colds at some time during the interval. Thus far, science has not conquered this malady. It remains, therefore, a personal problem of prevention. With 99 per cent of us the episode will make its appearance because we have allowed resistance to drop. There is so much bustle and hurry about getting away, so much overtaxing of strength, that dormant bacteria within the airways begin to thrive.

We are approaching a changing season, with cooler nights. More, rather than less care may well be exercised. We dare not forget the role of infection because even a hale and hearty individual may not be able to resist organisms thrown off by his neighbors. The one who works across the desk from you, or in the same office, can spread enough microbes to infect the whole staff.

The chances are that the starter is a virus but bacteria are the real offenders. Just as we develop immunity against smallpox, measles, and other contagious diseases, some are protected [at least in part] against many types of microörganisms. As every one knows, however, one cold does not safeguard against another. In fact, an initial seizure, more often than not, paves the way for a succession of bouts. Many persons present a long series of incidents thruout the year. The only respite they have is during the warmer months. Just as soon as chilly nights alternate with torrid days, the show will be on again.

What happens? First, the mucous lining of the air passages becomes enormously swollen and engorged. Quantities of secretion are poured forth. Breathing is interfered with and the absorption of toxins may be responsible for fever. In this stage, if the nose can be washed out with a dilute solution of salt or bicarbonate of soda, much comfort will ensue. Furthermore, if the patient can drink hot lemonade, take large doses of vitamin C, and rest in bed for 24 hours — the episode will be over. In a few instances, a longer stay will be required.

While countless disinfectants have been tried, none has proved specific. Even the sulfa drugs should not be resorted to unless the family doctor agrees to watch their effects. They are helpful when the bacterial army participates in the fray but are of little or no value against the viruses.

The important thing is to overcome the siege as quickly as possible because we do not wish to gives the causative germs a chance to invade the sinuses. Inflammation, once well established within the bony rooms of the skull, is no joke. Persistent and prolonged treatment may be necessary to combat it.

There is, of course, no objection to an occasional dose of aspirin, provided a full glass of water accompanies each five grain tablet. Neither will unfavorable results follow such comfort provoking remedies as a few drops of ephedrine solution. But the attack must be made upon building reserve to such a point that our body's own fighters will overcome the disorder.

LONG AND SHORT.

H. R. writes: You said recently that tall girls have more advantages than short ones. I am 4 feet 9 inches tall but find it very advantageous. I can't reach the straps in buses and cars so some kind gentleman always gives me a seat. Men called me "petite" and I don't have to worry about being taller than my boy friends. Perhaps you can think of other compensations.

REPLY.

You can plop into a seat much quicker than your tall sister. For you, the journey is shorter. Then, too, you can contemplate a worm's eye view of the world. Think of the thrill when you walk arm in arm with your hero and gaze at the stars as you look into his eyes.

WEIGHT OF SUFFERING.

L. B. writes: Would a man tipping the scales at 200 pounds suffer more pain or less, when wounded, than one weighing 130 pounds? In other words, does the size count in the degree of pain encountered?

REPLY.

No. Much depends upon disposition as well as sensitivity of the sympathetic nervous system. This is not measured by size, weight, or build.

IT MAY OR MAY NOT.

F. S. writes: Why does the blood pressure rise during the menopause?

REPLY.

It may not. If higher levels are detected, it may mean merely that hardening of the arteries is advancing slowly. If nervousness is extreme, the readings are likely to be elevated. This latter condition will respond to rest.

Rebuff Across the Water.

Not so long ago that living man has had a chance to forget it a lady known as Alice Duer Miller wrote a long narrative poem called "The White Cliffs of Dover." The poem catapulted a tearjerking way across America. Soon it was set to music and intoned against a drippy background by Lynn Fontanne. The recording was played in thousands of our best homes, and thousands of our best eyes dripped tears at every line. Then, in no time at all, Hollywood got hold of it.

Hollywood, as ably embodied in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, really went to town. Dame May Whitty snorted her way thru the picture. Five of the eight principal actors were British with well-nourished accents. Two were Americans who put on good adenoidal imitations. One was an out-and-out American, a dreadful mercenary. One minor character was the son of a British general sir somebody. He, curiously enough, had the role of an American soldier at Dieppe.

So the picture, set in the darkness of a London blackout in 1942, came out. The director, Clarence Brown, said it was the "most satisfying picture experience" he had had in 20 years of Hollywood. Critics gave it their best canned encomiums. You know them well: . . . "A memorable experience" . . . "Compelling" . . . "significant." These battered phrases were tossed about as blithely as bean bags.

The more avidly Anglophile critics drooled. They turned emotional somersaults in illimitable delight. Here was England, their England, America's England. It was written on their hearts in white chalk. Some even quoted from the poem the well known quatrain:

"I have loved England, dearly and deeply,
Since that first morning, shining and pure,
The white cliffs of Dover I saw rising steeply
Out of the sea that made her secure."

Many critics who were not Anglophiles lost their sense of proportion. Possibly they feared the label of Anglophobe if they were to say here was another bit of phoney goo. They said it was another Mrs. Miniver, and it almost was, only it was worse.

Well, the picture, "The White Cliffs of Dover," now is appearing in London, and the London critics are giving it the acid treatment. They think it is terrible, and they are dismayingly frank.

One critic, the most tolerant of the crew, or possibly just an inveterate moviegoer, said she rather liked it. "It is sentimental, class conscious, and a little complacent," this lady wrote. "It fondles England in a way that would be inconceivable to a Briton." But she calls it a gesture "opportunely tendered and generously made."

Another critic of the London Telegraph, pronounced it a "great tearjerker," and one impertinent fellow criticized its "tones and accents," but our favorite was a lucid misanthrope in the London Daily Mail who said both the poem and the film made him ill.

He said that somehow he had never been able to take Miss Miller's poem, and added:

"I am angered by the assumption that England is nothing but a cute, upper class curiosity shop. I refuse to believe that we all talk endlessly of tradition as if it were a pet llama kept at incalculable expense and inconvenience in a back drawing room."

As for the film's decor, it incensed him. He referred to the old manse as "pure Jacobean roadhouse, lacking neither stained glass nor armor, "and said he longed for some one to "bite the antique carpets out of frenzy."

To him the film was "a panorama of genteel English inhibitions" which made him wonder whether it would not be more humane if "instead of killing off the privileged class gradually by taxation, they were put straight into a psychopathic concentration camp."

Ho, hmm. Those unappreciative British. They are so veddy, veddy democratic.

WHAT WE CAN EXPECT FROM DUMBARTON OAKS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—It is going to be interesting to note the result of the confab of the followers of Machiavelli at the "Dumbell" Oaks meeting. Mr. Churchill wants an international organization backed by United States might and money for the pretended reason of preserving peace, but really to protect the British empire for continued exploitation, an empire which the English are helpless to defend.

Mr. Stalin wants his territorial grabs underwritten by the United States and an unlimited stream of lend-lease gifts to build a huge industrial machine in Russia, to be used later to settle with the English and their allies for the mastery of Europe and Asia.

Mr. Hull, being a good underminister of the foreign office for Mr. Churchill, will work diligently for England and the empire, but will concede to Mr. Stalin whatever may be necessary to assure the Commie vote in November.

Mr. Dulles, who has suddenly been projected into the picture, is a faint adumbration of the Roosevelt-Hull internationalism and will approve good and tried policies of the English foreign office, with particular stress on the well being of "the city," in which his clients are vitally interested.

All of this will be done in a fog of altruistic humanitarian generalities with many fair promises characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt's past solemn pledges to the public. Following the precedent already established by Mr. Roosevelt with his international maneuvers, the American people will discover too late that they are again being led like a lamb to slaughter. H. D. BENNETT.

POLICE TO THE RESCUE.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—My wife took violently ill. At 2 a. m. I tried to contact a doctor at home and at the hospitals, but there were none available. I was frightened so I called on the police [Summerdale station] who at once came to my home and took my wife to a hospital where she received aid, and thanks to those police, she is much better. I think on all emergencies such as my case, they should receive a bonus of some sort. They act as doctors, they furnish us protection. There is no job aiding humanity that they will not undertake. About all I can say is thanks to these fellows and may God bless them. J. L.

SAILOR'S WARNING.

San Pedro, Cal., Aug. 16.—When the enslaved people of the world are freed of their chains and the world is ready to rebuild, we should not forget the U. S. S. R. It would be a major catastrophe for America to disarm or destroy all or part of her well built armory. This is what the Communists will want, for it will leave us at their mercy. Beware, America, or Pearl Harbor will seem like another minor engagement, for I do not speak without experience. Remember the communist merchant marine [NMU], our most vital lifeline. A U. S. N. SAILOR.

"CO-BELLIGERENT" PRISONERS.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Aug. 7.—According to reliable sources, Italian prisoners of war who are interned in the United States are being coddled to the extent of sightseeing, educational tours, trips to amusement parks, and recreational visits, and all at public expense.

It took four years and the lives of thousands of American soldiers to convince the Italians that they should become co-belligerents. Aren't these the people who machine gunned Ethiopians "heavily armed" with spears?

Let's really coddle them. Let's extend them voting privileges in the coming Presidential election, striking privileges, accord them mustering-out pay and the promise of a bonus with the opportunity of future American citizenship. Let's further give them the 20 per cent additional pay for "overseas service." Come on, United States, let's do a thoro American job. Aren't they "co-belligerents"? We overseas have an APO, American civilians have an OPA, and the POW has the U. S. A.

WHERE LEADERSHIP IS NEEDED.

Lime Ridge, Wis., Aug. 18.—Rep. Hoffman of Michigan delivered a timely admonition to the Republicans in congress the other day. He rebuked them for their lack of aggressiveness. This is a true indictment. Too many times in the last 12 years, the minority party has been content to go along with the New Dealers and vote for legislation inimical to American interests. The Republicans in congress, except in isolated cases, have displayed no ability for leadership and no gumption to fight the encroachment of executive authority. It is a pretty sad record of ineptitude. The American people, regardless of party affiliation, expect more from their representatives in congress than complacent acquiescence with conditions which should be remedied.

COMMON LAW MARRIAGE.

L. A.

In the absence of a ceremonial marriage the legality of the relationship would depend upon whether there was ever an agreement for a legal, as distinguished from an illicit relationship, and upon whether that agreement was entered into in a state recognizing common law marriages. Since 1905 Illinois law has not permitted the contracting of common law marriages in this state, but if the relation was valid when and where it was entered into it would be valid everywhere.

KILLED BY SHOT IN BACK WHILE ROUTING 8 JAPS

Leonard Hansen Dies in Saipan Storming.

Pvt. Leonard Hansen, 23, who was killed in action on Saipan, was shot in the back by a sniper while trying to rout eight Japs from a cave, his parents, Jens Hansen, a retired Chicago police lieutenant, and Caroline, who live at 3605 N. Monticello av., learned yesterday.

Pvt. Leonard Hansen.

Details of the death were in a letter sent the Hansens by their son's commanding officer, Lt. Alex A. Lenzo, who wrote that he formerly lived on the south side of Chicago. Lenzo said Hansen was in a group of 221 men who stormed the beach at Saipan. Only 82 of the men survived the mission.

Pvt. Hansen, a graduate of Schurz High school and former student at Illinois Institute of Technology, was a veteran of the Guadalcanal and Tarawa campaigns.

Nicholas J. Boutos, 32, who was a pianist and well known in music and radio circles here, was killed in action recently while on duty as a naval aviation radio man in the South Pacific, his mother, Mrs. Angel Boutos, 4206 Greenwood av., has been informed. His body was recovered and he was buried at sea with military honors, the navy announcement said.

Nicholas Boutos.

Sgt. John S. Spirodek, 21, of 3438 N. Drake av., was killed in action over Germany July 20, the war department notified his widow, Lois Bullerman Spirodek, who lives at the same address.

Pvt. Benedict J. Taraszka, 25, 2139 N. Winchester av., of an infantry glider unit, was killed in action in France July 28, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Taraszka, have been notified. Memorial mass will be held in St. Hedwig's church, Hoyne and Webster avs., at 9 a. m. Sept. 5.

Pvt. B. J. Taraszka.

The death of Pvt. John F. Power, 22, of the marine corps in action in the southwest Pacific has been reported to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Power, 1908 Monterey av. He entered service July 9, 1942, and went overseas 18 months ago.

Pvt. Harold Turcean, 21, was killed in France June 9, his mother, Mrs. Jetta Muntain, 10 W. Elm st., has been informed. Pvt. Turcean was graduated from Waller High school and Wright junior college. He went into service in 1942 and was sent overseas last September.

Pvt. Edward J. Frankland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Frankland, 3006 N. Parkside av., died of wounds received in action in France July 13. He formerly was a professional dancer. Other survivors include his widow and a sister.

Pvt. Arthur Hankes, 27, an army infantryman, was reported missing in action in Italy July 15, his wife, Lucille, of 549 S. Broadway, Aurora, was notified. He has three children.

Lt. Melvin A. Brown, 19, an army air forces navigator, previously reported missing in action, is a prisoner of war in Germany, the war department has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Brown, 4653 N. Lawndale av.

Sgt. Clyde F. McKinney, 1017 E. 46th st., who last month was reported missing in the Italian theater, is a prisoner of war in Germany, it was learned from his wife.

Sgt. Charles M. Levin, 23, of 5237 Drexel av., of the air corps, engaged in ferrying quartermater department supplies to the army in France, was wounded in both legs June 7, for which he received the Purple Heart, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Levin, have been notified.

Sgt. William E. Meitz, an infantryman, was wounded in action in France Aug. 7, his wife, Irene, of 1551 W. 86th st., has been notified. Sgt. Meitz entered the army Dec. 23, 1943, and went overseas last May. He is the father of William Jr., 3, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Meitz, 5540 S. La Salle st., who have three other sons serving in combat zones.

F. McCormick Appeals Ruling in Adoption Case

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 24 (AP).—Fowler McCormick, Chicago industrialist, today carried to Superior court his opposition of the transferred adoption of two adopted children of his sister, wealthy WAC Corp. Murial McCormick Hubbard of Middletown. McCormick's appeal from the order to Probate Judge Leonard O. Ryan, placing the children in the custody of Dr. Frances M. Clarke of Durham, was made returnable to the September term of court. It was filed by Atty. Arthur L. Wyman of Chicago, his counsel.

THE QUESTION.
Why don't women like to tell their ages?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Loretta Cummings, air line reservations clerk, 6326 Winthrop av.—Women strive to keep their youth, and the fact that their appearance belies their age is an accomplishment in itself. After all the work of taking shadows out from under the eyes, keeping the hair tinted, etc., why waste it all by admitting her age?

Jean Matteoni, bookkeeper, 1450 Thorndale av.—With all the modern methods of camouflage, most women look much younger than they really are. They like to be complimented and it spoils the picture when they have to face the fact of how old they are. It's nobody's business, so why not let it go at that?

Lethia Clore, examiner, Cleveland, O.—Single girls probably feel it will interfere with their matrimonial chances if they are past a certain age. They would rather keep it to themselves and let people wonder. Women feel there's a certain stigma attached to age and don't like to be referred to as "old."

Mrs. Leslie Heller, housewife, 6101 Sheridan rd.—Some women in business prefer not to tell their age because it might prevent them from getting a good job. They'd rather be younger if they can get by with it. But if they are 17 they like to be in their 20s so that their employer will think they've had experience.

Mrs. W. E. Hartley, housewife, 5232 Glenwood av.—I don't think it makes any difference if any one knows how old I am. Some women look younger and take pride in passing for 25 instead of 35. I think it's a higher compliment if they know you're 35 and still think you look 10 years younger.

Pat McGowan, statistician, 215 W. 60th st.—A girl always likes to feel younger than her boy friend, and a man wants to seem older. Youth and beauty are somewhat synonymous and naturally a girl wants to be beautiful. Therefore she strives to keep youthful looking. Besides, it's fun to keep them guessing.

Squirrel Which Bit Child Is Shot by Policeman

A squirrel which last Tuesday bit Carol Meyers, 6, 7306 Harvard av., on the hand was shot by a policeman yesterday after it had returned to the yard of the Meyers' home. It will be examined by the health department for rabies.

CHICAGOAN BAILS OUT OF BOMBER RIDDLED IN RAID

Staff Sgt. Wayland L. Buchholz, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Buchholz, 2856 Dickens av., was a member of the crew of a B-24 Liberator bomber who bailed out over England after their ship was crippled on a mission over Brunswick, Germany, the war department reported yesterday. Without controls and with three engines damaged, the report said, the pilot, Lt. Roy E. Guy of San Diego, Cal., brought his ship back to England so that his crew could bail out over friendly territory.

Sgt. W. L. Buchholz.

Sgt. Melvin W. Demmin, 101 Chandler st., Peoria, was another member of the same crew. "The plane was vibrating badly and I thought it would tear itself apart," said Lt. Guy. "We managed to make it to England, and I realized our Liberator would never be able to stand a landing so I gave the order to bail out." After that, Lt. Guy said, he and his co-pilot, Lt. Merly Hoyle of Merrill, O., headed the ship for the North Sea and bailed out. The ship landed in an open field and exploded.

CITY HALL HEARS 2 CRASHED GATE TO SEE CRUISER

Mathias [Paddy] Bauler and State Rep. Charles H. [Rear Adm.] Weber, Democratic committeeman for the 45th ward, crashed the gate at the Philadelphia navy yard Sunday to see the christening of the cruiser Chicago, and the mystery of how they did it was the talk of aldermen and other political personages who had returned to the city hall yesterday from the launching ceremonies.

Bauler, former Democratic alderman of the 43d ward, who was given a lame duck appointment last week as city collector, and Weber went to Philadelphia with the official Chicago delegation, altho they were not on the list of dignitaries accredited by the navy for admission to the yard.

When special buses drew up to the hotel to take the party of Chicagoans to the launching, Bauler and Weber did not have pink tickets to ride as city officials, or blue tickets to ride as industrialists. They were taken off the bus by the shore patrol and the bus went on without them. But when Mrs. Kelly christened the ship the other Chicago notables were surprised to find Bauler and Weber on the official platform.

"O," said Paddy Bauler yesterday, "we just got in as diplomats."

MEAD WARNS U.S. FACES LOSS OF VITAL AIR RIGHTS

Protests Proposed Sale of Fields in Canada.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.] protested today that the United States is in danger of losing invaluable peace time rights to use airfields in Canada and near by countries in which millions of American dollars have been invested during the war.

The senator made the protest at a hearing of the senate war investigating committee which is inquiring into plans for post-war handling of United States' property and interests in foreign countries.

Mead told the group that this country has poured millions of dollars into the construction of airfields in Canada, Newfoundland, and Labrador, and shared the cost on a 50-50 basis with Canada. The fields, he explained, have been used for bomber ferrying and other war operations.

Canada Wants to Buy Rights.

Under a recent draft agreement, however, Mead said, Canada plans to pay this country 77 million dollars in return for full Canadian post-war rights to the fields.

"This means that we would sell for 77 million dollars rights that might be worth more than seven times that much in the post-war aviation boom," Mead declared.

The senator said he was particularly disturbed over the potential sale, under the plan, of our interest in an air base at Goose Bay, Labrador, which, he added, has been proved beyond doubt the best stopover field on trans-Atlantic flights from the United States to Great Britain. The United States, Mead explained, invested 7 million dollars, or half the cost, in the field.

Neglecting U. S. Interests.

"If this deal goes thru," the senator said, "some one is neglecting the interests of the United States."

Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley, who was testifying before the committee, said he was not familiar with the prosopal, but presumably it was in the hands of the war department.

Mead replied that Crowley, as chief of foreign economic operations, should be informed of such matters and coördinate his operations with the army and navy to protect this country against losses in negotiations with other countries.

Crowley reiterated President Roosevelt's statement of yesterday that lend-lease should be continued to Great Britain and other allies after Germany is defeated and until Japan is beaten. Lend-lease, Crowley said, should be tapered off gradually to prevent disruption of our economy and that of other nations.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24 [Special].—Jean Parker, 26, motion picture actress, and Dr. Curtis Grotter, 33, former foreign newspaper correspondent and now in the insurance business in Hollywood, were married here today by Superior Judge Stanley Mosk.

SLAYS WOMAN, THEN HIMSELF IN TAVERN QUARREL

Charles Hoffman, 55, of 1924 S. Avers av., father of 10 children, shot and killed Mrs. Vera Janitis, 31, of 734 W. 31st st., then killed himself early last night in a quarrel in the Wilcott tavern at 2352 Blue Island av., Marquette police said.

Witnesses said Hoffman, who was a watchman, and Mrs. Janitis visited the tavern several times during the afternoon, and quarreled while they drank. Shortly after 6 p. m., Hoffman drew a .32 caliber automatic.

Mrs. Janitis screamed and turned to flee. Hoffman shot her in the throat and she fell dead 10 feet from the door. Hoffman then fatally shot himself in the head. The only witness to the shooting, Mrs. Mary Saratovicz, 49, of 2352 Blue Island av., cousin of the tavern owner, said she saw the couple quarreling, but could not hear what was said.

W. F. WILEY, 70, OHIO PUBLISHER, DIES IN BUFFALO

His physician, Dr. Pierce Taylor, said Wiley suffered a cerebral hemorrhage last night aboard a train en route from Boston to Cincinnati and was removed from the train at Buffalo.

Wiley was born in Tarlton, O. He began work at the age of 14 as a railroad construction gang water boy, but later attended Heidelberg college, Tiffin, O., and began teaching at 17.

He joined the Enquirer staff in 1899 when he was assigned to the paper's Washington bureau. In 1901 he was sent to Cincinnati as managing editor of the Enquirer, became general manager in 1918, and publisher in 1936.

Woman Saves 32 Years to Get Divorce Costs

Gloucester, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Theresa Neumann, 62, won a divorce today—after saving 32 years to pay the costs. She told Chancery Advisor William Burton she had "been saving and saving, but each time she almost had enough some one got sick and I'd have to spend the money for doctors." Her husband, George, 65, a Gloucester bricklayer, deserted her in 1912 after they had had five children, she said. They were wed in 1897.

High School Aid Enjoined Against Reno Divorce Suit

Grover C. Ramsey, 11 S. Austin blvd., assistant principal of the Steinmetz High school, was enjoined by Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro yesterday from attempting to divorce his wife, Jeanne, a high school teacher, in any court outside of Cook county. Mrs. Ramsey said she had learned that her husband planned a divorce action in Reno, Nev. She is suing him in Superior court on the ground of desertion. They were married Sept. 14, 1919, and separated Dec. 16, 1939.

OVER A MILLION SALVAGED TIRES ROTTING IN FIELD

Rubber Collection of 1942 Forgotten.

New York, Aug. 24 [Special].—More than a million rubber tires are lying in a field at Naugatuck, Conn., near Waterbury, rotting in the sun of summer and the snow of winter.

A mountain of tires visible to motorists on the Waterbury-Bridgeport highway, the pile has been there since the rubber salvage campaign of 1942.

They are tires that were collected for salvage in the campaigns of 1942 and earlier—when government officials made appeals for old tires in the name of war time necessity, and when President Roosevelt asserted the need for old tires was so great he might have to confiscate every civilian tire in the country.

Adjoins Chemical Plant.

They were collected by Boy Scouts, and chambers of commerce all over New England.

The man made mountain adjoins the rubber regenerating plant of the Naugatuck Chemical company, a subsidiary of the United States Rubber company. Officials of the plant refused to comment on the pile or to say how many of the tires, if any, the factory is using.

In New York a spokesman for United States Rubber disclosed there were well over a million tires in the pile. He said a large percentage of them were truck tires, which contain more reclaimable rubber than ordinary automobile tires.

Little Need for It.

"The reclaiming of rubber was important until synthetic came in," he said, "and the country was saved by it after our sources of new rubber were cut off. Now there's little need for reclaimed rubber.

"That pile got low in 1942 and was built up in the drive then, but it's not new. It's always been there. It was bigger before the war than it is now."

A spokesman for the salvage division of the war production board agreed that the tires are virtually so much junk.

"We haven't collected rubber since May, 1943," he said. "We don't have enough reconversion plants even now to take care of what we collected in 1942. Our critical materials now are tin, paper, and rags. We don't need rubber."

MEXICO STUDIES BILL ON CLAIM TO PART OF EL PASO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24 (AP).—Settlement of Mexico's claim to the Chamizal area, comprising a good part of El Paso, Texas, by cession of another piece of land on the northern side of the Rio Grande is proposed in a bill being studied by Sen. Alfonso Flores, chairman of the Mexican senate foreign relations committee.

The Chamizal area—about 550 acres—formerly was south of the Rio Grande. A sudden change in the course of the river left it on the northern side and a good part of El Paso subsequently was built upon it.

Mexico's claim to the Chamizal was upheld by an international boundary commission, but nothing was done. Mexico opposes a money settlement.

U. S. ASSISTS IN FUNERAL FOR 35 BRITISH PUPILS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24.—American authorities have offered to defray the cost of the funerals for the 35 infants' school children killed when a Liberator bomber demolished the school at Freckleton, near Liverpool, yesterday.

The school children will be buried together Saturday in a communal grave in church grounds adjoining the school. American soldiers who had helped rescue survivors of the crash dug the grave.

With the death today of two royal air force men who were in a snack bar, also wrecked by the bomber, the toll rose to 56.

ODT Requests Civilians Stay Home Labor Day

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation, today asked civilians to abandon plans for Labor day travel on trains or intercity buses unless their trips are directly connected with the war.

ILLINOIS LEGION RALLY STRESSES SERIOUS TOPICS

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24 (AP).—More than 5,000 Illinois American legionnaires will open their 26th annual state meeting here, which this year has been stripped of frivolity and officially called a war conference.

Post-war and veterans' problems and election of officers will be the major business at the four day session, starting with an executive committee meeting tomorrow night.

Arthur Canty of Chicago, now senior vice commander of the Illinois department, is slated to succeed Dr. Leonard W. Esper of Springfield as state commander at Monday's election.

Few diversions from serious discussions are planned. Among the listed events are a mass induction of 500 honorably discharged veterans of World War II into the Legion, ritual team contests, a special memorial service at Lincoln's tomb, and an oration by Melvin Cornfield, winner of the Legion oratorial contest conducted among Illinois high school students.

Frolicking of past conventions has received an official frown, and the parade of uniformed Legionnaires, bands, and floats has been canceled for the first time.

CIO GETS FLOOD OF RESIGNATIONS IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 24 [Special].—The resignations of hundreds of members of the CIO Transport Workers union, bargaining agent for employes of Philadelphia's transportation lines, today reached headquarters of the union by registered mail.

They were signed by men dissatisfied with the manner in which the union had handled their interests during the city-wide transportation tieup earlier this month over the upgrading of Negro trolley operators. Service was restored by the army and the Negroes continued as operators.

Andrew Kelly, a trolley pilot and former union organizer, said he had collected 1,000 resignations and that 400 others were mailed individually by discontended TWU members. James J. Fitzsimmons, international vice president of the TWU, refused to disclose the number of resignations received but insisted that 92 per cent of the Philadelphia Transportation company's 9,300 employes were loyal to the CIO union, which would leave a total of only 744 remaining.

12 DEAD, OTHERS MISSING AFTER MEXICAN STORM

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24 (AP).—The tropical hurricane which hit Yucatan yesterday and moved toward the east coast of Mexico vanished today into rains that caused only light damage in the vicinity of Vera Cruz.

In Vera Cruz state 12 persons were killed and an undetermined number are missing in a sudden sweep of water from melting snow in the Orizaba volcano. The water swept thru the villages of Rio Blanco and Nogales, causing many houses to collapse. Most of the dead were crushed or drowned in them.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam

DEAN—Evelyn Dean. In loving memory of our dear darling, who passed away one year ago today, Aug. 25, 1943:
Out of sight, but not out of mind;
God took her home, He knew she was kind.
Upright and just all of her days;
Loving and sweet in all of her ways.
Within our hearts she has not died
As she will always be on Heaven's side.
MOTHER, DADDY, SISTER, & BROTHER.

YOUNG—Ronald L. Young, 1939.
Our darling boy; we miss you so;

GUARD NEGROES AFTER MOB BARS FLORIDA TRIAL

500 Militiamen on Hand to Prevent Violence.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 24 [Special].—More than 200 Florida state guardsmen armed with machine guns and tear gas late today escorted three Negro men in a hurried removal to the state prison at Raiford after the start of their trial on charges of raping a soldier's wife had been temporarily balked by mob action.

High tension thruout the area also prompted Circuit Judge W. May Walker at Quincy to transfer the trial to Gainesville, about 160 miles southeast of here, after State's Atty. O. C. Parker Jr., had told him that "great bloodshed and loss of life might result" if the hearing were held in Quincy.

The Negroes, Fred Lane, 19, James Davis, 16, and James Williams, 26, are charged with taking the 20 year old white girl from her car the night of July 30 and each raping her. Then they shot her in the head, hid her body in a woods, covered it with twigs and branches and left her for dead, it was charged.

"Victim" Recovered.

However, her wound was only superficial and she has recovered. She is an employe at the state hospital for the insane at Chattahoochee. The attack took place near Chattahoochee, where she lives, as she was driving home from a beauty parlor appointment in Quincy.

The Negroes' trial was to have opened this morning at Quincy, seat of Gadsen county. But the defendants, who had been held in the Leon county jail at Tallahassee, 26 miles from Quincy, did not arrive for trial.

For nearly six hours the judge and venire waited for the Negroes. Then is was disclosed that law enforcement officers had attempted to take them to Quincy early this morning but had encountered a road blockade en route.

Kept Out of County.

"The officers were prevented from entering Gadsen county," Prosecutor Parker told Judge Walker, "by a large group of persons who appeared to be intent on preventing the Negroes from being tried."

Because of the tension over the case, Gov. Spessard L. Holland had announced that the court would be given adequate protection and yesterday called out seven companies of state guardsmen, about 500 men. The uniformed militiamen began assembling in Quincy late yesterday. During the night an early today about half of them moved to Tallahassee to reenforce the guards protecting the jail here.

Gov. Holland appeared personally at the Tallahassee jail this morning and conferred with Maj. Gen. Albert Blanding, head the action division of the state defense council; Gen. Vivian Collins, state adjutant general, and J. J. Gilliam, director of the state public safety department.

Following their meetings, the guardsmen took the Negroes to the state prison, 140 miles east of Tallahassee and 30 miles from Gainesville, where the trial now will be held.

FUR BURGLARS BUSY AGAIN.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

By BEN MARKLAND

August 24, 1944.

FAIRLY heavy rains soaked the fields on both the Wheaton and Fox River farms Wednesday morning. Altho no rain gauge is in operation on either farm, the men believe the rainfall totaled about half an inch.

The rains will help the late corn and more important, will alleviate the threatened pasture shortage. Grass pastures are greening as a result of the rain, and alfalfa fields which are to be used as substitute pastures were revitalized by the showers.

Rain Assures Pasturage.

On the Fox River farm the men were facing a difficult decision which was solved by the rainfall. The Aberdeen-Angus herd was fast depleting the field of green stuff, which was short because of the long summer drouth. The farm manager had harvested the second cutting of alfalfa, and was considering cutting some of his corn to feed to the Angus. The rain was heavy enough to insure that the third growth of alfalfa will thrive and provide late summer pasturage for the herd.

Sixty acres of alfalfa, in fields of 40 and 20 acres, will be allotted to the Angus, making the corn cutting unnecessary. These two fields will be planted to corn next spring.

10 Acre Corn Plot Saved.

The manager of the Wheaton farm does not plan to put his steers into the alfalfa fields, preferring to feed them cut corn until the grass pastures recover.

The 10 acre test plot of corn on the Fox River farm has been cut and blown into the silo, not for immediate feeding, but to save the crop. The men had planted this field in such close hills that it was firing more than fields planted in the normal way. The crowded plants had exhausted the supply of ground moisture, and would have dried if allowed to stand.

Yield Is 35% More.

The 10 acres filled 37 feet of the 81 foot silo. The yield was 130 tons, or 13 tons to the acre, about 35 per cent more than normal production. This 10 acres filled almost half of the silo, which usually requires the corn from 40 acres to fill completely.

In the last three weeks the men on the Fox River farm have built 400 rods of new fence, using steel posts and 39 inch woven wire. They hope to put in another 600 rods of fencing before winter.

★The GARDEN★

HOME OWNERS planning to reseed their lawns will find late August and early September the best time of the year.

More and more gardeners are turning to fall seeding since this is the natural season for grass to reseed itself, the topsoil is warm and induces deep rooting, and late summer and early fall rains give the new seed an excellent start. By seeding now, gardeners will find that the grass should grow tall enough to be cut at least once before winter.

If the present stand of grass is thin and weedy, the best procedure is to spade the topsoil to a depth of at least three inches, add manure or chemical fertilizer, and then thoroly rake the topsoil to create a seedbed of the type required for a vegetable garden. After raking, the seedbed should be lightly rolled so that the low spots can be detected and filled with fine soil. Then the topsoil should be raked again before seeding. If chemical fertilizer has been used, at least two days should elapse between fertilization and seeding.

WLB DIRECTS WILSON'S TO PAY UNION $15,000

The war labor board in Washington yesterday directed Wilson & Co., Chicago packers, to pay $15,000 in checked off dues to the present financial secretary of local 25 of the United Packing House Workers [CIO]. The company had withheld payment on the ground that there was a split in the union and it faced the possibility of a lawsuit.

The WLB reached its decision unanimously after a public hearing. The board also directed Wilson & Co. to proceed with the adjustment of grievances by negotiation with the union's new officers.

The controversy began last May when the international union took over the local, removing from office Dock J. Williams, Negro, who had just been elected president. Williams charged the action was taken because he defied an order to pay a $1,000 assessment to the CIO political action committee, and took the issue into Superior court. An agreement then was reached to hold a new election, when Williams was defeated by Sam Parks, Negro.

'Out-of-Town Accent' Clue to N. Y. Amnesia Victim

Three members of the Ritholz family, manufacturers of optical goods, charged with violating the selective service law by giving false information to a draft board, were arraigned yesterday before United States commissioner Edwin K. Walker and pleaded not guilty. The men are Edward Bedno, 19, of 5630 Kenmore av.; Edward Walter Ritholz, 21, of 3300 Lake Shore dr., and Donald Adolph Ritholz, 34, of 3800 Lake Shore dr., an uncle of the younger men.

Spencer F. Drayton, agent in charge of the Chicago office of the FBI, said Bedno and Edward Ritholz were charged with informing their boards they were doing essential work whereas it was "merely routine." Donald Ritholz is charged with giving false affidavits for occupational deferment of the other two defendants. The younger men were placed under $1,500 bond, and Donald Ritholz under $2,500 bond.

The defendants have been working for the Midwest Scientific company, 1148 W. Chicago av., a subsidiary of the Ritholz Optical company.

UNION WITH BAR TO POLITICS ASKS AFL AFFILIATION

An independent national union of watchmakers, whose constitution forbids political activity or indorsements by the union and guarantees each officer and member the right to vote and campaign individually for whom he pleases, applied for membership in the American Federation of Labor yesterday. William Green, AFL president, said action would be taken on the petition by the AFL executive council now meeting at the Drake hotel.

Walter W. Cenerazzo, president of the union, the American Watch Workers' union, told the AFL board that the union has 9,200 members who are employed by the Hamilton, Elgin, and Waltham watch manufacturing companies.

Cenerazzo explained that he sponsored the constitutional provision against politics, which was adopted at a recent convention of the union, because "our membership comprises persons of every political belief—Democrats, Republicans, Socialists, and what have you." Affiliation with the AFL, it was explained, will not alter the union's constitution.

MOTHER ON WAY TO SON UNAWARE HE WAS KILLED

Red Cross authorities were asked last night to notify Mrs. Charles Flitcroft, of 706 Eighth st., Waukegan, that her son, Corp. James William Flitcroft, 19, had been killed in a plane crash near Murot air field, Cal., where he was stationed. Mrs. Flitcroft was en route to visit her son when the news came.

Corp. Flitcroft, a tail gunner, was killed Wednesday night during a routine flight. His mother had left earlier this week, planning to visit friends at La Verne, Cal., first. Her husband, a trainman on the North Shore railroad, appealed to the Red Cross after he learned of his son's death.

Corp. Flitcroft attended Waukegan High school and before his enlistment in December, 1943, was employed by Nash-Kelvinator, Kenosha, Wis.

SURVIVOR OF PACIFIC SINKINGS IS KILLED IN PLANE ACCIDENT

Lt. John M. Armitage, 24, son of Percy M. Armitage, 392 E. Chicago st., Elgin, and a navy air forces pilot who survived the sinking of the aircraft carriers Yorktown and Hornet, was killed in an airplane accident Tuesday at Barstow, Colo., his father was advised yesterday.

Holder of the distinguished flying cross and the silver star, Lt. Armitage had been stationed for the last year with a naval aviation ordnance development unit at Barstow, assigned to flying experimental planes.

Lt. Armitage was born on Mindanao Island in the Philippines, but was educated at Elgin academy and Purdue university. He enlisted in the navy in February, 1941, and was a member of one of the earliest classes graduated at Corpus Christi, Tex.

Meat balls are a summer main dish over which there's no need to fret. They're easy to prepare, always tender, and may be cooked stove-top fashion, which is a distinct advantage in kitchenette apartments on hot days.

Don't toss meat balls together carelessly, with little regard for the amount and type of seasoning used. As a general rule, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and ¼ cup of finely chopped onion are used for each pound of ground meat. Other seasonings give meat balls or patties individuality.

Italian Meat Balls.
[Serves six.]

1 pound ground beef
¼ cup grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
½ cup bread crumbs
1 egg, well beaten
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon basil

Mix all ingredients well. Form into small balls and brown on all sides in hot fat. Cover skillet and cook slowly for 20 minutes. Add to hot tomato sauce and serve on cooked spaghetti.

Swedish Meat Balls.
[Serves four.]

1 pound ground beef
3 tablespoons grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, well beaten
4 slices bread
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons fat

Mix together beef, seasonings, and egg. Toast stale bread slowly. Cover toast with water and when thoroly soaked, squeeze water from toast. Combine toast with meat. Shape into small balls and brown in hot fat. Remove balls from skillet. Add flour to fat, stir until smooth, then gradually add milk, and stir until thickened. Add meat balls, cover, and simmer about 15 minutes.

Beef and Apple Balls.
[Serves four.]

¾ pound ground beef
¼ pound ground pork
1 tart apple
3 tablespoons grated onion
3 stalks celery
6 soda crackers
1 egg, well beaten
¼ teaspoon salt

Blend meats. Core apple and grind with celery and crackers. Add to meat with onion, egg, and salt. Mix well and form into small balls. Dredge with flour and brown in hot fat. Remove balls from pan. Add 2 tablespoons flour to fat. Mix until smooth. Add 1 cup water or meat stock and stir until thickened. Return balls to gravy, cover, and simmer 15 minutes.

Pork and Rice Cakes.
[Serves four.]

1 pound ground pork
½ clove garlic
½ cup chopped parsley
1 cup cooked rice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg, well beaten

Chop garlic fine and soak in water 1 hour. Strain and combine liquid with rest of ingredients. Drop by tablespoons into hot fat and brown on both sides. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Uncover last few minutes to crisp.

Hamburger Surprises.

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup milk
Bread stuffing
1 can tomato soup

Combine first five ingredients and mix well. Make flat patties. Place a teaspoon of bread stuffing between two patties and press edges together securely. Brown in hot fat, add soup, cover, and simmer 45 minutes. [To make stuffing, combine 1½ cups soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, ½ tablespoon chopped parsley, ¾ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ¾ teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 tablespoon melted butter and water to moisten slightly.]

You Are Lucky if You Can Buy 1st Grade Meat

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

If you can still get prime beef steak or top grade pork chops, even with ration points, it is contrary to what the office of price administration had planned or has in store for you, it was said in the stock yards yesterday. Price manipulation by food planners is seen as an attempt to bring production of meat into a regimented program and force a large part of the people to eat much the same grade of meat or go without.

To accomplish this plan, those in charge are taking a larger percentage of production of best grades for lend-lease, leaving low grade meat point free and placing a high point value on best grades, and arranging live stock and meat price ceilings to discourage production of best grades, it was said.

Farmers producing plainer classes of meat animals in some instances get more for their offerings in the market than the man who brings in top grade animals. At present the drive to narrow the price spread in live stock markets is more effective in hogs than in cattle. Plans to penalize producers of top grade steers have been upset to some extent by competition of black market operators who bid prices for best steers well above the level legitimate packers can pay. However, the result is that a smaller share of prime beef gets into the regular trade channels.

Under existing ceilings enforced at the stock yards by the OPA, hog raisers who send in prime, well finished stock weighing just over 240 pounds cannot get as much as the careless producer who markets skinny, light animals. In fact, the OPA rules permit packers to give $14.75 for an unfinished pig weighing 100 pounds or less, but if they pay more than $14 for a prime fat hog weighing 241 pounds they are open to prosecution for price law violation and can even be charged with black market practices. Under normal conditions the latter class would bring a substantial price premium.

There is no secret about the plans of the New Dealers to regulate the meat diet of Americans to a lower standard. Officials of the OPA have openly admitted to live stock groups that this is their plan for beef. Spokesmen for the meat division of the OPA have declared several times that prime beef is too "expensive" to produce and utilizes too much of the grain needed in the war program.

Some leaders in the meat industry admit concern over the policy of the OPA to discourage improved methods of feeding meat animals. Under conditions when volume was large the regulations promoting the plainer grades of hogs were not as effective as now since almost all classes are now pounding ceiling prices.

U. S. Reserves Pork

Meat packers will be required to set aside percentages of some cuts of pork for government procurement, starting Sunday, the war food administratiton announced here last night. The amount of meat allocated by the government for civilians will not be changed, WFA officials said.

Pork cuts to be set aside for the government are: Frozen pork sides weighing 48 to 100 pounds, 6 per cent of carcass weight of week's production; loins of government specifications, 30 per cent of loin production; hams, 40 per cent of production; square cut and seedless pork bellies, 50 per cent of cuts between 6 and 20 pounds; shoulder cuts, 70 per cent of total production.

The percentages to be set aside will be varied as production totals change. The order will be administered by E. S. Waterbury of the WFA office of distribution at 5 S. Wabash av. It will apply to packers under federal inspection regulations.

Loss of Sleep Mars Child's Disposition

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Come, Don, it's 7:30, and you must dress quickly and come down to breakfast if you're to get to school on time," called his mother. And she went back to the kitchen.

After several prods from the foot of the stairs, Don finally arrived at the table, but he didn't want much to eat, answered in monosyllables, and snapped at the baby when she reached over and touched his arm.

"My goodness, Don, what makes you so cross? You've been thoroly disagreeable for the last three days. There's Jack whistling for you—perhaps he can help sweeten your disposition on the way to school."

It's discouraging when children wake up in the morning just plain cranky. You wonder if they are gradually losing their nice dispositions. Then, perhaps you realize that your Don has been studying and playing harder than usual because so much has to be crowded into the late afternoon and evening. Also something may have come up each night to delay bed time an hour or two beyond the usual time, and the result is that he's short on sleep. Just plain tired, that's all.

Sleep is vitally important to all young, growing things, and if the quota necessary for sound health and a sweet disposition is consistently lacking, you're bound to see the results. Only it's well to remember that your child doesn't know the cause nor the cure. It's up to you to arrange things so that he not only catches up on, but maintains, his full allotment of sleep.

Of course, there are other times when children get cranky. You can't imagine what is the matter. Nothing has happened to cause it; they are not tired, and look perfectly well. You go ahead and serve a hearty lunch when they troop in from school. Then smiles and spirits bubble back and you realize that they are going thru a phase in which hunger has a devastating effect upon their dispositions.

Then there's still another time when you'll notice their temperaments are uneven after a slight upset. One day's fever will take its toll of their vitality, and sometimes for several days they will show the results of it.

It's always wise to try to find out what is the matter when the children are cranky. If they can't find anything they want to do, if they're disobliging, cross, impatient, or impossible to please, there's usually a physical reason for it. If you find the cause you can remove it, or at least make allowance for it.

Mrs. Ed. W., Chicago—When anyone spills coffee on a rug I make a paste of egg yolk and warm water and lather the spot. Then I rinse with clear water. If the stain is not fresh it helps to add a few drops of alcohol to the mixture.

Mrs. George F., Elgin, Ill.—This summer—between extra guests and roomers—we had to schedule bath and shower time for each member of the family and space the baths at ten minute intervals. We called this scheduled time "a reservation," and to make children coöperative told 'em how it was done on shipboard in pre-war days. The idea worked.

Betty A., Evanston—If you are a young housewife or young at "laundry tasks" you will find that sheets and other linens will iron more easily if they are hung straight on the line.

Please—Now—Your Idea!

Jumper dresses are no longer for the young and growing girl but rate as one of the most popular items in a career girl's wardrobe. These clever creations which have just arrived are smoothly casual or styled for dress parade.

The black wool jumper dress sketched at the left has a modified peg top skirt and an unusual jacket. The blouse back is cut on the lines of a lumber jacket, while the front is composed of two fringed wool scarfs of the Stuart dress tartan with two chest pockets bound in black. The belt holds the scarfs in place. A white cotton knit shirt with long, tight sleeves completes the outfit. This jumper also is available in fireman red.

Life is full of surprises, none more interesting than the black velveteen number in the center. The skirt has slight fullness in front and is slim of line in back, the vee top, which is cut low in back, is detachable so that the velvet skirt may be worn with a short sleeved evening blouse.

The third member of this group, at right, combines black and yellow. The black skirt of flannel-like texture has three front and two back plaits. The striped jerkin top has a wealth of detail in the square cut of the armhole, the high, slit neckline, and side button closing, with buttons of self-material. The smooth black jersey blouse, with a flowing bow tie at the high neckline, has a tight cuff on the bracelet length sleeve and is fastened with two jersey buttons.

The time to finesse is when you have to—not when this type of play is nothing but a luxury! The declarer in this deal well deserved the fate that befell him.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's bidding, at any rate, was correct.

West led his fourth highest spade, dummy ducked, and declarer captured East's jack. Declarer's next move was to enter dummy with a heart, return a low diamond, and finesse with the queen. West smothered that card and shrewdly banged down the spade queen, making sure that dummy's last entry died a sudden death. This meant that the only diamond won by South's side was the ace! He came out one trick short of his contract.

This was a hard hand to lose. South did not remotely need the diamond finesse—he could afford to give the enemy two tricks in the suit if at the same time he definitely established three tricks for himself. Thus, his first play should have been the ace and another diamond from the closed hand; he could control any return made by the enemy and drive out their last diamond stopper while keeping entries to the dummy.

Bridge Group Opens Annual Summer Title Tournament Today

The annual Chicago summer championship tournament of the Chicago Contract Bridge association will open this afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel, with events, both afternoon and evening, continuing thru Sunday. The tournament, in which master points will be awarded, is being played under the auspices of the American Contract Bridge league.

Play will open with the men's and women's pair events, to be decided in one session this afternoon. The mixed pair game will be played this evening, also in one session. These three events are new on the schedule of the summer tournament, which in previous years was limited to open pair and team events.

The open pair contest will be played tomorrow in two sessions, afternoon and evening, with all pairs playing thru both sessions and meeting as many other pairs as feasible. The team-of-four event will conclude the tournament Sunday. This likewise will be in two sessions, afternoon and evening. This game is open to any team of four or five players, men, women or mixed. Scoring will be by board a match.

Lake Geneva Sheridan Cup Race Sunday

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE oldest racing classic held on inland waters, the Gen. Philip H. Sheridan cup regatta of the Lake Geneva Yacht club, will be held Sunday at Lake Geneva, Wis. The race was first staged in August, 1873, in honor of Gen. Sheridan, who was a frequent visitor to the lake. Julian S. Rumsey, civil war mayor of Chicago, won it in his sandbagger, Nettie, and since that time a silver model of the Nettie has been the trophy, the most prized award of the club.

A class boats now participate in the race, and among the skippers who will be vying for the trophy Sunday are Philip A. Starck, Jack Vilas Jr., Ernst C. Schmidt, Melville C. Jones, John and Frederick Clifford, Frederick C. Gartz, Harry Melges, and John F. Perrigo. I. L. Ellwood is commodore of the Yacht club, whose annual meeting will be held tomorrow.

With 60 of the younger members of the Lake Geneva Country club in service, it is not expected that the annual Labor Day golf tournament for the Charles R. Crane trophy will bring a large field. Contestants are limited to men under 25. The club will have one of its few dinner-dances of the season Sept. 2. The annual bridge party for the benefit of Holiday Home will be held at the club next Friday with Mrs. Starck in charge.

On the Calendar.

Members of the Big Foot Country club in Lake Geneva and their friends are looking forward to the annual farm auction party to be held at the club at 7 p. m. tomorrow. Following an old fashioned farm dinner, there will be an auction sale, conducted by Col. Duffy Leonard, of many unusual, interesting, and valuable items donated by lake residents.

Dr. and Mrs. Melford E. Zinser are chairmen of the event, at which there also will be entertainment by radio stars and booths in which aprons, cakes, and cosmetics will be sold. Some of those assisting with plans for the gathering are the Charles J. Bowmans, Mr. and Mrs. William Steinmetz, the Leonard Condons, and the Richard Pfeils.

Edward L. Ryerson, president of the Chicago Orchestral society, and Mrs. Ryerson will be hosts to a few of their friends at tonight's Grant Park concert, at which Miss Josephine Antoine will be the last of the season's soloists. The Otto Eitels and Mrs. Edward A. Leight also will take guests to the concert and to a reception for Miss Antoine and Désiré Defauw, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which will follow at the Cliff Dwellers.

Welcoming Carl Brisson back to the Mayfair room at the Blackstone tonight will be Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris, the William Allisons, Ove Vett, Brig. Gen. A. F. Lorenzen, and the Richard Becks, who are here from their ranch in Florida. They all have reservations for dinner.

War Objectors Are 1 to 1,000 Men in Service

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A survey of public service camps for conscientious objectors by the Lutheran, official journal of the United Lutheran Church of America, shows a proportion of one conscientious objector to 1,000 men in the various branches of service. This was based on an estimated 10 million men in service, compared with aproximately 10,000 men in conscientious objector camps and projects thruout the country.

The Lutheran's survey discloses that a majority of the conscientious objectors are members of anti-war churches. The statistical breakdown follows:

Mennonite, 3,095; Church of the Brethren [Dunkers], 1,827; Friends [Quakers], 1,678; Methodists, 68; Roman Catholic, 66; Baptist, 1; miscellaneous, including no denomination classification, 440; total, 7,186; discharged into military forces, 676; discharged for other causes, 1,547; grand total, 9,409.

Noting that the figures represent a small pacifist potential, the Lutheran asserted, however, that "immediately following unconditional surrender of the axis, the pacifists will be dominant by an enormous majority. The desire for peace is global. It is so definite that it is in the minds and hearts not only of those now in the armed forces but also in their kinfolk and their communities. It is so intense as to justify the continuance of an armed force to maintain it."

Red Cross Workers Hear Army Nurse's Story of New Guinea

The life of an army nurse who spent 27 months on New Guinea was described last night by Lt. Col. Martha J. Clement, senior army nurse of the 6th service command, before 500 Red Cross workers and nurses' aids at 140 S. Dearborn st. Col. Clement, one of the original 30 nurses landing on the island, said they had 750 patients awaiting them when they arrived.

"At night," she related, "each woman took care of more than 200 acutely ill and wounded men. In addition, we dug our own fox holes, did our own laundry, and waded mud to our knees. We converted packing boxes into medicine chests and turned bomb racks into bedside tables."

Mme. Julia Marie Colbjornsen, wife of a Norwegian parliament member, told the Red Cross workers how she fled Norway after the Nazi invasion and later worked as a nurses' aid in Washington, where her husband is financial counselor in the Norwegian embassy.

30 Cadet Nurses to Get Caps at Presbyterian

Thirty members of the cadet nursing corps of Presbyterian hospital will receive their caps for completion of their first six months of training at exercises at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Sprague hall, 1750 Congress st. Greetings will be extended to the class by Miss Johanna De Vries, former missionary nurse who was graduated from the school in 1933.

Little Rationing Change in Sight for September

Little or no change in point requirements for food is in prospect for September; fewer automobiles will be available to civilians, who also will get 300,000 fewer tires than in August; the gasoline shortage will not be eased to any extent, and, even if the war ends in Europe soon, gasoline and fuel oil will continue to be rationed, the office of price administration said yesterday.

However, there will be more shoes for children and infants; enough sugar will be available for civilian needs, and truck owners will get more tires, altho far from enough to keep essential supplies moving at full volume, it was repofted by John M. Kamerick, regional rationing executive; Rae E. Walters, regional administrator, and John Neukom, director of OPA's fuel rationing division, after a three day conference of ration officials in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The fruit pack by canners this year, Kamerick said, will approximate last year's 25 million cases for civilian use. The 88 million cases of vegetables will be considerably under last year's, but the carry over from 1943 will just about even up the supply, he said, and there will be 73 million cases of jams and other specialties, compared with 66 million last year.

Points for processed foods and meats will undergo little change on the September charts, he said, with about 30 per cent of all meats by weight rationed. Quality of beef probably will keep on deteriorating.

Production of creamery butter is falling and output will continue to be less than consumption until spring, Kamerick said, with the difference made up by drawing on reserves. It is barely possible, he said, the point value of butter, now at 16 per pound, may be increased.

Sugar refiners, he said, will meet demand with nothing to spare, but home canners will get what they need.

He scoffed at a report that passenger car tires will go off rationing. There will be 1,650,000 allocated for civilian use in September, compared with 1,950,000 this month. August production will be 1,500,000, and the maximum expected in September is 1,700,000.

Truckers will get 102,000 tires of larger sizes next month, compared with 85,000 in August.

All stoves will continue to be rationed, the officials agreed, because of limited supplies, and oil space heaters will not be removed from the list until oil is no longer rationed.

September's quota of new automobiles for civilian release will be 3,000, compared with 4,500 in August and 10,000 in July. There are 22,000 new cars now in dealers' hands.

Shoes, Kamerick said, continue to be used by civilians at the rate of 25 million pairs per year more than are produced.

Stuffed Cantaloupe

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

1 large cantaloupe
½ package raspberry gelatin
½ cup boiling water
½ cup fruit juice and cold water
½ cup mixed sliced peaches and blueberries
2 packages cream cheese
Cream

Cut slice from end of melon; scoop out seeds with spoon. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and add fruit juice and cold water. When chilled until sirupy, add fruits and fill cavity of cantaloupe with mixture. The exact amount of gelatin mixture needed will depend on size of seed cavity of melon. Replace slice cut from top and chill overnight or until gelatin is firm. Pare melon and frost with softened cream cheese, to which enough cream has been added to make of spreading consistency. Cut in slices to serve. [Serves six to eight.]

Thru the Looking Glass

Conferring with the college girls, we learn that the going-away beauty gifts they treasure most are the practical things, first, and bath trimmings second.

Among their necessities they list the good [not necessarily handsome] hair brush as a must. Shining hair is an obsession with every college girl with any pretension to campus chic, and hair brushing every single night is as much a ritual with her as brushing teeth. A brush with long, strong bristles and the kind of a back that will withstand frequent washing with soap, water, and a bit of ammonia is what they want.

Hands are as much of a vanity with them as hair, and most of them "do" their own nails. They want as complete a manicure kit as the times will provide and they want lots of polish in their preferred shades, plus nail creams that soften cuticle. Hand lotion, to keep the skin smooth and white, is an important item and one they use by the gallon.

Their complexion needs are simple—cleansing cream, a night cream, a foundation. They don't use much makeup other than powder and lipstick, but they do use mascara for big occasions and they will need a good tweezer to keep brows groomed.

Perfume they love, but they're not lavish with it, and with the very good taste that prevails on the average campus they use it artfully. It's for the big occasion, not for the classroom, they say. For everyday use they like colognes, in nice airy fragrances rather than the seductive kind.

In cold climates they want body lotions to relieve winter skin dryness, and without exception they have a yen for bland, creamy, and sweetly scented soaps, preferably in the perfume of their favorite cologne. Dusting powder is a nice luxury they like, and a good deodorant is a major necessity.

New Students Get Preview of Life at Vassar

BY ELEANOR PAGE

There is still a social life at Vassar, the young women who will enter college next month were told yesterday at a luncheon at the Racquet club.

"No one is so unpatriotic as to hoard men," Miss Martha Louise Halbrecht, a Vassar senior, told the incoming students. "There are still week-ends, U. S. O. dances, parties at the Officers' Rehabilitation camp at Pawling, N. Y.—and I almost forgot! West Point is very close and has 3,000 cadets!"

The gayer side of life at Vassar was not the only aspect discussed by upper classmen at yesterday's gathering, which was arranged by the Chicago and North Shore Vassar club and presided over by Mrs. Harold Pulsifer. Making the meeting really "official" was the presence of Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, who called herself "the oldest Vassar product anywhere about and still going strong as you can see." Mrs. MacLeish was graduated in 1878 and has taken a prominent part in alumnae activities ever since.

Miss Patricia Kealy gave prospective students advice on campus fashions that was appreciated equally by their mothers, who also attended the luncheon. New to the campus are smocks which the students wear while doing housework, a war time necessity because of the lack of help, and gingham frocks and hairnets which are required for the duties of waiting on table. Blue jeans, the traditional sweaters and skirts, one or two evening gowns, a dressy afternoon frock, ski pants for cold weather, and raincoat, hat, and boots were listed as other wardrobe necessities.

"Travel light" was the advice given by Miss Shirley Fitzgerald, who spoke on her first day at college, when girls who arrived overburdened with suitcases found they had to carry them themselves. "Don't forget your ration books," she also cautioned.

Seated at the incoming freshmen table was a young woman who will not, however, enter Vassar for another two years, Miss Mary Hooker, who is a student at Chatham hall. Her mother, Mrs. John P. Hooker, a former Vassar student, sat with Mrs. Paul Moore of Geneva, whose daughter, Mary Virginia, will leave on the 30th for the college in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Other guests included Miss Etheldred Abbott, who seldom misses a Vassar party; Mrs. Polk Warner, Mrs. Carleton Blunt, Miss Mildred De Wolf, and Mrs. Ruth Campbell Meeker. Among the freshmen were Miss Clarissa Haffner, Miss Jean Ford of Champaign, Miss Betty Jane Martin, Miss Lee Wilcox, Miss Elizabeth DeLong, and Miss Claire Wetzler.

Who else wants to say "Goodbye" to these 6 Face Powder Troubles?

1 Does the face powder you use fail to give a smooth, even finish?
2 Does the face powder you use fail to stay on?
3 Does the face powder you use fail to stay fresh and fragrant?
5 Does the face powder you use fail to hide tiny freckles?
6 Does the face powder you use fail to hide tiny blemishes?

It's Lady Esther Face Powder—and it's different because it's made differently! It isn't just mixed in the usual way—it's blown by TWIN HURRICANES. And this patented hurricane method of blending not only makes the texture much smoother and finer than ordinary powder—it makes the shades richer—it makes your skin look younger!

Living Proof—In Your Own Mirror!

Just try Lady Esther Face Powder! Get the smallest size box, if you like—but try it! When you see how much softer, smoother and younger it makes your skin look—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But for living proof in your own mirror that this is the most flattering face powder you have ever used, get the small-size box of Lady Esther Face Powder today!

Hats Larger, So Handbags Are Smaller

BY REA SEEGER.

Between the first new fall fabrics and the costume accessories there's little doubt that a new season is about to take over. Susceptible shoppers with summer wardrobes decidedly battered and tattered after heavy going, will find these fall "firsts" especially tempting. Handbags, for the first time in years, are smaller than they've ever been, because the new hats are bigger. All kinds of wool materials are used and some costly models are leather lined, but the fabric covered affairs are smart and surprisingly low in price. The kit box types with carry-straps and bands are popular.

Rare and expensive leather bags are handsomely designed, feature smooth, capacious interiors, and are appreciably smaller in size and outline than last year's. The return of slim flat envelopes are a delight to career girls and the college crowd, who ask for neat, trim money containers. Natural colored pigskin is one of the best buys to wear with fall tweeds and wools, for it's a rich golden shade, and is effective with brown, black, blue, green, and red. Much smaller envelopes in fine grained leathers are the pride and joy of the school girls.

Pouch bags, in materials resembling dress parade broadcloth, and fabric bags, quilted, padded, and then stitched in contrasting colored thread, are still the favorite of the sophisticated shoppers. They swing from shoulder or elbow, and emphasize swank and size because of the outline and material used. Gleaming black and dark brown satin bags and box-bags make the best accents for the suave satin suits and afternoon dresses of the same material. Fringe tassels, velvet ribbon bows, and jet beads trim the smartest dress parade models.

Baby Shower Gift

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A set of crocheted jackets for the mother and her infant are an ideal thought for a baby shower gift. They are simple to create, done in a lacy "dew drop" pattern which works up rapidly. Colors may be the same or of contrasting pastels.

For instructions in crocheting the jacket set, No. 135, send 10 cents in stamps or coin plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Announcement of Marriages Is Being Made

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Patricia Borgstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf J. Borgstrom of Estes av., to Lt. [j. g.] Alphonse J. Mueller Jr., July 15 in St. Margaret Mary's church. The bride was graduated from Rosary college. Lt. Mueller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mueller of Granite City, Ill., received his degree from the University of Illinois.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Elizabeth Roos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Roos of N. Tripp av., to Corp. Robert Walter Lindvall of International Falls, Minn., took place Aug. 4 in the First Methodist church of Irving Park. Corp. Lindvall is stationed at Camp Livingston, La. He and his bride attended the University of Minnesota and plan to return there after the war to take their degrees.

Miss Doris Helene Batkin of New York and Capt. Richard M. Fischer of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Fischer of Chase av., will be married Sunday at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York. Capt. Fischer, who has spent almost two years in Iceland, now is stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J. He is a graduate of Northwestern Military and Naval academy and the University of Michigan and attended the Harvard school of business administration. He and his bride will live in Chicago after the war.

Dr. and Mrs. John E. Smuk of N. St. Louis av. announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia Eugenia, to Lt. [j. g.] Walter Ulick July 22 in St. Nicholas' church. The bride attended De Paul university. Lt. Ulick, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ulick of Irving Park rd., studied at Northwestern university before entering the naval reserve. He is stationed at Great Lakes.

Well Tailored

Stitching outlining the collar, cuffs, and paneling of this tailored dress gives it a distinctive air. Gabardine is an especially smart fabric for this shirtwaist model. Style No. 2779 is designed for sizes 12 to 48. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

a day or two before his marriage Sept. 9 to Miss Nancy Ellis, their prenuptial parties are being limited to a buffet supper the night before in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. Groverman Ellis of Wayne, and a luncheon which Sgt. Cooke's mother, Mrs. Russell Cooke, will give the day of the wedding at the Dunham Woods club.

The wedding invitations being sent out by Mrs. Ellis actually are for an informal open house at her farm at 5:30 p. m. on the 9th, as the ceremony an hour earlier in St. Mark's church, Geneva, will be limited to the two families. Miss Ellis will have eight attendants. Her sister, Mary Jane, will share the duties of maid of honor with the bride's Farmington roommate, Miss Caroline Wainwright, who is coming from New York. Also in the bridal party will be Miss Ellis' cousins, Miss Harriet Swift of Pasadena, Cal., and Miss Jane Leonard of Wilmington, Ill.; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Leonard Ellis; Mrs. Ray Sadler and Miss Emily Dorrance of Philadelphia, Pa., and another Farmington classmate, Miss Anne Louise Fisk of Woodstock, Vt. Sgt. Cooke will take his bride to his post in Georgia.

Engagement News.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Webster Legg of Baltimore, Md., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Webster, to Lt. [j. g.] William E. Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip E. Hopkins of Evanston. The wedding is planned for Sept. 21. Miss Legg, a graduate of the Oldfields school, made her debut at the Bachelors' Cotillion in 1941. Her fiancé, who received his degree from the University of Notre Dame, is stationed at Patuxent River, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. John Borland of E. 75th pl. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to Pvt. Blanchard Bert Reeb, son of Mrs. Myrtle I. Reeb of Avenue J. The wedding will take place Sept. 16. Pvt. Reeb attended the University of Arizona until a few months ago, when he returned to Chicago to continue his studies in the medical school at Northwestern university.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Heuman of S. Pauline st. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to Ensign Russell S. Pocock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Pocock of W. 113th pl. Miss Heuman attends Indiana university. Her fiancé has been assigned to active duty in the Pacific.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

At home in Chicago on brief furlough between 13 months of duty in England and a stint at officer candidate school at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., starting Sunday, 1st Sgt. Virginia Rosekrans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rosekrans, 11411 S. Union av., recommends foreign service. She hopes to go overseas again, next time with a commission.

Her principal job in England was with the 8th air force, when she was head of approximately 400 WACs doing clerical, technical, and communications work. Just before returning to the United States she spent three months in London training American citizens who transferred to the WAC from various British women's services in which they had enlisted before the United States entered the war.

Sgt. Rosekrans has several "firsts" in her military record. She was one of the original WAAC group which trained at Fort Des Moines, Ia., in July, 1942, and she was the first woman 1st sergeant in the history of the army. She also instructed the first WAC company, No. 76, to go to England.

Sgt. Rosekrans was born in Lansdowne, Pa., and attended Pennsylvania schools and the Art Institute of Chicago. Before enlisting she was a sculptor and lecturer. Her work has been exhibited in various art galleries, including that in Radio City.

She has a message for prospective WACs. "The women are doing a wonderful job on the other side," she said. "Their morale is excellent. There isn't too much glamor, but there's a lot of hard work to be done, and more WACs are badly needed to do it."

Approximately 100 new Chicago WAC recruits are preceding Sgt. Rosekrans to Fort Oglethorpe. In the group which left yesterday for basic training are several mothers, widows, sisters, and other relatives of men in uniform.

One of the recruits, Mrs. Ingeborg Rosenau, is the widow of a soldier in this war. Mrs. Alice Anderson, 47, joins her son Arthur, 18, in uniform. He is stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training center. Mrs. Helen de Marais has a son and daughter serving overseas. Seven of the new WACs each have two brothers in service, and 18 have one.

The ladies' auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the final session yesterday of its 31st annual national encampment in the Hotel Sherman, elected the following officers: Hazel Miller, Des Moines, Ia., president; M. Frances Anderson, Bridgeport, Conn., senior vice president; Sally Cannon, Youngstown, O., junior vice president; Grace H. Davis, Kansas City, Mo., secretary-treasurer; Dorothy Mann, Detroit, Mich., chaplain; Gertrude McDonald, Somerville, Mass., conductress, and Evelyn Monaco, Albuquerque, N. M., guard.

'Miss Lieutenant' . . . . . By Nina Wilcox Putnam

INSTALMENT XXIII.

REUNITED.

As they watched, Carol explained to Bright about this sort of little circus.

"They are as much a part of France as the kilometer stones along the highways," she said. "They used to travel everywhere. Most of the people in each circus have been with it for years and years—sometimes a family will have been with one for generations. They would not dream of changing their way of living or the acts they have inherited."

Carol felt uncertain as to what came next. It was all very well to pile up good reasons for Lita being with this ragged group, but so far she had seen no one who might conceivably be her sister.

"I'm going to try the song," she said. "If they answer, we'll know it's all right. If they don't, we'll just keep singing and go on our way to Grasse."

She leaned against the trunk of a tree where the shadows were thickest, humming a few bars in the absent-minded fashion of one who sings an old tune unconsciously while working or walking. Then she sang the signal words:

"Frere Jacques, frere Jacques, Dormez-vous?"

When she came to the break she peered around the tree and saw that work in the camp had come to a standstill as tho by magic. Then the answer came in a rough masculine voice:

"Sonne la Matina
Sonne la Matina
Ding-dong-Boom."

The man who had herded Baba down the road was coming toward them thru the thicket, singing in a cracked voice but with a casual air. Carol stepped boldly out to meet him, Bright close behind. The man peered at her, but it was too dark for them to see each other's faces.

"Have I sung right?" she asked.

"Thou has sung right!" he answered, completing the password. Carol tingled with excitement. So she had guessed correctly! These people were working with les Services—with the Underground. Then she made a mistake.

"Don't you know me?" she asked. "I am Mme. Cassard."

She had expected this statement to evoke a welcome or, at worst, some useful information.

"I know nothing of any Mme. Cassard," he said bluntly. "You have come to the wrong place."

"But the little white donkey—Cette petite Baba!" Carol cried desperately. "I can't be wrong!"

"The donkey is mine," said the man sullenly. "I know nothing of any Baba."

"Very well," said Carol, sure he was bluffing and deciding to force his hand. "I see we have indeed made a mistake. We will go now."

She turned and walked a few steps toward the road and immediately the bearded man was at her heels.

"Not so fast!" he said harshly. "You come here in a strange manner and say things which are impossible. We'd better have a good look at you both before you attempt to leave!"

"Do I sock him?" Bright said it in English, which didn't help matters.

"No. Let's go with him quietly."

The man seemed slightly nonplussed by this interchange in a language he probably recognized. But his attitude remained threatening as he herded them toward the camp. Carol moved into the brightness of the fire and uncovered her head. The light was full on her face now and the man who had challenged her fell back in surprise.

"Madame!" he cried. "A million pardons. So it is really you! But I cannot understand. . . ."

"You don't have to—not yet!" said Carol calmly. Now she knew what she had wanted to know—these people were in touch with Lita. By the grace of God and a small white donkey they had stumbled upon the right track. Her self-confidence came back with a rush and she was about to speak again when one of the old clowns returned from the pool, a laden water bucket in each hand.

"Mme. Lita!" his old voice was sharply reproving. "Where have you been? Don't you know that it is of an exceeding danger for you to leave the camp at any time? And who is this with you?"

The withered face was tenderly familiar. He had told her stories as she sat by his knee while he peeled potatoes after the show and Victorine gossiped with the womenfolk. He scolded her now with the right of an old affection.

"I am not Lita, Monsieur Papagol," Carol's voice trembled a little. "I am the other twin, Carol. If Lita is here, please permit me to see her."

The old man's jaw dropped in incredulous surprise. He looked at her as if he, too, were seeing a vision out of the past. Then before any one could speak the door of the shabby old red wagon opened and the very echo of Carol's own voice broke the strained silence.

"Carol! Somebody tell me my wish has come true. Carol!"

Lita was standing there in the entrance, her eyes still dusky from the sleep from which she had been aroused. The likeness between them struck a sort of electric shock thru the watchers. But Carol scarcely felt it as she went toward her twin. Her heart was singing all sorts of ridiculous beautiful words as the sisters met in a long, aching embrace.

"You long legged brute of a red head, I thought I'd never catch up with you!"

"What low down thing are you cooking up over here, Carrot Top? Who let you in off the pasture, you crazy colt?"

"I'll tell you later. How come I had to form a two man posse to find you?"

"Let me look at you!" said Lita, holding Carol at arm's length. "Why didn't I know I was going to meet you? All my life I've known beforehand when you were near! And it seemed so impossible that you'd come. But, Longlegs, I've sure wanted you! Who's the escort and why?" Lita had recovered enough to glance over Carol's shoulder at Bright.

"The boy friend," said Carol briefly. "Home town product by the name of Stoner."

"Howdy, stranger!" Bright had both of Lita's hands in his and was grinning happily.

The circus people had become vocal now. It was marvelous, but yes, a miracle that the dear Mees Carol had returned to them, but was Mme. Lita positive that it was all right? Mme. Lita, it seemed, was positive: she would personally guarantee both of the newcomers. The man with the beard was presented—M. Renne Jessant, the manager of the circus, a comparative novice since he had inherited the job from his father but a short 10 years ago.

Music Notes

Franco Autori, conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic orchestra, had such a success as conductor of the Chautauqua Symphony orchestra during the 71st season just ended at Chautauqua, N. Y., that he was immediately reëngaged for the summer of 1945. Mr. Autori succeeded the late Albert Stoessel at Chautauqua after Wilfred Pelletier withdrew because of radio commitments. According to the management, Autori's concerts drew exceptionally large crowds, averaging 5,000 persons and reaching as high as 8,000.

Latest 'Falcon' Movie One of Best in Series

"THE FALCON IN MEXICO."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

STORY: The Falcon [Tom Conway] comes to the aid of beauty in distress and follows a trail that leads to Mexico—where he solves a brace of murders and a mysterious disappearance.

ACTING: Tom Conway is suave and adept. Excellent in support are Nestor Paiva, Fernando Alvarado, and Mona Maris. Bryant Washburn, handsome and cleft chinned as of yore, makes a brief and pleasing appearance.

SETS, SCENERY, COSTUMES: Suitable.

DIRECTION: Able.

DIALOG: Fair.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Patrons were enjoying the film the day I visited the theater.

Tonight's Program at Grant Park

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 24.—It may surprise a lot of people in Hollywood that Sonny Tufts, James Craig, and Gloria de Haven head the list of ten players elected to stardom by the nation's exhibitors in Motion Picture Herald's annual poll. But it doesn't surprise me, because Sonny Tufts has been coming up by leaps and bounds ever since he started. . . . C. B. De Mille has changed the title of "Rurales" to "The Flame." This is the story with a Mexican locale that he's been working on for two years, and he expects to begin casting shortly. He'd like Linda Darnell for it. She not only looks a little Spanish, but is. De Mille's associate director, Art Rosson, has already left for Mexico to begin preliminary work. He'll be down there about three months. . . . Charles Boyer and Julian Duvivier, who made "Flesh and Fantasy," are planning another collaboration, which will probably have to do with the liberation of France. . . . Ruth Warrick is the fourth member of "Guest in the House" cast to be signed to a long term contract. She'll do a picture a year for five years for Hunt Stromberg. The other three signed were Ralph Bellamy, Connie Laird, and Marie McDonald.

Sonny Tufts. Gloria de Haven. James Craig. Ruth Warrick.

Mickey Gives the Town a Surprise.

Mickey Rooney's friends thought that when he had his leave here he might rush off and remarry Ava Gardner, but he's turned his affections to Gloria de Haven. . . . Rita Hayworth and Orson Welles seen holding hands even when dining out. . . . It seems silly, but friends of Susan Hayward and Jess Barker already are talking about their spats. . . . It isn't true that Freddie March has bought "Goodnight, Sweet Prince." . . . The new Gene Fowler has been making calls on all his old friends, and the reason he's new is because he's wearing his son's clothes—his son being in uniform. The most startling bit of raiment is a hand painted tie of a Petty drawing. . . . Ben Hecht, who's always wanted to act, gets his chance on radio in "Suspense." He's asked his friends to listen in. They will—and how. . . . Seymour Nebenzal threw a cocktail party for the archduke of Austria, Francis Joseph, yesterday at the Beverly Hills hotel.

What Our Manpower Is Doing.

Joe E. Brown is wanted for "Glad to See You," the Broadway show Buzz Berkeley's directing, with Dave Wolper producing. Lupe Velez and Jane Withers are already set for it, and Joe is trying to work out his radio show so he can go to New York. The show is scheduled to open early in the fall. . . . Bob Benchley, who's now at R. K. O. working in "Panamericana," goes over to work with Fred Allen Sept. 1, then back to Paramount for "Duffy's Tavern." After that Metro wants to borrow him. . . . Dan Duryea has signed for Metro's "Telltale Hands" with Edward Arnold and Selena Royle. . . . Bill Murphy, who's made five pictures in a row without a day off since he was released from the navy, is going into his sixth, "It's a Pleasure," with Sonja Henie and Michael O'Shea, and is already signed up for his seventh, Lester Cowan's "G. I. Joe." . . . C. Aubrey Smith will play the skeptical lawyer in Twentieth Century's "Bon Voyage," starring Jeanne Crain. Lee Strasberg of the Theater guild directs and Bill Bacher produces.

Shorties.

Edward Everett Horton is still remodeling his Belly Acres estate. This time it's his garage, servants' quarters, and two guest houses, which will quarter officers from Encino on week-ends. . . . Lauritz Melchior is proud as punch over the medal he received as the outstanding Mason of the year. Eddie Rickenbacker was last year's choice. . . . Ida Lupino and Walter Donaldson's song, "Back Seat in a Taxi," are doing all right on the air. . . . Eva Gabor was notified by the war department that her police dog has been killed in action overseas, after three years' service. Errol Flynn's dog, Moody, rejected by the army, plays a part in "Objective, Burma." . . . Mario Berini, who sang at the Hollywood bowl last week, has left for Mexico, and then goes on to South America for concerts. . . . A certain Hollywood character asked Georgia Gibbs if she thought him conceited. "No. Why?" asked Georgia politely. "O," he replied, "People as good looking as I usually are."

Woman Is Appointed Professor in U. of C. School of Business

Miss Fern W. Gleiser of Iowa State college has been appointed the first woman faculty member of full professional rank in the University of Chicago's school of business, it was announced yesterday by Garfield V. Cox, acting dean of the school.

Other appointments to the school of business announced were those of C. F. Chizek, head of the University of Notre Dame's accounting department, who will be an associate professor of accounting, and Burleigh B. Gardner, research associate at the university, who will be assistant professor of industrial relations.

Miss Gleiser, an authority in the field of food management, headed the institution management department at Iowa State for the last 13 years. As professor of institution management at Chicago, she will assist in developing the restaurant administration course.

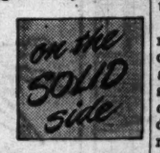
[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Here's some solid thinking for certain brown-legged honeychiles to mull over next time they are lolling on the beach in a scant two piece sarong or out on public tennis courts in a halter shirt and shorts. It comes in a letter from a high school gal, just one of dozens from fellows and girls who have sent in protests against the current shortage in sports wear, and it gives out this way:



"I am an average teen-ager. I like most of the fads and different fashions other girls do, but there are certain things which have been carried too far. Namely, 'short' shorts and those brief two-piece bathing suits. I can't understand how half-way decent girls can allow themselves to be seen in such atrocities. Most girls who wear them aren't built attractively enough and anyway, out of modesty, one would think they would know better."

In case you're the character this girl is talking about, stand back and give yourself the once-over. Do it out of a sense of decorum as well as from a sense of chic. Maybe you are an attractive chick, neatly stacked, and with nothing to hide. But remember: A little showing off goes a long way, especially in public places. Health and beauty are always appreciated but there is nothing appealing about an "undressed" look. Even a mermaid covers up with a seaweed snood and a full length tail!

Pick your sport clothes for their appearance in action. Last year you may have fitted a size 12 perfectly; this year try a size 14 just to be safe. The WPB wants every one to conserve essential materials but enough is enough! It would be smart to include a short beach coat in your summer wardrobe for cover-up occasions such as strolling on the beach or walking the five blocks between your home and the tennis courts. Remember that people can see you coming and going and from both sides. Any gal likes to have that "poured in" look; just don't forget to say "when"!

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

High On the List.

High on the list of faults which irritate men and women co-workers alike, you can place lack of consideration. Two-thirds of the "run-ins" that occur in offices can be charged to it.

The girl who hums in the rest room while the girl in the next chair is trying to relax, eyes shut, and head back, isn't deliberately spiteful. The hummer doesn't think of the other person. The typist who dashes in at the last minute every morning and expects everything—and everybody—to scatter before her as before a fire siren doesn't mean to start the day wrong for every one. She doesn't think! The boss who lets his work stack up until, the day before his vacation, he dumps a full month's correspondence on his secretary's desk, with a curt "Answer this," doesn't posses the soul of Satan. He fails to consider how complicated he makes her job without time for adequate directions.

Underneath, most people who work together like each other. Let a sorrow come to the family of an employe and immediately every one rallies around. It's only in the every day routine that lack of consideration is a serious fault—a hard-to-live-with, hard-to-work-with habit of not thinking of the other person.

A Tempo.

I wish I had the zest and pep
And also walked with lively step
At early morn, instead of 5—
That's when I really come alive!

Opposites.

For the real word expert two more examples of words, seemingly opposed yet meaning the same: "Loose and unloose;" "rip and unrip."

MAD MAR.

She's Got Your Number!

"Considering all walks of female life, the telephone operator ought to strike the average eligible bachelor as the girl most likely to provide unusual, interesting, and agreeable companionship. She's unusual because her job is neither a trade nor a profession—it's a calling. . . . A man can marry one in confidence because he knows she'll ring true 999 out of 1,000 times. All told, you probably couldn't make a better connection. But don't try to fool her, pal. She's got your number!"

—Herb Little in Public Utilities Fortnightly.

Stage Note

The operetta season at the Civic Opera house will end Saturday night, Sept. 2, with the closing of "The Merry Widow." Tentative plans to follow the Lehar operetta with "Naughty Marietta" were abandoned because of casting difficulties.

NELSON REVEALS ARMY SHORTAGE OF HEAVY GUNS

Error in General Staff's Judgment Blamed.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Secret testimony by WPB Chairman Nelson before a senate war investigating committee Aug. 16, made public today, disclosed serious overseas shortages in extra heavy guns and ammunition because the army overestimated the value of aircraft bombing as a substitute for artillery bombardment.

Nelson testified that while vast surpluses of small arms and ammunition were piling up, the production of larger weapons and shells was reduced until the "lessons of war" suddenly convinced the general staff it had made a mistake.

As a result, "tremendously increased requirements" in the production of heavy artillery were put before the WPB, which necessitated reopening plants which had been closed.

"Concept Changed," Says Nelson.

"This was due to a change in concept," remarked Nelson.

"Due mostly to the fact that they found out aircraft bombing could not take the place of artillery," interjected Sen. Truman [D., Mo.].

"They found out the dropping of a bomb didn't have the same effect as the shooting of a shell," agreed Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

"The ordnance department knew that from the very beginning," said Nelson. "They contended for it; proved it mathematically in every way, shape, and form."

"But you couldn't convince them except by experience," said Truman.

New Facilities Rushed.

"We are rushing along the new facilities for artillery production," said Nelson. "It is going along as well as could be expected. On heavy-heavy ammunition, from about the 155 mm. and up, we have to get shutdown plants back into operation. It will take from two to four months before the effect of the increase is felt at the front.

"We spent 73 million dollars last month in new plants and machinery for the artillery program. We haven't enough heavy duty trucks six and eight wheel trucks, tremendously big things.

"Our most recent crisis has been in foundries and forge shops. The seriousness of this problem should not be minimized in connection with such important stepped-up programs as heavy artillery, trucks, tractors, and construction equipment.

July Output "Disappointing."

"July was not a good month for production—very bad, very disappointing. August shows some improvement. Heavy tires constitute a special problem from which we are expecting effective relief in the immediate weeks ahead.

"Peak employment in guns, howitzer, mortars, and tanks was reached over a year ago and declined when these programs were cut back. Now these requirements again have been increased."

Nelson was questioned about government inventories of arms and munitions and confessed no figures were available as to reserves once the stores have left the main storage and issue points.

"By constant questioning on the small ammunition reserves, we finally found out there was a five year supply," he said.

Policy of Secrecy Questioned.

"I can't understand why the production chief shouldn't be in on these secrets," remarked Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.]. "You have no knowledge of what might be in the hands of the troops in the field or backed up at ports of debarkation or in transit by ships?"

"We do not," said Nelson.

"I wonder how much stuff you have piled up at Sydney, Melbourne, Darwin, Calcutta, in England, Tunis, and other points," said Kilgore.

"I think a most careful study should be made of that," said Nelson. "Intelligent production rests upon such knowledge. We want the army to have a surplus, but not an overwhelming surplus. I believe this is one of our most serious problems today."

"These questions of huge surpluses are going to come up some day," commented Ferguson, "and one thing about the American people, they holler a lot about paying for dead horses."

Real Life 'Flip Corkin' Visitor in U. S. Senate

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 [Special].—Col. Philip Cochran, real life hero of "Terry and the Pirates," the newspaper cartoon in which he is depicted as "Flip Corkin," made an unheralded appearance in the senate chamber this afternoon. He was introduced by Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.] as an outstanding figure of the China, India, and Burma air battles.

TWO RETURNED FOR U. S. TRIAL IN $10,000 THEFT

Andrew Johnson, 29, and Mrs. Mary Wassinger, 32, alleged absconding employes since April, 1943, of Russek's a women's apparel shop at 200 N. Michigan av., were returned to Chicago last night from Oakland, Cal., to face federal charges of transferring stolen property in interstate commerce.

Assistant United States Atty. George G. Kelly said Johnson took $8,000 of the firm's cash and Mrs. Wassinger stole $2,000 worth of the store's stock and they fled together on a tour of the country which ended in Oakland. They were apprehended there by FBI agents who were examining Johnson's selective service status. Both are married and each has three children.

After their arrest, FBI agents learned of the old warrants in Chicago. The two waived extradition and were placed under $5,000 bonds each in San Francisco.

AN EX-HUSBAND MEETS NEW ONE —TO HIS DISMAY

Cornelius Galvin, 37, of 4743 Drexel av., a chauffeur, was irate when his former wife, Catherine, 31, who divorced him last December, told him on the telephone she had remarried and was living at 3228 Lowe av.

"I'm going to beat both of you," Galvin threatened, without bothering to hear more about his ex-wife's new husband. As she was returning a few nights later from her work as a clerk at the ration board at 3226 W. 26th st., Galvin stopped her on the sidewalk in front of her home and began beating her.

Clarence Doren, the new husband, came out of the house. He is a policeman at the Lawndale station. Galvin pleaded guilty in Stockyards court yesterday to charges of assault and battery, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest. Judge Wendell E. Green placed him on probation for six months.

COLLEGES GIVE FREE COURSES IN WAR TASKS

Eight universities and colleges in and near Chicago will offer tuitition courses with the opening of regular school years in September and October in engineering, science, and management in war industries. The courses are to train workers for an increase in war production in this area in the next six months, William Bachrach, regional coördinator of the United States office of education, said yesterday.

Bachrach said Washington, D. C., officials have cited shortage of 150 critical war materials as preventing a quicker end of the war. The education office has been instructed to push the training program.

Courses, usually continuing for 16 weeks, will be offered at Northwestern, Loyola, and De Paul universities, the University of Chicago, the Chicago Y. M. C. A. college, Lake Forest college, Wheaton college, and the Illinois Institute of Technology. Regular faculty members and specialists from industry will teach. Fifty thousand persons took training at these institutions last year, including 131 returned veterans, Bachrach said.

Boys Are Disappointed When Waves Are Water

Cleveland, O., Aug. 24 (AP).—Two boys watching Lake Erie for the first time shouted elatedly, "O, look at those waves! Just look at those waves!" "Where?" asked their 5 year old brother. "There," they said, pointing to the breakers. "Aw, gee, I was looking for girls," the little boy wailed.

ONE WEEK LEFT TO PAY BALANCE OF REALTY LEVY

One week from today will be the last date for the payment without penalty of the second half of 1943 real estate taxes.

The only taxpayers to whom this deadline does not apply are those who have filed complaints of their assessments with the county board of tax appeals. For such taxpayers new bills reflecting the action taken by the board will be mailed them by the county treasurer and they then have 10 days to pay.

Penalties of 1 per cent a month were added to all 1943 personal tax bills and the first half of realty tax bills on July 2.

BOMB CAR FIRE EXTINGUISHED IN WHITING, IND.

Fireman at Whiting, Ind., had a few anxious moments yesterday when fire started in a box car loaded with incendiary bombs bound for California. The fire was spotted by the train crew. The train was stopped and the car shunted onto a siding at the Pennsylvania railroad station. Firemen under Chief C. C. Lampman put the blaze out after a few of the bombs exploded. Lampman reported that about 25 cases of bombs were damaged. The other cases were unloaded and drenched with water at the request of the army ordnance department in Chicago. No one was injured.

U. S.-BRITISH OIL PACT IS SENT TO SENATE FOR O. K.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—An Anglo-American oil agreement, signed for the declared purpose of assuring fair utilization of the world's petroleum resources, was submitted to the senate by President Roosevelt today in the form of a treaty requiring ratification.

The action drew its significance from the fact that the administration had decided to regard the pact as a treaty rather than an executive agreement which would not require senate approval. It came at the beginning of a period when international pacts will be negotiated more frequently.

Action Sets Precedent.

In asking for ratification of the oil agreement, the administration has set a pattern which, if followed thru, could broaden rather than restrict senate influence in the field of international affairs.

The oil agreement was made public Aug. 8. At the time, state department officials said it had not been determined whether it was an executive agreement or a treaty.

But the senate foreign relations committee, which acts on treaties, and a special petroleum committee took a deep interest in the document, studied what members termed its "merits and demerits," and decided that perhaps it needed long and careful consideration.

Senators Use Pressure.

Members would not say so openly, but it was apparent they were using a bit of pressure to persuade the administration that the senate should have an opportunity to ratify any agreements of such magnitude.

The foreign relations and oil committees held a joint session yesterday and subsequently met separately. Members were mysterious about the proceedings. They reported no decisions were reached.

But late today, a special message from the President arrived in the senate transmitting the "oil treaty" and asking for ratification.

DIES IN SLEEP, RELATIVES SOUGHT.

ALL-STARS PLAY FOUR GAMES IN NIGHT SESSION

Pick Officials for Clash with Bears.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[BEARS' CAMP STORY ON NEXT PAGE.]

The All-Star football squad held its first rehearsal under the Dyche stadium lights last night for the game with the Chicago Bears next Wednesday evening. Four intra-squad games were played and in the first two of them, blue shirted elevens whipped the whites, 7 to 0, and 14 to 0.

The night scrimmage, fourth in the 12 days the collegians have prepared for the 11th game in the series sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., was encouraging to the coaches who have worked with a willing group to overcome handicaps of injury to key players and other losses by ineligibility.

Pass Play Nets 65 Yards.

After the first Blue team, led by Glenn Dobbs and Charley Trippi, had won from the Whites, 7 to 0, the other Blue team took a 14 to 0 decision by virtue of a short touchdown sprint by Bill Hillenbrand of Indiana and a 65 yard scoring pass from Hillenbrand to his one-time teammate, Chuck Jacoby. Lou Saban, also of Indiana, and Creighton Miller of Notre Dame were the other backs on the eleven.

Altho defeated, the Whites marched within the Blues' 10 yard line in the first game, covering 47 yards on one play, a pass from Bob Ruman of Arizona to Corwin Clatt, former Notre Dame full back, who then lateralled to Jimmy Ford, the Tulsa half back star of the 1944 Sugar bowl game.

Grefe, Franklin	L. E.	Dugger, Ohio State
Bentz, Tulane	L. T.	Willis, Ohio State
Jabbusch, Ohio St.	L. G.	Barwegen, Purdue
Mayther, Oregon	C.	Tavener, Indiana
Banducci, Stanford	R. G.	Houston, Ohio St.
Aldworth, Minn.	R. T.	Zimny, Indiana
Wooten, Okla.	R. E.	Yonakor, Notre D.
Greenwood, Ill.	Q. B.	Kemper, Georgia
Ruman, Arizona	L. H.	Dobbs, Tulsa
Ford, Tulsa	R. H.	Trippi, Georgia
Clatt, Notre Dame	F. B.	McKay, Texas

Substitution—Cannady, Indiana, for Greenwood.
Touchdown—Dobbs.
Point after touchdown—McKay.

Van Buren in Hospital.

The All-Stars were depleted further last night when Steve Van Buren, Louisiana State half back, was ordered to the hospital. Tests showed he is threatened with an attack of appendicitis.

Ronald Gibbs, a graduate of St. Thomas college and one of the leading officials in the National Football league, will referee the game between the All-Stars and the Bears. Other officials chosen by the rival coaches yesterday are E. C. Krieger, Ohio university, umpire; John Kelly, Loyola, head linesman, and H. G. Hedges, Dartmouth, field judge.

The nominations of officials were made according to agreement. The Chicago Bears' coaches, Heartly [Hunk] Anderson and Luke Johnsos, named Gibbs and Kelly, as referee and head linesman, while Coach Lynn Waldorf of the All-Stars and his staff chose the umpire and field judge.

500 Attend Luncheon.

The officials and the rival coaches will meet at noon Wednesday in the Sherman hotel to discuss the code of rules. Since 1934, the inaugural game, this compromise between the conflicting professional and collegiate rules has been necessary.

The All-Stars were guests yesterday at luncheon in the Morrison hotel of the Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago. More than 500 greeted the college men, the largest attendance in the 11 years that this has been Chicago's official welcome.

NO NEED FOR OTHER ENTERTAINMENT WHEN THESE CELEBRITIES GATHER

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

VARIOUS reasons have been advanced by writers and fans thruout the land for the amazing popularity of the All-Star football game. . . . This department wonders if most of them have not overlooked the fundamental principle. . . . We refer to the love of the average red blooded American youth for football. . . . Educators, politicians, grouch columnists, army executives, navy brass hats, and others have tried from time to time to curb youth's desire for gridiron activity, but they got nowhere. . . . Colleges whose presidents ruled out football found students organizing teams by themselves and playing informal schedules. . . . The same thing has happened in army and navy bases. . . . If the sport's enemies could not destroy it in war time, they will have little chance to succeed after peace is restored. . . . America will come out of the war hardened in spirit as well as in body. . . . It will glory in the attributes which football more than any other form of athletics exemplifies so forcefully. . . . There will be those who again will be terrified at the huge crowds that turn out to watch games on Saturdays. . . . But their fears will be lost in the applause of a nation which has accomplished great things in war and consequently is not afraid of big things in peace. . . . The All-Star game merely epitomizes the peace time virility of a country that has gone all out for football, both on the field and in the stands.

Scarcely a day passes that this department does not hear from a former All-Star player recalling the thrills he enjoyed from participation in the greatest of all gridiron spectacles. . . . Here's an excerpt from one we received yesterday from a young man in a battle zone: "Today is Aug. 8. To many it is just another day, but to me it takes me back two years—to the beginning of All-Star practice, to the beginning of my greatest athletic thrill. Couldn't help but reflect upon these wonderful memories today. I guess about this time of the year, no matter where you are or what you are doing, that glorious old football spirit comes out in you. I know you are engrossed these days in the details of the All-Star game and I hope it will be as successful as its predecessors, games which have entertained hundreds of thousands. There isn't much talk of football where I am right now, but it's the hidden spirit. We're in the fourth quarter. The enemy's meagre score has been obliterated and ours is only beginning to tally to the inevitable total." . . . The letter was from Lt. Dick Erdlitz of Northwestern university, All-Star quarter back in 1942.

Remembrance.

Over the hills of yesterday you came,
A red rose glowing in your ebon hair,
And deep within your eyes an ardent flame
That scattered silver sunshine everywhere;
Your lyric laughter fell like magic rain
And danced and pirouetted on the plain
As sweet as bird song in the early May.

But soon the night came down on graying wing
Stealing the color from the rose's bloom,
And spreading fairylike o'er everything
A misty spider web of purple gloom;
And ere the music of your laughter died
That thrilled me with a tremor of delight,
I looked across the meadow misty-eyed
To see you vanishing into the night.
—T. E. B.

We'll Have Ruthie Bowden Sing.

For years when the town would plan a fete,
Any sort of a civic thing,
They'd say when the matter of program came up,
"We'll have Ruthie Bowden sing";
When a church bazar would happen short
Some one would instantly rise to suggest,
"Let's have Ruthie Bowden sing!"

And Ruthie, it seems, was always on hand,
Never would turn them down,
She'd put her own plans in the background
To do her bit for the town;
A cheerful body who managed somehow
To put the lilt of life in her tune,
Whether her song was a serious one
Or a young lover's plaintive croon.

Every town has its Ruthie, it seems,
To fall back on as years plod along,
But do we think to tell them how grateful we are
For the ready gift of their song?

CUBS, HELD TO 3 HITS, DROP 13TH TO ST. LOUIS, 2-1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 24.—The gay Cardinals used the forlorn Cubs again tonight as a stepping stone toward clinching their third straight pennant. Charley Grimm's boys, their lineup strangely disarranged because of injuries, did the best they could but it wasn't quite enough to break the evil spell the champions have cast on them since the start of the season. The National league's budding world series candidates gobbled up a 2 to 1 decision for their 13th straight 1944 victory over the Chicagoans.

The jumbled lineup not only contributed an error that caused Claude Passeau to surrender the run that brought about his downfall, but also was remiss in its hitting. A young man by the name of Ted Wilks ground out his 13th success with consummate ease. The net attack against him was three safeties, none of which fell to the wilted Bill Nicholson. Bill is supposed to clean up but now is burdened with the unenviable distinction of having produced only three hits in 26 times at bat.

Goodman Goes to Hospital.

The unusual lineup fashioned by Boss Grimm resulted from Ival Goodman being hospitalized for a couple of days of rest after bumping his head against the concrete wall last night. The unexpected arrival of Roy Hughes by plane avoided the necessity of sending the still ailing Dom Dallessandro into the outfield. Hughes went to third, Stan Hack moved to first base and Phil Cavarretta abandoned the latter post for a center fielding assignment.

Cavarretta doubled in the first inning but nothing happened. When he came up in the third Hughes was on first after forcing Hack who had singled. Cavarretta singled this time, sending Hughes to third after which Nicholson walked and Lou Novikoff followed with a fly on which Hughes scored.

One Inning Does It.

The crash that flattened Passeau came in the third after he had retired the first two Cards. He walked Augie Bergamo, the gift being accepted by Stan Musial and Walker Cooper as a challenge to start something. They did. Musial whistled a single into left and Cooper singled to center to score the tying run. Cavarretta, in his haste let the ball roll thru his hands and the error gave Musial ample time to scoot home with the run that marked the 15th defeat for the Cubs in their last 20 games.

ARMY RELEASE BEING SOUGHT BY BOBBY JONES

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 24 (AP).—Lt. Col. Robert Tyre [Bobby] Jones Jr., 9th air force intelligence officer, has applied for a discharge from the army under the over 38 regulation and is on his way back to the United States, or already there, the 9th air force disclosed today.

The famed Atlanta, Ga., golfer, who joined the air forces as a captain in June, 1942, was 42 last March 17. He entered the replacement pool in England recently after returning from an assignment in Normandy.

Jones had been a member of the officers' reserve since 1931, the year after he achieved his grand slam by winning four major golf championships. He was promoted from captain to major in March, 1943.

National Swim to Open Today at Great Lakes

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Eighty swimmers representing three universities [Northwestern, Michigan, and Ohio State], two naval stations [Great Lakes and Bunker Hill], and Pennsylvania, Georgia, California, and the province of Ontario will compete in the three day 1944 National A. A. U. senior men's outdoor meet opening today at Great Lakes.

The meet, which will start this afternoon with trials in the 200 meter free style, springboard diving, and 300 meter medley relay events, will be held in the mammoth indoor pool.

Finals will be held tonight in four events—1,500 meter free style, 200 meter free style, springboard diving, and 300 meter medley relay. Winners will be awarded sterling silver medals. Nine other titles, including the team championship, will be determined tomorrow and Sunday nights.

A new team champion will be decided since Yale, which won last year, will not be represented. Great Lakes, with 17 candidates, is the favorite to succeed Yale.

HEILEMANN'S 70 LEADS AMATEUR LINKS TOURNEY

Ken Heilemann, 28, St. Louis chemist, took the 18 hole lead in the All-American amateur at Tam o' Shanter yesterday by firing a 34—36—70, two under par. Heilemann, who won the Chicago district junior championship three times before moving to St. Louis, birdied three holes and bogied only one in compiling his subpar round.

Tied for second place one stroke behind the leader, were Ed Furgol, Detroit defense worker, with 35—36—71, and John Markel, of Reading, Pa., a Coast Guardsman stationed in Chicago, who posted a 38—33—71. Furgol, who led the qualifying round with a 67 on Monday, got his 71 yesterday despite 3 three putt greens. Markel, whose father is pro at the Berkshire Country club at Reading, Pa., was out in 38, two over par, but bagged three birdies and six pars on the back nine for a 33.

Christiansen Third with 72.

Wilford Wehrle of Racine, a finalist in the tournament two years ago when it was on a match play basis, posted a 36—37—73. Sharing the 73 bracket was Louis Esposito of Franklin Park, recent winner of the Midwest Public Links championship.

Harold Foreman Shoots 74.

Harold Foreman of the Lake Shore Country club, holder of the Illinois State Amateur title, led a trio of 74 shooters that included George Dawson of Chicago and Pete Joneson of Gary.

Eight strokes off the pace with a 38—40—78 was Dale Morey of Indianapolis, the defending champion. Chick Evans, the Chicago veteran and former National Open and Amateur champion, had to be content with a 38—42—80. Steve Kovack of Waukegan, 1943 semi-finalist finished with 40—42—82.

HICKS PACES WOMEN

Betty Hicks of Long Beach, Cal., waged a gallant comeback on the second nine to take a one stroke lead over the field in the All-American Women's Open at Tam o'Shanter yesterday.

The Californian, who won the last National Women's championship in 1942, was out in 40, three over par, but fired a sub par 38 on the back nine for a 78. She birdied three of the last four holes in her whirlwind finish.

Phyllis Otto Takes 79.

One stroke behind the leader came Phyllis Otto, 20 year old Omaha, Neb., miss, with a 41-38—79. The Nebraska girl also had her troubles on the first nine but toured the second nine in one under par.

The finest comeback of the day, however, was made by Dorothy Germaine of Philadelphia, who

LEADS OPEN BY THREE STROKES; NELSON SECOND

Johnny Plays Last 9 in 6 Under Par.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Johnny Bulla, the hulking Carolinian who pilots a plane for a commercial air line when he isn't pounding a golf ball, yesterday flew into the first round lead of the All-American Open tournament with a speedy 65, seven under par for the run over the Tam o' Shanter Country club. Bulla's rapid flight tied the tournament course record, held jointly by Leonard Dodson and Byron Nelson. Out in 35, one under par, Johnny landed off the 18th green with an amazing 30, six under for the back nine. That homeward dash included six one putt greens, giving him a total of 30 putts, 12 of them on the final nine.

Bulla's handsome performance, wrought in comparative privacy until he fired a blast of four successive birdies from the 12th thru the 15th, gave him a three stroke advantage over the field of stars fighting for $13,462.50 in war bonds. This sum is the No. 1 prize in the total bond purse of $42,500. Eighteen hole rounds will be played today, tomorrow, and Sunday. In the event of a playoff, of which the All-American show has had two in its three year career, the overtime bout will be settled at 36 holes, with 18 on Monday and 18 more on Tuesday.

Nelson Second with 68.

Big Johnny appeared to have restrained his pursuers to a four stroke distance until late in the afternoon. Four 69s were the closest challengers to him, when a man named John Byron Nelson stopped by the scorer's table with a neat 68. After having taken a 35 on the outward trip, he brought down an eagle at the 500 yard 15th, then rolled home a curling 35 foot birdie putt on No. 18. The All-American Open, by the way, has virtually become Nelson's personal property. He won the first by himself, took the 1942 crown in a playoff with Sgt. Clayton Heafner, and last year tied for third, one shot back of Harold [Jug] McSpaden and O'Neal [Buck] White, then of Greenwood, Miss.

17 Players Break Par.

The 69 quartet consisted of Gene Sarazen of New York, 42, former holder of the American and British Open titles; Corp. Chick Harbert of the Chicago air WAC recruiting force; Pete Cooper of Gainesville, Fla., and Bud Lewis of Philadelphia. Next, with 70s, were George Smith, the Onwentsia club's veteran professional, and Jimmy Frisina, former Illinois amateur champion, who led all simon pure competitors in the Open division.

An idea of the perfect scoring conditions which the big field found is contained in the record of 33 Open players who shot par 72 or better. Of these, 17 were under par and 16 equaled it. Among the 71s were McSpaden, while the 72 detail included White, now an army private at Fort Knox, Ky.

Runnerup in 1939 British Open.

Bulla, 30 year old native of Sofia, N. C., was runnerup for the 1939 British Open championship, last one held before the war. His biggest American triumph was in the 1941 Los Angeles open, a tourney in which he was runnerup last winter. The current show is only his sixth competitive appearance of this season, but his collections from the other five total approximately $5,000. He is the father of three children and now makes his headquarters in Atlanta, wherefrom he flies to Chicago and back twice a week.

AMERICAN DERBY SHAPES UP NOW AS 6-HORSE RACE

Expect 3-Way Battle for First Tomorrow.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The tradition steeped $50,000 added American Derby, which tomorrow will have its 35th running at Washington Park since its inaugural in 1884, shapes up as a six horse affair and a battle for first money of $62,400 among By Jimminy, Nelson Dunstan, and Pensive.

The other probable starters are Miss Keeneland, running mate of Pensive; Old Kentuck, and Challenge Me, tho the latter, whose only claim to fame this season was his triumph in the Arkansas Derby, has only an outside chance of starting.

Jezrahel Is a Possibility.

Thus the field for this time honored Chicago fixture, won first by the filly, Modesty, will be one of the smallest in its history, tho 141 nominations were made when the list was opened last November and 61 still were eligible a couple of months ago.

Jezrahel, recently purchased by Emil Schwartzhaup of New York from John Marsch, the futurity king, still remains a possible starter as prospects of a muddy or heavy track might put his name in the entry box today. Jezrahel's chief claim to fame rests on his victory in last year's Arlington Futurity in the heavy going.

Would Be Worth $80,950.

The possibility of an off track, however, is more interesting than important, as all the probable starters are quite capable of negotiating any sort of footing.

With six starters the Derby will have a gross value of $80,950 and besides the $62,400 to the winner, second place will draw $10,000, third will get $5,000, and fourth will be worth $2,500. The gross value last year, when Hal Price Headley's Askmenow took down the winner's share of $56,150, was $74,700.

River Divide farm's Silent Play, ridden by Freddy Smith, and W. W. Guernsey's Maihigh, with Willie Ford up, won the first two races yesterday and provided a $48 daily double. Silent Play paid $6.40 and Maihigh $8.20.

KING'S COUNSEL CUTS OWN MILE RECORD TO 1:59½

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 24 (AP).—King's Counsel, world champion pacer owned by E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill., lowered his own record to 1:59½ in an exhibition mile at the Wisconsin state fair today. The Baker horse, which had a mark of 2:00 made as a 3 year old last year, failed by half a second to beat the track record for pacers.

Doctor Spencer, brown colt from the Baker stables, won the $1,000 2 year old trot, taking both heats. The featured 2.02 bar pace for the Director of Agriculture cup and a $2,500 purse was won by Mr. Volodale, owned by George A. Harrison, Edgerton, Wis.

James Anderson, 1944 Chicago Golden Gloves novice heavyweight champion, who stopped Milton Brown of the Savoy Athletic club last Friday, will seek to obtain revenge for a previous defeat at the hands of Gene Field when he meets the Glenview Air station boxer in a five round return bout in an amateur boxing show tonight in the Madison A. C., 4711 Madison st. Other contests:

Heppes, McGuire Tie in Oak Park Golf Tourney

A total of 196 participated in the annual Auchtermuchty invitation at golf meet at the Oak Park Country club yesterday. Don Heppes and C. E. McGuire, both of Oak Park, tied for low gross honors with a 69. McGuire, who had a handicap of three, won low net with a 66.

Joliet Traps Veteran Wins at Vandalia

Vandalia, O., Aug. 24 (AP).—A 72 year old veteran who has been doing trapshooting for 40 years and an 18 year old West Virginia girl today won two of the Grand American tournament's most coveted crowns.

F. E. Shaw of Joliet, Ill., who had fired in 20 of the last 21 Grand Americans without winning a major title, captured the preliminary handicap by breaking 96 out of 100 targets from the 20 yard line.

Charlotte Winski of Wellsburg, W. Va., just graduated from high school, took the women's division of the preliminary handicap for the second straight year with 86x100 from the 18 yard line.

Finishing one target behind Shaw were Dr. Fred E. Schuster of Cincinnati, O., and Lawrence Wehmhoefer of Beecher, Ill. Mrs. Van Marker of Evanston, Ill., was second to Miss Winski with an 85.

Mrs. Ruth Knuth of Indianapolis, who earlier in the day added the North American Women's clay target title to her champion of champions crown, finished with an 84 in her bid for a third title.

RAIL SUIT PUTS U.S. IN ROLE OF SELF-ACCUSER

Sues Road It Made A.A.R. Member.

By including a government operated railroad among defendants in its anti-trust suit filed Wednesday in Lincoln, Neb., the justice department placed itself in the position of accusing another branch of the government of conspiring with western railroads to violate the Sherman anti-trust act.

George P. McNear.

"It looks like the government is meeting itself coming around the corner," George P. McNear, ousted president of the road taken over by the government, commented yesterday in Peoria. The road is the Toledo, Peoria and Western, which was seized in March, 1942, after a series of labor disputes. It is being operated by the office of defense transportation.

Joined A. A. R. After Seizure.

McNear said the ODT apparently did not believe the Association of American Railroads, which the justice department suit seeks to dissolve, was "so bad," because after his railroad was seized it became a member of the organization. He said this was done thru the initiative of the road's present officers.

He explained that when the A. A. R. was formed from predecessor organizations, which he asserted was mainly thru the efforts of the late Joseph Eastman, then federal coordinator of railroads, his line did not become a member.

"We don't think we have done anything wrong," McNear said. "We were interested in fast, efficient, and economical transportation. That has been our whole policy from the outset. We don't see where we have violated any law in any way."

Unfortunate, Says Jeffers.

The suit against the western roads was termed "unfortunate" by William Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific, who asserted it came "in the midst of the most serious transportation crisis in this war."

"Wendell Berge, born in Nebraska, and in charge of the government's pre-election action against the railroads and railroad men, has been away from the west so long that he is not familiar with the progress, not only of the railroads, but of industry generally," said Jeffers. "This is unfortunate for Mr. Berge and for the country as well. It is evident that Mr. Berge, because of Potomac fever, has seemingly lost his sense of direction.

"It is unfortunate that the department of justice has seen fit to attack the honesty, loyalty, and business integrity of the railroads and those responsible for their management and operations.

"The patriotism of railroad workers has by implication been questioned at this time when the railroads, particularly those in the west, are face to face with the heaviest traffic movement of the war, and in the midst of man power and materials shortages which threaten the movement of trains carrying vital war materials and troops."

More Equipment Sought.

He said that when it became apparent in 1939 that war was threatening the United States his railroad spent 200 million dollars for equipment and the expansion and improvement of facilities.

"At this very moment we have on order and will urgently need for the traffic peak which western lines face 35 locomotives which will cost 10 million dollars," he said. "Completion and delivery of these locomotives has been and is being delayed for reasons beyond our control."

Fred G. Gurley, president of the Santa Fe, said in Oklahoma City that the interstate commerce act provided that the carriers "shall establish reasonable thru rates and reasonable joint rates."

"Thus the carriers are invited and required to act in concert for various purposes," he asserted.

Stocks Lower as Peace Shift Worry Grows

EXCHANGES TO CLOSE.
The New York Stock and Curb exchanges and the Chicago Stock exchange will be closed tomorrow and next Saturday. The Chicago Board of Trade and other markets will be open. The closings were voted by exchange officials last week because of the shortage of workers.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Stocks closed lower in today's market when favorable war news increased apprehension that an early end to the war in Europe may involve industry in reconversion difficulties.

Altho liquidating urgency was absent, many customers trimmed commitments to be on the safe side over the extended week-end. Peace rated issues attracted light bidding, but most failed to make substantial progress. Steels, motors, and rails were in moderate supply. Carriers apparently suffered from belated depression resulting from the anti-trust action against 47 roads.

60 Stock Average Lower.

Extreme losses running to a point or more were reduced in most cases at the close. The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.3 at 54.9. Of 888 issues traded, 552 were down, 141 up, and 195 unchanged. Transfers of 773,810 shares compared with 788,130 yesterday.

Stocks making modest advances included Bendix and Eureka Vacuum, at peaks for 1944; American Can, Kennecott, American Telephone, and Goodyear. Briggs Manufacturing, a recent climber, dropped 1⅞ points to 42.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER.

Prices were lower in reduced volume of 34,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most actively traded issues included Williams Oil-O-Matic, which closed up ¾ for a new 1944 peak of 6⅛; Middle West corporation and Chicago corporation, each off ⅛; Cities Service, down ¼, and United States Steel, off ⅞.

RAIL BONDS DECLINE.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Many railroad bonds lost fractions to more than a point in today's market under broadened liquidation inspired in part by favorable war news. Other sections held steady, but all groups had many losers.

ABBOTT TO PAY USUAL 15 CENT EXTRA DIVIDEND

Abbott Laboratories yesterday declared its usual extra dividend of 15 cents with the regular quarterly disbursement of 40 cents on common. A $1 quarterly payment on preferred also was authorized.

Julius Kayser & Co., hosiery manufacturer, voted a dividend of 30 cents on common, compared with 25 cents paid in previous quarters. Michigan Steel Tube Products declared a dividend of 40 cents. Last year the company paid two 15 cent dividends. Western Tablet and Stationary corporation declared a $1 dividend. Payments of 50 cents were made in January and June.

People and Events

Arthur E. Stolle, Chicago sales representative of the Hoosier Panel company, New Albany, Ind., was presented with a certificate for meritorious service by Col. Leland H. Stanford, sixth service command officer, last night in the Svithoid Singing club. The certificate, which was awarded by Maj. Gen. H. C. Ingles, chief signal officer of the army, was in recognition of the development of a new type of plywood needed by the signal corps.

C. A. Liddle, president of Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, yesterday announced that Thomas P. Gorter, vice president, had been appointed sales director of transportation equipment for the United States, Canada, and Mexico and a director of Pullman-Standard Car Export corporation.

George J. Turgeon, city freight and passenger agent of the Santa Fe railway at Minneapolis, Minn., has been appointed traveling freight agent at Chicago. Turgeon succeeds Leon H. Hanten, recently appointed traffic representative at Washington, D. C.

SET UP GROUP TO AID TRADE IN COMMODITIES

Mandeville Named First President.

The National Association of Commodity Exchanges and Allied Trades, Inc., which proposes to "develop, improve, and extend commodity futures trading in the interests of producers, consumers, and the American people," was founded yesterday.

Maurice Mandeville, president of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, who was elected president of the new organization, announced the main task "is to assemble in one place information about futures trading, sponsor research into the position of commodity exchanges in marketing operations, and disseminate pertinent information to our members and any one else who is interested."

List Member Eligibles.

Membership is open to boards of trade, chambers of commerce, and other exchanges dealing in commodity futures, and to exchanges, firms, persons, and associations representing allied trades, Mandeville said. Class A [voting] membership will be open to exchanges, and Class B to member firms and allied interests. Headquarters will be in Chicago.

"Commodity markets are an essential part of our marketing machinery," Mandeville said. "We must be ready when peace comes to move full speed ahead to aid those trades and industries which depend upon futures trading to eliminate price risks."

Besides Mandeville, these officers were elected: J. A. Higgons Jr., member of the board of managers of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, executive vice president; Walter R. Scott, secretary of the Kansas City Board of Trade, first vice president; Ody H. Lamborn, president of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, second vice president; and S. J. Meyers, vice president of Arcady Farms Milling company, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

Directors Are Selected.

Directors are J. O. McClintock and Meyers, representing the Chicago Board of Trade; E. E. Klecan and Scott, Kansas City Board of Trade; F. Peavey Heffelfinger and Walter H. Mills, chamber of commerce of Minneapolis; O. W. Olson and Mandeville, Chicago Mercantile exchange; Charles H. Butcher and George Hintz, New York Cocoa exchange; Lamborn and John C. Gardner, New York Coffee and Sugar exchange; Charles B. Crofton and Laurel Duval, New York Produce exchange.

Mills, Mandeville, Meyers, McClintock, and Hintz were appointed to the executive committee.

Former RWLB Chief Heads Press Commission

Robert K. Burns, former chairman of the regional war labor board, has been named full time chairman of WLB's daily newspaper printing and publishing commission, it was announced yesterday. Burns has been spending part of his time as a retraining and reemployment assistant in the office of war mobilization. Frederick S. Deibler of Evanston will continue vice chairman of the newspaper commission.

AFL Assails Federal Delay in Conversion

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor pledged the full support of the organization's nearly 7 million members toward wiping out the war production shortages that still exist and reiterated its protests against unnecessary governmental man power controls at yesterday's session in the Drake hotel.

In addition, the council stated it would vigorously oppose any attempt to delay preparations for reconversion because of "the few trouble spots in the war production program." Opposition to reconversion plans before the war's end "because it might hurt war production needs" was termed ridiculous by the council.

Explains Production Lags.

"The shortages and lags in production are demonstrably not the fault of labor or management," stated the council, "but must be attributed largely to the impossibility of planning in advance for every contingency that develops in world-wide military movements.

"The AFL pledges its full cooperation to wiping out the few remaining shortages promptly. But this must be done on the same voluntary basis of man power mobilization that has raised war production in America to the highest levels ever attained in history.

"America must prepare for peace while it continues to wage total war. The executive council holds that the future economic stability of our country depends upon the resourcefulness, vision, and ability of American labor, management, and government in solving the problem of meeting the challenge of peace while we are contemplating the job of winning the war."

Membership at New Peak.

AFL membership was reported by President William Green to have reached an all time high. The membership at the close of July 31 was 6,761,935, which does not include the more than 70,000 members of the International Typographical union, who reaffiliated with the AFL early this month, Green said.

Green disclosed that the reconversion bill introduced Wednesday in congress by Rep. Dingell [D., Mich.] has the full support of the AFL and the railroad brotherhoods. He said the AFL wants the Dingell bill adopted instead of the George bill, which also is pending in congress.

ILLINOIS' JOBS AND PAY ROLLS DIP IN MONTH

Pay rolls and employment in Illinois manufacturing establishments decreased from mid-June to mid-July, altho the decline was less than normal for the season, Acting Director Gordon of the Illinois department of labor announced yesterday.

The 6,819 manufacturers, who employed 961,088 workers in July, 35 per cent of the estimated nonagricultural employes in the state, reported decreases of 0.1 per cent in employment and 2.3 per cent in wage payments between June 15 and July 15 this year. The average seasonal decreases are 1 and 3 per cent, respectively.

COMMON STOCK YIELDS.

My attention has been called to statements that many well regarded common stocks are selling at prices to yield 4 to more than 8 per cent. When the dividend rate is known to vary from time to time, how are common stock yields figured?—S. L.

Answer: It is customary to compute common stock current yields on the basis of the annual dividend indicated by regular interim payments or the total paid in the preceding 12 months if deemed likely to be continued. Extra payments would be included only to the extent that they were regarded as forming a part of the corporation's customary dividend intentions. The year's dividend divided by the price of the stock gives the percentage yield.

For making comparisons with yields obtainable from well secured bonds or preferred stocks, a more satisfactory method is to compute the common stock yield from average dividends of several years.

The yield based on only one year's dividend may overstate future income probabilities of an investment in the common stock of a corporation enjoying a spurt of prosperity. On the other hand, it may understate the future promise of a growing industry, as may also the yield based on the average dividend.

NEW DEAL PLAN TO AID JOBLESS IS VOTED DOWN

House Group Takes Economy Stand.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—The administration's program for broader post-war jobless benefits was rejected today by the house ways and means committee as it approved a demobilization and reconversion bill emphasizing economy in peace time federal expenditures.

Unemployment compensation administration was left entirely in the hands of states.

The committee voted down a proposal by War Mobilization Director Byrnes that the government set minimum standards for unemployment benefits, with payments of at least $20 a week for 26 weeks for top pay workers.

Held "Protection of Purse."

"We have protected the public purse," announced Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], ranking committee Republican.

Revamping a senate approved measure, the committee knocked out provisions for federal retraining of war workers for other jobs and removed 3½ million government workers from unemployment compensation coverage.

While the house group acted on this measure, the senate debated a proposal to authorize the government to renegotiate sales of surplus property in the same way war contracts have been renegotiated.

Recovery Plan Provided.

Offered as an amendment to the surplus property disposal bill, it would permit this procedure: If a buyer of surplus government property sold it for large profits, the government could "renegotiate" the original sale and recover a part of the profits.

The amendment was proposed by three Democratic senators, McKellar of Tennessee, Eastland of Mississippi and McFarland of Arizona, with the aim, as McKellar put it, of preventing "a gang of speculators from hornswoggling" the government.

Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] opposed it on the ground it would "permanently regiment" 100 billion dollars' worth of property "as it passes from hand to hand." Sen. Taft [R., O.] argued it would wreck the bill and impose an "administrative impossibility."

CREOLE REPORTS BIG PROFIT FOR FIRST 6 MONTHS

Creole Petroleum corporation, a subsidiary of Standard Oil company [N. J.], yesterday reported net income in the first half of 1944 was $31,800,000, equal to $1.19 a share. Profit in the first half of 1943, had the company then owned properties of Lago Petroleum corporation which since have been combined with Creole, would have been $10,600,000, or 40 cents a share, the company said. Actually Creole had a net loss of $247,200 in the first half of 1943.

Union Tank Car company, Chicago, lessor of railroad tank cars, reported profit in the half year ended June 30, of $1,283,215, or $1.19 a share, after tax provisions of $6,097,976, compared with $1,588,039, or $1.47 a share, a year earlier after tax provisions of $7,569,668.

Railroad Freight Traffic Off 1 Per Cent Last Week

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—The Association of American Railroads reported today that 887,446 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended Aug. 19. The total was 8,726 cars or 1.0 per cent below that of the preceding week and 0.4 per cent under the corresponding week a year ago.

Lumber Supply Lowest Since December of 1941

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—Lumber stocks at sawmills and concentration yards on June 30 were the lowest since December, 1941, totaling 4,118,083,000 board feet, down 7 per cent from the end of the first quarter, WPB reported today.

Market Receipts of Hogs Fall; Less Pork for Civilians' Use

Few Ready for Sale

Only about 10,000 hogs were received at the Chicago stock yards yesterday, the smallest supply for any Thursday since April 2, 1942.

Operations at all large packing centers have been greatly curtailed by the below normal receipts from farms, and surveys by packing companies show no immediate relief is in sight. Most of the matured hogs have been marketed and pigs left on farms are almost all from the 1944 spring crop and too small to be sold for slaughter.

Far Below Year Ago.

Only 266,000 hogs arrived at the 20 biggest markets the first four days of this week. The total was 56,000 head below last week's four day volume, and 92,000 less than a year ago.

Almost all hogs continued to sell at ceiling prices. Nearly all 140 to 240 pound hogs brought the $14.75 a hundred pounds limit, and some buyers took light pigs along with light butchers at that price to get volume. The $14 "heavy hog" ceiling was paid for all butcher and sows over 240 pounds.

Cattle supplies fell below trade requirements and prices were steady to 25 cents higher, with steers showing most gain. The best available brought $17.60. Steady bids bought the lamb supply.

One-Third Set Aside

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—The war food administration today ordered federally inspected slaughterers to set aside an estimated one-third of their output of pork for military and other war uses, effective Aug. 27. The order was issued to assure war needs during the present period of reduced pork production—a period expected to continue until marketing of hogs begin to increase late in October, officials said.

Such slaughterers are required to set aside approximately half their production of certain types of beef for the army and navy.

Officials said the set aside order will make less pork available for civilians and may require some increases in ration point values of pork cuts. The reduced supply of pork is expected to be offset by increased supplies of beef, particularly lower grades.

Port Authority Bonds Ruled Non-Taxable

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in a 2 to 1 decision, ruled today that interest on bonds issued by the Port of New York and Triborough Bridge Authorities is exempt from federal income taxes. Frank Ferguson, chairman of the port authority, heralded the ruling as presaging the end of federal efforts "to interfere with the fiscal affairs of the states and cities."

In affirming earlier decisions by the Tax court of the United States, Judges Augustus N. Hand and Harrie B. Chase voted in the majority, with Judge Jerome Frank dissenting.

Hand and Chase held that the bond issues were exempt because the authorities operate bridges and tunnels in the public interest, without profit and that their activities are "strictly governmental." They said the authorities were in effect "political subdivisions" of the state and in issuing bonds perform "a service for the public welfare."

The ruling stemmed from lower court decisions holding that the estate of Alexander J. Shamberg did not owe deficiency taxes for 1937 and 1938, and that the estate of Caroline White overpaid income taxes of $2,308 for 1938 and $1,995 for 1939. The Shamberg and White estates, which owned bonds of the port and bridge authorities, respectively, maintained they were exempt from federal income taxes.

N. AMERICAN CAR TO EXPAND OIL, GAS ACTIVITIES

North American Car corporation will continue to expand gas and oil producing activities, a field which it entered 12 years ago, W. M. Spencer, chairman, said yesterday. Principal business of the Chicago organization is the ownership and operation of a fleet of railroad tank and refrigerator cars.

North American has varied interests in 27 producing oil wells and eight gas wells in Kansas, Montana, Oklahoma, and Texas on properties totaling about 40,000 acres, he said. Recent discoveries on property in which North American has on the average a half interest included a gas well in Montana, with an estimated daily yield of 20 to 50 million cubic feet, an oil well in Barton county, Kas., yielding 100 to 150 barrels a day, and a large gas well in south central Texas.

American Cheese Output Drops 5 Pct. in Week

Production of American cheese in the United States in the week ended Aug. 17 was 5 per cent below the preceding week and a like amount under the corresponding week of 1943, the department of agriculture reported yesterday. Wisconsin, which produces 50.8 per cent of the output, had a decrease of 6 per cent.

HIGHEST PRICE LINE LIMITATIONS ON FUR GARMENTS MODIFIED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 [Special].—OPA today modified its highest price line limitations in women's fur garment price regulations as applied to wholesalers and manufacturers. The action, effective tomorrow, was taken to give relief to manufacturers and wholesalers of certain volume selling categories of women's fur garments whose highest price line limitations tied in with the price levels at which skins now in inventory were purchased.

No direct change is made by today's amendment in pricing provisions applying to retailers, but because they operate on a cost plus formula retailers may increase their ceiling prices when they purchase at higher costs. OPA is collecting additional data on retail prices and margins to work out a formula to prevent increases in prices to consumers as far as possible.

WARD'S AND CIO CRY 'TRICKERY' AT WLB HEARING

Accusations of "trickery" against the national war labor board and against Montgomery Ward & Co. were made by opposing counsel yesterday as local 20 of the United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail Employes' union [CIO] and the company completed their preliminary hearings before Judge William L. Knous, who is serving as arbitrator for the WLB.

Attorneys John A. Barr and Stuart S. Ball appeared at the hearing and restated the company's opposition to submitting the union's grievances to arbitration. They agreed, however, to enter an appearance for the company if Judge Knous would confine the hearings to "disputes" under the war labor disputes act.

About 40 grievances submitted to the WLB by the CIO union were certified under the disputes act after the company had informed the board that its directive order to submit the grievances to arbitration was "illegal and the company does not propose to enter into any arbitration under its provisions." Hearings were set to begin Sept. 12.

Union Pacific July Net Income Passes 3 Million

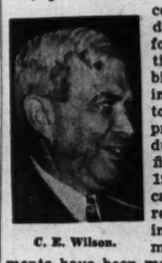
HOPE OF EARLY PRODUCTION OF AUTOS DASHED

Awaits Cut in War Needs, Says Wilson.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Danville, Ill., Aug. 24.—C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors corporation, today dashed hopes for early resumption of automobile manufacturing. It is nearly too late now to prepare for production in the first quarter of 1945, and there can be no large reconversion of industry until military requirements have been met, he said.



C. E. Wilson.

Wilson, in Danville to attend the opening of General Motors' third Illinois plant—a large foundry operated by the Saginaw Malleable Iron division—said the corporation is preparing to ask war production board authority to get the essential tools—the bottleneck tools—which would make possible automobile production equal to 50 per cent of the 1941 output.

Shortage of Experts.

The corporation also is having engineers and specifications experts determine the materials and the amounts needed to resume production when authority is given, but this work is hampered by a shortage of these experts, he said.

Wilson said the problem of materials and the amounts needed is one of the most difficult confronting the corporation, because until these matters are settled no orders can be given to suppliers.

"The post-war automobile situation is still in no man's land," he said. "This is a war of machines as well as of men. All the services are constantly striving to get new and improved equipment and we must devote our energies to filling these needs."

One of the major requirements now is to produce heavy trucks to haul supplies in territories won from the enemy, Wilson said. The Nazis have destroyed transportation facilities as they have retreated and the only way supplies can be hauled is in heavy duty trucks. It will be difficult to inject very much of any sort of civilian goods into our economy soon because civilian production would complicate the man power situation and the additional goods would increase inflation because of the competition to buy them. The post-war conversion days will be most difficult and the nation will have to consider them as a part of the war period, he said.

Post-War Operation Uncertain.

Gov. Green and GM officials inspected the new Danville plant which produces heavy castings for big motor trucks. Wilson said he does not know whether the corporation will operate the plant, which is owned by the Defense Plant corporation, after the war.

"We'd like to operate plants in more places rather than in fewer," he said. "We believe that such a course is sound for the country and for the corporation."

PENSION PLANS' TAX EXEMPTION STATUS CLEARED

Special Agents to Solve Problems Locally.

BY EDWIN NICHOLS.

Steps have been taken by the internal revenue bureau to expedite decisions on tax exemption features of employes' pension and profit sharing plans as a result of an accumulation of proposals for setting up pension trusts. Recent treasury department rulings have answered important questions on which uncertainty existed after the 1942 amendments to the revenue act, which were designed to provide a detailed statutory pattern for setting up such funds.

High tax rates and more definite rulings relating to exempt trusts are regarded as stimuli to the formation of such plans by employers because contributions to approved trusts are exempt from income taxes.

Special Unit Organized.

The bureau has established a decentralized organization to handle the greater part of the 4,000 plans on file. Heretofore consideration of such plans was concentrated in Washington, D. C. Specially trained revenue agents thruout the country have been authorized to consider pension plans effective since Dec. 31, 1941.

"This will enable employers to work out their plans conveniently and expeditiously with revenue agents in their own locality," the ruling said.

A stumbling block to quick approval of plans arose from the statutory provision that pension trusts must be for the "exclusive benefit of employes." This produced uncertainty regarding the tax exemption status of trusts formed by corporations in which some of the employes benefited were also stockholders. The treasury has solved the problem by fixing ceilings on employe stockholder participation. It has ruled that in most cases no more than 30 per cent of the contributions for all participants under a plan may be on behalf of stockholding employes. But in this connection only a stockholder who owns 10 per cent or more of the voting stock, including holdings of certain near relatives, is considered.

Discrimination Guarded Against.

The treasury has shown particular concern to prevent pension plans from discriminating against lower paid employes and in favor of officers or more highly paid employes. A late ruling provides certain standards to assure compliance with nondiscriminatory provisions of the law should a plan be terminated. It puts a ceiling on contributions which may be made for the benefit of any of the 25 highest paid employes whose anticipated annual pension or annuity under the plan exceeds $1,500. This limitation applies after July 31, 1944, and during the first 10 years of the plan. It applies only to plans established or substantially changed since Dec. 31, 1941.

The treasury has ruled in connection with profit sharing trusts that a plan must contain a definite formula for determining contributions and distributions.

Income Is Tax Free.

Not only are the employer's contributions to approved trusts exempt from tax, but the income of the trusts is also tax free. The employe in the ordinary case is taxed on benefit payments, when received, because they are classed as annuities, the consideration for which is the amount, if any, which he contributed. The result is that out of the annuities the beneficiary recovers his own contribution free of tax but he is taxed on the remainder. If the employe made no contribution, the entire amount is taxable.

GRAINS UNEVEN; SHORTS OFFSET EARLY SELLING

Early liquidation developed yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade on favorable war news from Europe and May and July wheat and July oats sold at one time at new seasonal low prices, but aggressive short covering resulted from the announcement the senate banking committee had approved the Bankhead bill to increase government loans on cotton to 95 per cent of parity.

A rally of $2 or more a bale in cotton was reflected quickly in grain. Wheat regained much of its early loss, and rye, after being off 1⅞ cents a bushel at one time, rallied 2¼ cents before being checked by profit taking. Closing sales of wheat were ¾ cent higher to 1 cent lower. Rye was ⅜ cent higher to ⅝ cent lower. Oats closed ¼ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower and barley ¾ cent higher to ¼ cent lower.

FCC CONCLUDES HEARING ON CIO RADIO CHARGES

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—A federal communications commission hearing on a petition of the CIO United Automobile Workers to cancel the license of station WHKC, Columbus, O., was concluded today with testimony by a CIO witness charging that Mutual Broadcasting system commentators heard over the station were unfair to labor. The testimony was admitted over the protest of the WHKC attorney that it reflected the opinion of only one man.

Attorneys for the CIO and WHKC were given 40 days to file briefs and counter-briefs after which Commissioner Ray C. Wakefield, who presided at the hearing, will refer the matter to the entire commission for oral argument.

FCC officials told reporters it was possible the case would be scheduled for argument before the Presidential election Nov. 7.

Free Time Stand Expected.

The FCC decision is expected to indicate the position to be taken by the New Deal in the fight of the CIO political action committee to force radio stations into giving free time for CIO broadcasts.

The CIO witness was Milton Stewart of New York, a 1941 graduate of New York university and a self-styled "content analyst." He testified today's was his first appearance as an expert witness in any litigation.

Stewart said he is a former employe of the office of war information, first in the OWI bureau of intelligence and later in the overseas branch. He said he could not reveal the nature of his OWI work "for security reasons." He is employed now by the Columbia university bureau of applied research in New York.

Studied for Labor References.

He said Mutual scripts were analyzed by him to determine what references were made to organized labor in general, local and national unions, labor leaders, union supported government labor policies, and associations of labor unions, in which he included the CIO-PAC.

Included among references assertedly "unfair to labor" were news accounts of congressional attacks on the PAC and attacks made on the CIO by leaders of the American Federation of Labor.

Stewart testified he had analyzed four talks made by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and said no references to organized labor were made in them and that the talks were not included in the list of those "unfair" to labor. Col. McCormick's scripts were among those subpenaed by the FCC at the request of the CIO.

Upton Close Scripts Studied.

Stewart testified he also had analyzed scripts of commentaries by Upton Close, Fulton Lewis Jr., Boake Carter, and other W-G-N and Mutual commentators, and those of Dewitt Emery, president of the National Small Business association. He said Emery's material was "unfair to labor," and that those of Close, Lewis, and Carter were predominantly anti-labor. All scripts studied were of broadcasts made in May and June, 1943.

Asked to describe how he reached his conclusions, Stewart said he had set up a code to determine whether a script was unfair, fair, neutral, or balanced [giving both side of a labor issue].

How He Does It.

Philip Loucks, WHKC attorney, asked Stewart how he would classify a script which contained fair, unfair, and neutral or balanced material and Stewart gave the following formula:

"Where there are three kinds of content and the three kinds are plus, minus, and neutral or balanced, cancel out the pluses and minuses and the equal balances, and if the residue of direction exceeds neutral, code it. We seek the relationship between words and words."

There was a moment of silence while Wakefield, attorneys, and the official stenographer looked at each other with open mouths. Finally the following colloquy ensued:

Wakefield—Words and what?

Milkmaid Champ

JULIA DRABEK.

Julia Drabek, 24, 135 N. Park av., La Grange, topped all contestants including boys in a milking contest at the State Institute of Agriculture, Farmingdale, N. Y., where she has been studying agriculture, according to word received here yesterday. She milked six cows in 72 minutes for a total of 116.3 pounds of milk. She is planning to teach agriculture on a farm near Cincinnati, O., conducted by the Ladies of the Grail, a Catholic order, according to her mother, Mrs. John C. Drabek.

U. S. ATTORNEY'S EX-AID SEIZED IN BOOTLEG PLOT

Norton I. Kretske, 38, former assistant United States attorney here, was arrested yesterday in Clinton, Okla., by alcohol tax unit agents on a charge of introduction of tax paid liquor into a dry state. The agents who arrested Kretske seized more than 129 cases of alleged black market whisky. Kretske served 14 months in the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., for conspiring to fix bootleg cases after being convicted here in 1940. He was disbarred later.

He and four companions were taken to Oklahoma City, where they were released on bonds. One of the four, the agents said, was a man named James Weinberg, 45, who gave a Chicago address.

Ten days ago FBI agents were reported searching for a disbarred attorney, formerly an assistant United State's attorney, for questioning in connection with the theft of $15,000 worth of cigarets from a west side warehouse July 9. This theft was believed to be linked with the slaying Aug. 2 of Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, west side gangster, and his bodyguard, Mike Pontillo, who were shot near Blue Island av. and Morgan st.

SIGLER TO SEEK ROBICHAUD FOR BRIBERY TRIAL

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 24 [Special].—Kim Sigler, special prosecutor in the legislative bribery investigation that resulted recently in the conviction of 17 legislators and three finance company executives on conspiracy charges, today said he will leave tomorrow for Newark, N. J., to seek the extradition of Armand Robichaud, public relations director for Beneficial Management corporation, who is one of the 14 men named in a second conspiracy warrant.

Robichaud has been resisting his return to Michigan to face a charge that he and other finance company officials conspired with legislators to control the form of the 1939 act taxing intangible personal property. An extradition hearing in his case has been set for Aug. 29.

Death after a stroke yesterday deprived the investigators of the services of Miles M. Callaghan of Reed City. Callaghan, 78, was a state senator in 1939 and a representative when indicted under the first mass warrant.

He had pleaded guilty to the charge, but was unable to appear as a witness because of his physical condition. He had admitted at the preliminary hearing that he accepted $450 in bribes from Maj. Charles F. Hemans, Democrat and former University of Michigan regent.

"AS GOOD AS GOLD"
We'll go out of "Our Way" to give YOU an honest square deal.
BECAUSE: [1] We're out of the high rent district.
BECAUSE: [2] We don't need fancy trimmings or high pressure salesmen.
BECAUSE: [3] You don't pay for silk curtains, marble floors.
